The shrill of the timer's whistle was about all that saved the Athenians from losing their game with the Delta Big Five, Friday night, as the locals were unable to locate the basket, but were adept at fouling the frat boys who, by dint of accurate foul caging, crept up within nine points of the Greek tossers, who managed to win by a 24-15 score.

Trotting out on the court with all their old-time form and pep, the locals gave evidence of playing in top form, and, while they won the game, they deserve no bouquets for doing so. Time and time again did they miss set-ups—standing directly beneath the goal and lofting the ball into the rafters. Evidently the layoff that the tossers have had, had its effect, as the team was off in all departments of the game. The Delta team, also, was not up to the standard of those of former years.

Slow Start

In the Athenians starting line-up were Ailor and Bishop in forward; Thomas, center, and R. Sheffey and Jackson in guard. Howard was the first to score when Hill, center, made good on a free throw after being fouled by Sheffey. Jackson, Athenian captain, put the locals in the lead by potting a clean short shot. The passing game began to speed up a little and Wyatt was sent in for Bishop.

Sheffey was here, there, and everywhere, smothering the passes of the D. C. boys and interfering in general with their caging plans. Hackett and Lewis entered the game, steaming things up for a moment, but they too seemed unable to find out what it was all about. Seven points were all the locals could annex in the first stanza while the visitors scored two via the foul line.

Ailor Saves Day

Were it not for Ailor, the Athenians would have been in a sorry pickle, as time and again the flashy forward stepped out and snatched a basket to boost the scoring column. Although he scored five field goals, Ailor too was off, as he missed several good chances—but to him goes the credit for the victory. Thomas sent two fielders through the cords before taking the bench and put up a good defensive game. Veney couldn't get up a heat but got his personal just the same. Wyatt, Jackson, Lewis and Hackett connected for one field goal each. Only two foul goals were made good by the Greeks.

Fouls Save Deltas

Accurate caging of free throws was a decided asset to the Deltas as 7 of their 15 points were made via the foul route. Hansberry and Hill connected for two baskets each. Campbell played a nice game at guard for the visitors and Cunard with his pivoting had the fans applauding.

Glover, local center, made nine points before the Marietta five could get together. Playing The Game

By WILLIAM GIBSON

Neutral Officials

The mix-up at the Morgan-Howard basketball game Saturday night seems proof positive that there should be some different arrangements made for keeping time at the games. Only one watch was used in the game Saturday night and the game was called at least a half minute before time.

The Howard timer, immediately after the close of the game, removed the watch, which was Morgan property, from the table. The Morgan timer insisted and proved that the allotted time was not up. It is pointed out that Paine, the Howard timer, has on previous occasions caused controversies. Both teams, the referee, and the umpire, acquitted themselves honorably, but the little difference at the table set up an unpleasant dispute.

For this reason we insist upon a neutral timer as the final arbiter in such disputes so that similar incidents may be avoided.

Apologia

William Elmer Bradley, manager of the Quaker City Elks' basketball team, writes in to set the public right on the 'whys and wherefores' of the game played here between Morgan and an Elk team two weeks ago. Last week I called attention to the fact that a large number of dyed-in-the-wool basketball fans were disappointed when the first team of the Elks did not appear on the local court as per the previous advertisement.

I further stated that whoever was responsible for the mix-up should be ferreted out and called upon for an explanation of the tangled situation. It is in this explanatory manner that Mr. Bradley writes, and I am herewith publishing his letter which needs no further comment:

My dear Sir:

In reference to the basketball game in Baltimore on last Friday evening between Morgan and the Quaker City Elks, I owe the officials of Morgan College and the fans of Baltimore an apology. I want to assure them that no attempt was made to fool them when we sent down part of our squad to engage in the contest.

The game in question was arranged very hastily by wire and as Mr. Drew spoke of going to press immediately, I did not have an opportunity to explain that the players you mentioned were in New England.

