DR. CHARLES RICHARD TWILLEY.

GRADUATE OF THE BALTIMORE COLLEGE OF DENTAL SURGERY

Having enlarged and otherwise added to the conveniences of my office on Main street, I am prepared to perform operations in advance Dentistry in the most approved style.

EXTRACTING TEETH WITHOUT PAIN.

Proposed New Electric Road.

An interesting movement affecting the future welfare of that section of the Eastern Shore of Maryland, extending from Elkton to Easton and possibly further south, is represented in the active and serious consideration which is now being given to the construction and operation of an electrically equipped passenger and freight railway, extending from Wilmington, Delaware, through Newark, Elkton, Chestertown, Centreville and Easton.

A viewing party, representing those interestad, have recently gone over the territory named and have reported they are most favorably impressed, not only with the towns and settlements along the way, but with the fertility and the unusual natural beauty and attractiveness of the landscape and its indenting waterway; they consider that the absence of any direct inter-communication by rail for the towns and settlements south of Elkton warrant the construction of a standard gauge railway, connecting the entire territory with the city of Wilmington, where the rails should join the trunk line railroads, furnishing and unrestricted outline in every direction for the traffic.

The first question to be settled involves the terms upon which a fifty foot right of way (sufficient for a double track high speed road) may be acquired and the determination of the lines and conditions on which it may be permitted to approach and pass through or along side the various towns and settlements and over the water courses and navigable streams. They are ready to take up these questions now.

The company hopes to acquire its right of way along the lines most agreeable and serviceable to the local committees, that is to say, to so locate the railway as to afford the greatest service with the least possible disturbance to local conditions. No attempt will be made to make a survey and acquire a right of way without a thorough consultation with the town authorities and the parties whose lands are to be crossed so as to eliminate, if possible at the outset, objections from either side, and effect the hearty co-operation of all concerned. To that end, prominent citizens in each community will be selected to captain the "right of way teams," to confer with the authorities and property owners, following which, the engineers will go carefully over the proposed route indicating the course of the desired right of way by a preliminary survey.

As soon as the desired right of way has been indicated and the final conferences thereon with the local parties completed, and objections eliminated, the next move will be to undertake the acquisition of such right of way and begin construction.

From the fact that such a railroad would be of tremendous service in the development of the communities named and would so enhance the land values all along the line and throughout the country tributary thereto, it would seem, from a theoretical view-point, incredible that any serious opposition should be expected to such an enterprise. The country to be traversed is undoubtedly the most attractive rural section of the whole Peninsula, and it would now be a great residential section, except for the fact that it is so inaccessable; it would be a great trucking country, feeding the centers of population to the north of it, except for the fact that the inadequate shipping facilities forbid such undertakings on an extensive scale. Neither the inhaul or outhaul can be properly served by the present facilities.

The company cannot create these great improvements and advantages for the territory named, without the help and co-operation of the people in such territory, any more than the people there can bring about similar advantages without the help and co-operation of some such company to carry out the construction and operation of the line. They state, however, that they will not expect the local communities to raise the funds for building the line or any part of it, but they must necessarily have the sympathetic aid and encouragement of such communities; first, in securing a right of way, which right of way they are willing to acquire upon reasonable terms, that is to say, terms which the engineers would be warranted in certifying to the financiers as acceptable and proper terms, from the standpoint of the cost of the same to the company; next, the company, when it undertakes this enterprise, is desirous that it shall not be entirely in the attitude of a foreign interest, making a development in the localities named, but it desires the people of those localities so interwoven in the enterprise as to render it justifiable to regard it a community enterprise with as many local people as possible entitled to a voice in its stockholders meetings. Local subscribers are desired.

The local people must be relied upon to eliminate unreasonable barriers to the prompt securing to the right of way, and to stimulate a strong community interest in the enterprise.

The governing factor in determining whether a railway can be built anywhere at any time is whether the cost of the enterprise and the conditions under which it must operate will justify the investment of the money. Equipments as well as labor cost are now unusually high. It is the purpose of those interested, however, to make the most economial arrangement possible for acquiring the right of way, the construction, development and operation of the road, by eliminating all excessive charges and seeing that not a dollar is expended or contracted on the enterprise above the amount actually and reasonably necessary, so that the road may begin operation under the smallest possible fixed charge. The patrons of the line, whether they are investors or not, are necessarily interested in this economic feature of the undertaking, because the lower the fixed charge the more cheaply will the company be able to render its service, and from the outset it will naturally have more available revenues for increasing its facilities. Proper local co-operation will naturally mean much in the building of the road and its future, in fact it is indispensable and should be enthusiastically accorded.

Girls Have Pretty Face and Beautiful Complexion

An Atlanta man makes new discovery that makes an old face look years younger. If your skin is dark, brown or covered with freckles or blemishes, just use a little Cocotone Skin Whitener; it's made with cocoanut oil and is perfectly harmless. A few days' use will improve your looks 100 per cent. The wornout skin comes off evenly, leaving no evidence of the treatment, the new healthy under-skin appearing as a lovely new complexion.

Just ask your druggist for an ounce of Cocotone Skin Whitener, and if he will not supply you send twenty five cents to The Cocotone Co., Atlanta, Ga., and they will send you a box by return mail.

If your hair is hard to comb, is kinky, nappy and will never stay straight, just use Cocotone Hair Dressing and it will become straight, long, soft, glossy and beautiful in a few days. Mail orders filled, 25c for large box.
