Teachers in the Schools of Kent Co. For 1922—23.

The Board of Education of Kent Co. met on Sept. 5 to consider among other matters the possibility of reducing the amount of the budget required to continue the work of the schools in the county on the same basis that it has been conducted. Each item of expense was carefully checked and, in view of the financial condition in which the Board of Education found itself, with a difference of more than $8000 between the budget of expense and the amount allowed by the county and state for schools, a condition making the following action absolutely necessary, it was decided to discontinue the transportation of high school pupils for the school year 1922-23. This will mean a saving of $1341, the largest reduction that can be made in any one item of expense without affecting all of the schools in the county.

The following teachers were appointed: Mrs. Dorothy Lusby at Melitota; Mrs. Ruthwin I. Strong at Broad Neck. With three exceptions, these appointments complete the list of white teachers, which follows:

Drowned At Georgetown

John Nehemiah Clark, of Easton, was drowned in the Sassafras river, at Georgetown, last Sunday.

Accompanied by his wife, John Hughes, of Denton, and Miss Florence Sudbury, of Baltimore, Mr. Clark went to Georgetown last Saturday morning to spend the week-end as guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Adams on their pleasure yacht, the Marion. Sunday afternoon the party crossed the river to the Kent side and went bathing. After being in the water several minutes someone missed Mr. Clark, and when a search was made for him he could not be found. The body was recovered Monday.

Mr. Clark was 24 and is survived by his wife, who was Miss Helen Mason, of Centreville, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Mason. They were married last February. He is also survived by his father and one sister, Miss Margaret Clark, of Easton. He was the representative of the General Accident Insurance Co. of Philadelphia.