I sent down a squad that I fully expected to acquit themselves and the Quaker City Lodge with credit and was very much abashed when I heard the score. Of course, you realize that Morgan has an exceptional team, but I felt sure my boys would have given them a closer battle.

The line-up mentioned in your issue last week will return from the New England tour late in February, and I am now dickering with Mr. Drew for a return game in an effort to redeem our lost prestige.

Thanking you and the fans of Baltimore for the courteous and impartial treatment of Philly quintets in the past, I am,

Yours for clean sports,
Wm. Elmer Bradley
Manager Quaker City Elks.

Black Man's Burden

To be all dressed up with no place to go, is bad enough but to be all dressed up with SOME PLACE to go and then be KEPT FROM GOING, seems to us, to be even worse. This latter predicament seems to be just the sort of fix that George Godfrey, Bruce Flowers, Reginald Siki, and a host of others are in.

Godfrey, sable dose of Black Lightening, yelept the Black Shadow of Leiperville, et al., despite his recent signing with Paulino Uzcudum, the Spanish woodcutter for a fight at Los Angeles on George Washington's birthday, is still out in the cold. Tex Rickard, Promoter Omnipotent, and whip-holder extraordinary, has done about everything but have Godfrey exiled, in his attempt to keep the dusky battler from getting a peep-in on things "higher up." Godfrey despite his ability, and an impressive record, is treated with about the same courtesy of a cat at a rodents' convention. The proposed bout with Knute Hansen, who holds down second place in Group 3 of Tex Rickard's OWN rating of heavyweights, was a fizzle. The big Swede second-rater seems to have so many managers that when Jimmy Dougherty tried to talk turkey to them he found himself stepping in circles, revolving from manager to manager. Thus the bout scheduled for last Monday night died aborning.

Then there's Bruce Flowers who twice put the hoo-doo on Eddie Elkins. While signed for the third bout with the Harlem battler at the Olympia A. C. Saturday night, Bruce and his manager, Harry Garsh, set their eyes on a bout with Sammy Mandell. Armed with a certified check for $2,500, the pair called at the Boxing Commission and stated their plans. "No, no", said the commissioners. "But you may put on the gloves with Sid Terris, and then we'll consider the winner of that bout as a logical contender for the battle with Sammy."

Everything seemed to be O. K. from this point and Bruce had visions of a bout with Terris when Jess McMahon sends out orders that in order to meet Terris, Flowers must first win from Elkins. Another wrench! Not that it seemed any too unreasonable that Flowers should emerge victorious to get the bout, but after promising him the Terris bout without any restrictions on it, to come along and put the Elkins hurdle in the path, seemed a little mysterious.

Then the case of Reginald Siki, bronzed Abyssinian, of nimble mien, who seeks diligently a match with Joe Stecher. In the case of Reggie too, there are a number of 'hurdles' in the way that will in all probability block his progress to a Stecher mixer to the proverbial standstill. Punishment upon punishment must be endured before a Hamitic contender can get a peep-in, and if by chance the opportunity presents itself, he is usually so battered and exhausted with his preliminary 'try-outs' that he is not the man to fill the bill.

It's pretty tough to have ability, to know that others recognize your ability theoretically, but in practice won't give you a chance to show it. We imagine that were old Ham, himself, here today, he'd be as popular as a bootlegger at a centenarian's congress.

John Pinkett, Amherst Star, Made Good In Business

Athletics Taught Him To "Fight Hard," He Says, When You Have The Ball And When You Haven't. Crackers Wanted To Keep Him Off Amherst Team.

By J. LE COUNT CHESTNUT

NEW YORK CITY.—A square-jawed, slightly bald young man, with deep seated penetrating eyes is among those seated around the conference table with the president, board of directors and stockholders of a powerful insurance company in a great southern city.

Suddenly and unexpectedly to him a southern white business man is ushered in. He immediately and without any dramatics informs the board that their meeting is an anomaly since he holds in his hands the majority block of stock, which is under the control now of white mortgage holders, thus changing the direction of the company to Caucasian hands.

