Civil War Veteran 50 Years Painting Christ.—Darius Cobb, the venerable Boston artist, has just finished a portrait of Christ on which he has been working since the close of the civil war. "The Master" is the title that Mr. Cobb has given the picture. "I promised the Lord just before the first battle I went into that if my life was spared I would paint a picture of Christ," said he. "I have kept my word and put my best energy into the portrait." Darius Cobb is the antithesis of pacifist. Today at the age of 83 he fears no man. He says that when he gazes at the beautiful face of Christ that he has created on canvas he sees before him a great and world-wide ultimate peace. Mr. Darius Cobb is the father of Prof. Cobb, of Washington College, who has a beautiful co[illegible] of the painting.

WILL THEY DO IT?

To impugn the motives of any individual should be a serious thing. The same should be said of the great newspapers of the country. We hope and predict that the time will come in America when the word of a newspaper will mean as much as we demand of the individual. It is not always so now. We expect a man to stand right on moral questions. Why should we not expect the same of the newspaper which comes into our home?

The Detroit Times, of November 28th, contained a letter written by Mr. James Schemerhorn, editor and owner of the paper, declining to enter into an advertising contract with the Brewers' Association, although three other prominent papers in Detroit did accept and publish advertisements in defense of beer.

The offer of five thousand lines of advertising matter at the regular rate is a very tempting offer and the value of the advertising to the brewers is not in the conversions they expect to make but in the silencing of the press which will have a pecuniary reason for not speaking out against the beer crusade. The brewers have entered upon an attempt to silence the press of the United States by advertising contracts which will be made with all the papers unscrupulous enough to accept the bribe.

There are many papers in this country whose editorial columns could not be bought but it is not always easy to pick them out.

It is no wonder that motives are questioned when editorials favoring booze appear almost simultaneously with big beer advertisements. Even in Baltimore this has occurred. Editorials giving advice to the Anti-Saloon League to kill the hard liquor traffic but to save beer; that this legislature was not elected on this issue despite the fact that the Personal Liberty League had advertisements in the same papers before the election saying that the question is an issue.

The fact remains that the fight against the liquor traffic will continue to be an issue until every saloon, brewery and distillery is closed for the booze business for all time.

We are at war. Yet 55,000,000 pounds of sugar and 2,500,000 gallons of syrup going into beer each year. Saloons hindering the output of coal and breweries still using this necessity by the train load. Grain wasted in booze. Transportation facilities taken by booze. Munition and other industrial plants, upon which we must depend to win this war, shutting down for lack of coal and schools in some sections shutting down for the lack of coal. The German-American Alliance which is simply an adjunct of the brewer's organization still in operation. Baltimore's great papers actually carrying these facts but never a suggestion that the breweries and saloons be closed at previous sessions of the Legislature, some of the papers tried to save hard liquor, now they want to save beer. They were wrong then. They are wrong now.

We are not going to say that brewery advertisements have anything to do with this. Neither are we going to say Baltimore reporters do not gather the news. We know them to be capable men and know that they are in possession of the facts.

This is a time when every industry and every man should be at the very best. We will approach this in proportion as the consumption of liquor decreases.

Let us step out and openly strike at the whole liquor business which continually undermines the public health and public morals. The great newspapers of Baltimore can easily throw off all ground for suspicion.

Will they do it?

Averys—T[illegible]tors
That Burn ALL the Kerosen[illegible]

You want a tractor th[illegible]burns Kerosene. You don't need to burn priced gasoline in Avery Tra[illegible]tors for they are genuine Kerosene burners.

Avery Tractors are the only make of tractors equipped with a Dou[illegible] Carburetor and Duplex Gasifier Fuel System, and the only make of tracto[illegible] that really burn ALL the kerosene.

One Avery owner recently said, "Our engine runs as smoothly on kerosene as on gasoline. We haven't had a bit of trouble with it." Another Avery owner said, "There are eleven gas and oil tractors in our country. None of them handle kerosene as well as the Avery." Avery Tractor Owners all over the country are saying the same thing—they have proved by experience that Avery Tractors burn ALL the Kerosene.

Let us demonstrate to you how Avery Tractors do this.
