Increased Efficiency Increases Toll Calls

Communities With Common Business and Social Interests Now Served by Direct Lines

Toll Operators Passing Out-of-town Calls.

Increases in telephone operating efficiency increase out-of-town calls. This has made it necessary to increase the number of direct lines between communities having common business and social interests. In speeding up calls between out-of-town communities far and near, telephone officials have provided direct circuits which not only give faster service, but also improve transmission.

Among the latest direct circuits to be connected by the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company are those serving Washington, D. C., and Albany, N. Y.; Lynchburg, Va., and Bristol, Tenn.; Onancock, Va., and New York City; Baltimore and Trenton; Wheeling, W. Va., and Youngstown; Fairmont, W. Va., and Oakland, Md.; Baltimore and Detroit; Charleston, W. Va., and Ironton, Ohio; Norfolk, Va., and Charlotte, N. C.; Danville, Va., and Durham and Raleigh, N. C.; Havre de Grace and New York; Oakland, Md., and Pittsburgh, and Newport News, Va., and Philadelphia.

KNOWING FIRST AID SAVES LIFE OF MAN

First aid knowledge of telephone employees has been the means of saving the lives of many people not connected with the Company. Recently George W. Benzie and T. W. Erickson, cablemen, were working in a manhole at Norfolk, Virginia, when their attention was called to a man standing nearby holding his bleeding arm and calling for help. The two telephone men hurried to his assistance, Erickson grasped the injured arm located the artery and stopped the flow of blood, while Benzie quickly procured his First Aid kit and applied a tourniquet at the proper place above the wound. Bandaging the ugly gash and preparing a sling for the injured arm, they turned the patient over to a policeman who took him to a hospital where he was given medical attention.

It developed that the injured man, H. B. Dunn, of a water company, had severed an artery in his arm while washing a glass bottle. In a letter to W. L. Wagner, Plant Superintendent of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company, Mr. Dunn expressed his appreciation of the efforts of Benzie and Erickson for their knowledge and application of first aid which very probably saved his life.

BEDROOM TELEPHONE HELPS TRAP BURGLAR

Presence of mind in an emergency—and a telephone—recently helped a Washington (D. C.) woman to catch a burglar. While she was sleeping, she was awakened by footsteps in the adjoining room. The door between the two rooms was shut. Reaching for the telephone beside her bed, she quickly removed the receiver from the hook and, in low tones, asked for the Police Department. She was able to give information of the situation without the intruder hearing her, with the result that the police arrived on the scene in time to prevent his escape.

TELEPHONE BRIEFS

Richmond, Va., enjoys the distinction of having had the first telephone central office south of the Potomac River. This exchange was established April 1, 1879. Richmond now has 37,500 telephones from which more than 275,000 calls are made each twenty-four hours.

West Virginia telephone users now make more than 21,000 out-of-town toll calls each twenty-four hours, which is an increase of 11 per cent over the same period last year, officials state.

Maryland—the "Old Line State," uses its modern lines of communication consistently. Last year telephone users averaged 185 calls per capita. During the past month the daily average calls were about 900,000, company officials state.