PINKETT RESIGNS

The square-jawed young man literally leaps to his feet, and demands to know of the erstwhile colored president of the company if the statement just made is true. Alas, the president can but confirm. And then without more ado this six feet of athletic bulk announces that he resigns immediately as director of agencies and as a member of the board.

The fact that he was receiving a handsome salary, holding an executive administrative post, owning a beautiful home where he was located, and in addition was the sole support of a young wife and six little children, in nowise served as a deterrent.

The man who did this soon found high place with another powerful Negro company on a far sounder basis and lived to be justified by seeing his new company reclaim through purchase the company which he had left when the whites took it over.

The man who showed this moral courage was John Pinkett, former star footballer at Amherst College from 1907 to 1911. But Pinkett had been tested by fire long before this. He merely "hit the line" at that board meeting as he had done in play in his college football days.

The peculiarly trying condition that confronted young Pinkett in his freshman year at Amherst, will explain how his athletic experience was a preparation and development for the hardships of life in more than the ordinary sense. As a first year man in college, he reported to Pratt field for training on the "scrub team." He was not eligible for the varsity this year. A southern clique, then at Amherst College, headed by a St. Louis boy, tried to keep Pinkett off the field. They actually conspired to do him bodily harm, because, some were on the team; and in a scrimmage between the varsity and the scrubs, Pinkett was kicked, brulsed and pummelled in a most disgraceful way. Not succeeding in this, the southern element went to President George Harris and sought to have Pinkett withdrawn from athletics, but "Prexy," stern old down Easterner, from East Machias, Maine, not only indignantly denied their request, but went farther, informing them that any who subsequently troubled Pinkett would be handled criminally as well as expelled from Amherst College

PRESIDENT AND DEAN STAND BY

Dr. Hitchcock, fondly known during his life to Amherst men as "Old Doc," dean of the college, and head of the physical training department nobly seconded the president, and thus was prejudice, which raised its head for the first time in athletic life of the Alpha Mater of Henry Ward Beecher and Calvin Coolidge, beaten down and driven off. Pinkett too was a stronger and better man for having fought it out and seen the matter through.

Breaking off the charm of Mr. Pinkett's reminiscences for a time, he was asked, "What do you consider the outstanding lesson you learned from your athletic life?"

"FIGHT HARD"

Instantly he answered: "Fight hard! Play the game both when you have the ball and when you haven't. Seek to carry it over. Fight just as strongly when things are against you as when they are with you." Such were the truths taught by athletic competition to a man who has proved by his life that he is both courageous and efficient.

John Pinkett entered Amherst College, Amherst, Mass., in September 1907. He played guard on his freshman football team. In the same year he won his letter on the varsity track team. In his sophomore year he played on the varsity football team, earning honorable mention from the late Walter Camp.

HIS GREATEST PLAY

In this year Pinkett pulled what he considered his greatest play on the gridiron. It occurred in the Dartmouth-Amherst game. Tobin the Dartmouth captain, an all American guard, was in the line against Pinkett, who weighed 185 pounds. Tobin stood 6 feet three inches, weighing 260 pounds. Pinkett broke through Brusse and Tobin, blocked a punt, grabbed the ball, and ran 30 yards to the 5 yard line before being downed by Jess Hawley, present Dartmouth coach. The Purple eleven, however, was not strong enough to score despite Pinkett's masterly effort.

The John Pinkett name received flattering press comment for his work as right half back in the Amherst-Yale game. In the Brown game he was back at center, playing his "roving" game in best style. Part of the season he acted captain of the eleven. He was unanimously chosen All-New England center.

In the fall of his senior year, 1911, Pinkett was again chosen All-New England Center. Walter Camp, in addition, placed him on the mythical 3rd All-American eleven.

Pinkett also continued his track work in the dashes during his junior and senior years. He was a consistent winner in the dual meet and in the New England Intercollegiate meets. The track letter was awarded him at the close of each season.

