Clay Hadaway has treated home dwelling to a new coat of paint. Mr. Durding applying the same.

The oyster bars of our waters have the lure heretofore appealing to our oystermen. There is very little preparation for the September opening. The outlook now is, not many will tackle the oyster bars the coming season, not till cold weather anyhow.

Mr. DeFord is the boss tomato grower here about. He grows them to weigh more than two pounds each.

Our under 45 men are not at all gloomy over the proposed new draft law. They are bantering one another on the outcome.

SWIFT & COMPANY U.S.A.

Packers' Profits Are Regulated

The public should understand that the profits of the packers have been limited by the Food Administration since November 1, 1917. For this purpose, the business of Swift & Company is now divided into three classes:

Class 1 includes such products as beef, pork, mutton, oleomargarine and others that are essentially animal products. Profits are limited to 9 per cent of the capital employed in these departments, (including surplus and borrowed money), or not to exceed two and a half cents on each dollar of sales.

Class 2 includes the soap, glue, fertilizer, and other departments more or less associated with the meat business. Many of these departments are in competition with outside businesses whose profits are not limited. Profits in this class are restricted to 15 per cent of the capital employed.

Class 3 includes outside investments, such as those in stock yards, and the operation of packing plants in foreign countries. Profits in this class are not limited.

Total profits for all departments together in 1918 will probably be between three and four per cent on an increased volume of sales.

The restrictions absolutely guarantee a reasonable relation between live stock prices and wholesale meat prices, because the packer's profit cannot possibly average more than a fraction of a cent per pound of product.

Since the profits on meat (Class 1) are running only about 2 cents on each dollar of sales, we have to depend on the profits from soap, glue, fertilizer (Class 2, also limited) and other departments, (Class 3) to obtain reasonable earnings on capital.

Swift & Company is conducting its business so as to come within these limitations.

"H. M. S. PINAFORE"

or "The Lass That Loved a Sailor"

... OPERA ...

FIFTH EVENING AT CHAUTAUQUA

The action of this classic among comic operas takes place entirely on the quarterdeck of the H. M. S. PINAFORE with a view of Portsmouth in the distance. The rising curtain reveals the Boatswain and sailors cleaning brasswork, splicing rope, etc. To them enters Little Buttercup, a bumboat woman, with her stock of small wares for sale. It soon develops that a handsome young sailor, Ralph Rackstraw by name, is in love with his Captain's daughter, Josephine, a love doomed to be hopeless because of the difference in their rank, and because she is betrothed to the First Lord of the Admiralty, Sir Joseph Porter, K. C. B. In his tender passion Ralph has the sympathy of his messmates, excepting one ill-favored fellow, Dick Deadeye; but he has likewise succeeded in winning the love, though unconfessed, of Josephine, to whom Sir Joseph's attentions are unwelcome. The lovers confess their mutual passion and plan to steal ashore at midnight and be secretly married, a plan which Dick Deadeye overhears, and resolves to frustrate.

The Captain is discovered playing on a mandolin, and singing of the misfortunes that seem to befall him, and their weight is not lessened by Little Buttercup's hint of portentious mysteries. Dick Deadeye reveals the plans of the lovers to escape, and they are seized at the moment of departure by the Captain and Ralph is thrown into a dungeon by Sir Joseph. In this crisis Little Buttercup reveals the fact that she was formerly a nurse and had two boys in her charge, one a patrician, the other of low degree, and unfortunately she mixed these children up so that Ralph is really the Captain and the Captain, Ralph. Through this explanation the two exchange offices, and Josephine marries Ralph, who is now the Captain of the Pinafore; while her father takes his place as a common sailor.

In the rendition of this opera there are many familiar songs.

"We Sail the Ocean Blue."
"I am Monarch of the Sea."
"Captain of the Pinafore."
"The Gallant Captain of Pinafore."
"When I Was a Lad."
"Carefully on Tip-Toe Stealing."
"Farewell, My Own."
"A Maiden Fair to See."
"I am Called Little Buttercup."
"His Foot Should Stamp."
"The Merry Maiden and the Tar."
"Baby Farming."
"He is an Englishman."
