SHRAPNEL SHELLS LURK IN THE GARBAGE PAIL

Shortage of glycerine entering into the manufacture of munitions has resulted in a campaign by the Food Administration to bring the Maryland housewife to the rescue. Utilization of the humble garbage pail is to furnish not only sufficient glycerine to blow the Kaiser's troops out of the trenches, but to save millions of tons of soap substance, fertilizers, material for alcohol and other substances valued at millions of dollars.

In one ton of garbage there is sufficient glycerine to make the explosive charge for fourteen 75 millimetre shells, enough "fatty acid" to manufacture seventy-five pounds of soap, fertilizer elements to grow eight bushels of wheat and a score of other valuable materials essential in the manufacture of munitions.

But this is only one portion of the waste which the Food Administration seeks to stop. Garbage is utilized in twenty-nine American cities, with a combined population of more than 18,000,000. Garbage in these cities is being saved to the amount of $11,000,000 annually. Much of this is already being used in munition making and arrangements are now under way to manufacture a large supply of alcohol from the garbage product. But even these twenty-nine cities also are indulging in a great waste. Something like 9,000,000 pounds of grease are lost. This transformed into nitroglycerine would make 1,300,000 pounds, enough to charge about 2,000,000 shells of the famous French "seventy-fives." There is a further loss of sufficient "fatty acids" to manufacture 26,000,000 twelve ounce cakes of soap. In terms of fertilizer waste, there also is thrown away in these twenty-nine cities 1,250,000 pounds of nitrogen, 3,500,000 pounds of phosphate of lime and 350,000 pounds of potash, or enough "for the replacement of elements removed from the soil by a million bushels of wheat." The Food Administration is urging a propaganda to keep the garbage free from bottles, tin cans, crockery and other foreign matter. The saving will mean millions of dollars to the Government.

MEAT EVERYONE CAN EAT.

Not every housewife realizes that although we are still urged strongly to conserve what are known as meat cuts of beef and pork, and are also urged not to draw too liberally on the supply of poultry. We are permitted to eat all such by-products of beef and pork as ox-tails, tongues, livers, kidneys, sweetbreads, tripe and brains, because such parts of the meat animals are never sent overseas. It is the aim of the food administration to conserve as much as possible of the meat supply during the summer.

But from the point of view of the administration such things as ox-tails and tongues, livers, kidneys, sweetbreads, tripe and brains, are not meat, although they give us exactly the same sort of nourishment as other meat cuts and, in most instances, are rather cheaper than the other cuts.

FISH FOR THINKERS

"A very large proportion of America's town population would profit by exchanging some of their meat as an article of daily diet for fish," declares an eminent doctor. "Where occupation is chiefly of an intellectual kind and demands little physical exertion, fish is often much more suitable than meat. Fish is particularly recommended for women whose engagements are incompatible with much activity in the open air."

Loose living at home means tight belts in France.

Most kinds of fish are more rapidly digested than meat.

RISOTTO.

(Official recipe.)

Rice, three-quarter pounds; cheese, one-half pound; onions. Slice and fry the onions in a stewpan in a little fat; when brown add one and one-half pints of water and the rice. Let it cook about an hour and then add the grated or sliced cheese.

This favorite Italian dish may be varied by adding tomatoes when in season.

"CHILDREN LAST" IS HUN MOTTO

Through Switzerland comes a story of cold-blooded murder by Austrian soldiers of five school children at Pylsen, who were clamoring for food.

It appears that a crowd of women and children watching the loading of the bread wagon for the Skoda Works began to cry, "We are starving! We also want bread!"

Suddenly an infantry patrol appeared and without giving an order to the crowd to disperse, or a single word of warning, fired a volley from behind into the crowd, killing five children between the ages of 10 and 13 and severely wounding four men and two women. One man died.

Because America is nobly doing her duty in supplying food wherever the Allied forces can deliver it, no children in France or Italy have to choose for their little selves whether it is better to court death or face famine. As long as this country keeps moving even the minimum stores of essential foodstuffs which Mr. Hoover asks, the American people will not be accomplices in the doing to death through hunger of innocent children.

A failure in that supply would bring disaster to the American and Allied cause, because if confronted with such a dreadful alternative our soldiers would lay down their arms rather than force helpless children to lay down their lives. If the day ever came when children engaged in a death-grapple with our soldiers over a cartload of food, it would be high time to turn Baltimore over to the Huns. Fortunately, this nation has enough of the essentials—men, food and munitions—to prevent that shameful fate. But don't waste that food.

MONEY IS PLENTIFUL

But It is Hard To Keep Without A Bank Account

¶ No matter how plentiful money may be, you cannot keep it if you fritter it away.
¶ And to carry money around in your pocket affords an ideal opportunity for frittering.
¶ Any man may spend a dollar foolishly from his pocket when he would hesitate to draw a check.
¶ Money is plentiful in this country—more so than in any other country of the globe.
¶ Make it plentiful for yourself by depositing it in this bank instead of frittering it away.