"DAD" A PASTOR

Pinkett was born September 27, 1888 at Lincolnia, Virginia, from the union of Reverend John P. Pinkett and Cecelia Beckley Pinkett. He was schooled at home by his father for 5 years. In 1900, he entered the public schools of Washington, D. C., and graduated from the Old M Street High School (now Dunbar) in 1906. He took no part in high school football, but was a member of the cadet corps, being a captain for Company A which won the first time in the many years of the battalion's history. After a year at work in the government service, he matriculated at Amherst College.

Upon graduation from College, Mr. Pinkett went to Jackson, Miss., as a teacher and athletic coach for Alcorn University. He turned out the champion football and baseball teams for Mississippi and Louisiana in 1912-13. Later he went to Sumner Hi, St. Louis, as an instructor. Afterwards he rose to the rank of head assistant in the day school, and principal of the night high school.

ENTERS INSURANCE BUSINESS

In 1921, he resigned from the schools to head an insurance agency office in St. Louis. Soon thereafter he was called to the home office as assistant director of gaencies. On January 15, 1925, when he resigned, he was director of agencies.

In February 1925, the National Benefit Life Insurance Company, Washington, D. C., tendered Mr. Pinkett the position of agency director of the ordinary department. He accepted and has made good. Now he is in Atlanta handling the affairs of the Standard Division of the National, aiding in the reclaiming of business that the Rutherford's rescued from white control for the Race.

The source of this story was married to Miss Flaxie Holcomb a Cornell graduate. From this marriage six children have come; 2 boys and 4 girls. Who knows but what again, a few years hence, another Pinkett name may be blazoned in glory across the page of Amherst's best football traditions.

S. E. ATHLETIC BODY LAYS DOWN NEW LAWS

Officials Take Up Attendance, Delinquency, And Proselyting

DUES ARE INCREASED

Season End-Limits Set—Scouting Frowned Upon

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala.—The Southeastern Athletic Conference, in adopting certain revisions to the old constitution has made what many consider to be some of the most courageous and far reaching changes since its foundation in 1910.

The name of the body was changed from the Southeastern Intercollegiate Association to the Southeastern Athletic Conference, and dues increased from five to ten dollars per year.

Membership has been limited to twelve, and the following institutions are members: Atlanta, Clark, and Morris Brown, Tennessee State A. and M., Knoxville, Fisk, Florida A. and M., Talladega, Alabama State, Tuskegee, Morehouse, and Miles Memorial.

The conference took up the question of the so-called "tramp" athlete and the professional baseball player, deciding that students who have received any pecuniary reward or its equivalent by reason of their connection with athletics, shall be barred from representing an institution in any athletic contest. Only bona-fide students, regularly enrolled will be considered eligible for competition.

The conference took up the six following matters and decided on the following regulations, of which a brief summary is given:

Limited Participation

A student can participate in intercollegiate athletics four years in the aggregate. A preparatory student may play two years on a conference team and not have that two years counted against him in case he should enter the collegiate department of a conference institution; but in case he plays more than two years, each year after the second is subtracted from his four years.

This rule bars Ben Stevenson, Tuskegee athlete, from further conference games.

Attendance

A student having been a member of any conference athletic team during any semester or quarter and not having continued in residence through that period shall not be permitted to play in any intercollegiate contest thereafter until he shall have been in attendance six consecutive calendar months.

Late Registration

No student can represent his institution in any intercollegiate game or contest who registers later than two weeks after the first day set for registration in the semester or quarter in which he desires to compete.

Delinquency In Studies

No student can represent his institution or take part in an intercollegiate contest who has conditions in more than one course or who has total failures on his previous record in that or any other institution exceeding one fifth of his total hours passed in such institution.

Proselyting

Soliciting athletes by coaches or members of the faculty or by anyone acting for them or any member of student organization or their representative is prohibited. In the application of this rule, it is the intention that so-called "scouting trips" and trips for the principal or incidental of meeting or interviewing athletes is forbidden.

