There is a wonderful opportunity for exceptional young men and women in every town and city, no matter how now employed, and who have a writing ambition, to use their spare time in gathering valuable news, writing feature stories, humor or fiction.

There are thousands of everyday occurrences, odd happenings, etc., for which newspapers and magazines would be glad to pay, if some with the trained journalistic eye, would write them up.

THE AFRO-AMERICAN FEATURE BUREAU will attempt to train a number of such young men and women in various sections of the country. They will have an opportunity to join a nation-wide news gathering organization, which will sell their output in proportion as they become efficient and will have the personal guidance and supervision of William N. Jones, managing editor of the AFRO-AMERICAN and insrtuctor in journalism in the Douglass Evening High School of Baltimore.
