SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 11, 1911.

MR. HARRY DAVIS, president of the Board of Commissioners, with becoming modesty says he is not a candidate for State Senator — that his terms as county commissioner have been enough for him.

THE Anne Arundel County Commissioners have just decided that eight hours should constitute a working day for the tax assessors, and the per diem of these men, who were employed under the provisions of the General Assessment act passed at the last session of the Legislature, will be calculated upon that basis.

WM. S. CARROLL announces his candidacy in another column for re-election as town commissioner. Although a Republican in politics, Mr. Carroll has many friends among Democrats who will be glad to see him re-elected.

In another column is also announced the candidacy of STEWARD R. MATTHEWS on an up-to-date and vital platform.

"Economy," The Organization's Motto

The Organization in Kent county have adopted the slogan of Economy and Low Taxes and put it into practice at once as far as they can.

Engineer Isaac Gibbs in his report to the Commissioners Tuesday shows that there has been spent on the roads for January $360.44, which makes a total of $6,562.80. This is a fine showing and we are sure is very gratifying to the taxpayers. These are the items that Engineer Gibbs reported to the Commissioners, which detailed statements are on file with the Commissioners, giving everything spent and to whom paid:

To show what can be done by the enforcement of the game law and how much game protection can be afforded without cost to the State, Game Warden A. C. McCurdy, of Baltimore county, on Monday called upon Governor Crothers. He presented figures to show that the county took in $4,105.85 for gunners' licenses last year, out of which $1000 was paid the Game Warden for salary, the remainder being at his disposal for restocking the county with game. County Clerks' fees, amounting to $936.77, and the cost of collecting, amounting to $216.15, have been turned over to the State as surplus under the law, the total being $1,152.90.

MARYLAND WINS AT CORN SHOW.

The exhibits installed by the Maryland Experiment Station at the National Corn Show at Columbus, Ohio, are receiving unstinted praise and incidentally, have won several of the handsome prizes offered. In the world's class Maryland secured first prize for buckwheat, and in the same class, in which the various States compete, first prize in white corn, wheat, rye, oats and barley, and also second prize in the same class for yellow corn. Maryland also was awarded second and third prizes in the world's class on cowpeas.

These prize exhibits are the same as those displayed at the Cereal and Forage Crop Show, held in Baltimore some weeks ago, and which were awarded first prizes. Maryland also has an exhibit in the Educational Building showing results of investigations at the State's experiment station with growing cowpeas and corn in combination as silage. Maryland was awarded prizes in every exhibit in which the State was entered.