Season Length

There can be no preliminary football training or coaching prior to September 10 and the regular football season cannot be extended beyond the second Saturday in December each year. Games played thereafter are deemed post-season games.

BOUTS AT DECATUR CLUB

William Sheren, boxing instructor at the Decatur Club, 406 Dolphin street, announces a big free boxing card sponsored by the club for Wednesday night, Feb. 1st. In addition to the main bout between Buster and Henry, the following events have been carded: Paul vs. Jerry; Ed vs. Neal; Hennen vs. Parr, and Pimple vs. Mike. G. ATLANTA, Ga. — Morehouse basketballers took the short end of two scores here last week, losing on Wednesday to Clark by a 41 to 34 score and again on Friday to Morris Brown to the tune of 24 to 22.

In the Clarke game it was too much Johnson and Hazzard for Morehouse. Clarke got an early lead and kept it except for a brief spell when Morehouse spurted and tied the count at 15 all. Sixteen personal fouls were called on the Clark team against ten on the Maroons. Dobbs, Morehouse captain, on the sick list, was in the game but a short time.

Morris Brown Game

A persistent Morris Brown quintet, after knotting the score 9 al, at the half, came back strong in the second frame, and in the closing minutes of the game snatched a 24-22 victory from the Morehouse five. The count, after see-sawing back and forth during the second half, found Morehouse leading by 5 points at five minutes to the final whistle.

A. Brown, substitute for Traylor, thrilled the fans, when dribbling through the entire Morris Brown aggregation, he slipped in one that tied the count. Bradley, Morris Brown guard, sank one from long range, and it was all over as the whistle blew.

The Howard Bison, smarting under a series of early season defeats, surprised an over-confident Morgan Bear, Saturday night in the Howard gym, outplayed and outgeneralled him, and then left him holding the short end of a 31-29 score.

The game was protested by Coach Drew and Capt. Jones, of Morgan, who insisted that the game was called before the official time had expired. As the final whistle blew, Paine, Howard scorer, took the timer's watch and vanished into the dressing room. He was later found, and examination of the watch, which was Morgan's property, showed that the game had been called practically 30 seconds too soon. The crowd had now surged on the floor and Referee Westmoreland and Umpire Cupid declared the game won by Howard.

The inability of the Morganites to shoot fouls was one cause of their defeat as the Baltimore lads made good on only five out of 13 fouls. Morgan made 12 field goals; Howard 11. Howard shot 9 out of 13 free tosses. Beasley, Howard center, started the scoring early in the game, when he made good on a free throw after Sheffey had fouled him. Sheffey compensated for this by sneaking away for one of his cornershots and slipping one through the cords. The Morgan passing game was working to perfection, but both "Lanky" Jones and "Pinky" Clark were neglecting opportunities to score. The Howard guards were getting on to Sheffey's corner shot and began to close in on him, and rushed him so, that on several of them his aim was poor.

Many Fouls

Referee Westmoreland was calling fouls right and left, Howard losing her two best centers, Beasley and Carpenter, via the personal foul route. Beasley had his foul shooting eye on the basket and dropped in three free throws and one field goal before taking the bench. "Pinky" Clark was going like all out-doors, often getting within the fifteen foot zone and then refusing to take a try at the basket. "Rapp" Wheatley was in the thick of things, breaking up numerous scoring chances and "Cutie" Brown was covering up in fine style.

The play of both teams was fast and the guarding was close. Coates was unable to do his stuff in the first frame, being guarded closely and being consequently rushed in his long range firing. Jerome Woods, Baltimore product, by his cool-leveaded playing, was the mainstay of the Howard aggregation, time and time again, steadying his team mates when they threatened to wilt under the rapid pace. The score at the end of the first half was Morgan 12; Howard 10.

The Second Half

Both teams entered the second half with a burst of speed, but Morgan slowed up soon, and that eventually meant a good bit in their defeat. The Howard boys were playing basketball with a capital B and were beginning to find the weak spots in the Morg
