Treasurer Graham Visits Wimington

The "Evening Journal," of Wilmington, contained a somewhat lengthly article on Thursday evening concerning the visit of Mr. Harry R. Graham, treasurer of the Chestertown Baseball Club, who has been in Wilmington in a search for first-class teams to meet our club. Mr. Graham does not want to arrange games with teams that can not give our boys a battle. That was the great trouble last year. Our team outclasses the other teams in this section and the people finally grew tired of seeing one-sided games. The article was concluded as follows: "Chestertown has a strong combination. Managers of first-class Wilmington teams, those which consider themselves of a caliber to be able to defeat Chestertown, should get in touch with H. R. Graham, Chestertown, Md. Second-raters should not arrange games and then go down to the Maryland village to give the Wilmington sporting fraternity a black eye."

CHICAGO MERCHANTS MON DOES NOT PAVE CHESTER-TOWN'S STREETS

Pride in Town Should Foster Mutual Help and Encouragement

Why we should patronize home trade:

First. Home manufacturers, home laborers, home professional men and home merchants cannot exist without each other.

Second. The more money there is in our city the less the rate of taxes.

Third. Money sent to Chicago, New York and other cities increases the wealth there with a corresponding decrease here.

Fourth. Schools, churches, streets and all city improvements here are not made and never will be made by the citizens of Chicago.

Fifth. Out-of-town goods help to build up and improve the place where they are bought, and cripple the factories here, because we should buy as much as we can in Chestertown and help in that way to increase the capacity of home industries.

Sixth. The buyer at home sees what he is purchasing and can get the guarantee of his merchant, who should strive to give the best values for the money in return for home patronage.

Seventh. Pride in our city should foster mutual help and encouragement in all lines of worthy endeavor.

Eighth. Disintegration would follow the complete abandonment of home patronage, just as a certain amount of mail order business has a demoralizing effect on our city business today.

Ninth. Identical articles can be bought more cheaply in Chestertown than from mail order houses,and without the possibility of their being crushed and damaged in transit.

Tenth. The interest in the growth of the city, the desire for better things temporal and religious, the consummation of an ideal, can only be brought about by each individual making himself a patron of the Chestertown merchants, not for the purpose, primarily, of enriching that merchant, but that he in turn may be better able to supply, just as the employment of home labor adds to its purchasing power and ability to aid in public improvements and the employment of home professional men enables them to equip themselves more thoroughly for their work.

WM. MEDDERS & CO

The average man has no better purpose and no greater duty than that of providing for the present and future needs of his family. His own work takes reasonable care of their needs while he lives but death will deprive them of his care and support and will result not only in their loss of his earnings but also in the proper and safe use of those earnings in their support. The Monthly Income Policy of the National Life Insurance Company is offered to the insuring public as a true and perfect solution of that problem.
