STATE DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH

GUARDING THE BABY

For the benefit of the 16,000 or more young citiznes who arrive in the counties of Maryland every year, a circular entitled "Guarding the Baby" has been prepared by the Bureau of Child Hygiene for distribution with the certificate sent to each mother by the Bureau of Vital Statistics of the State Department of Health, notifying her that her baby's birth has been duly recorded. Since so many of the difficulties in raising a baby are due to a bad start, mothers are urged to make the right sort of a beginning. Here is some of the advice:

MEDICAL OVERSIGHT: Every young child should be brought up under the care of an experienced doctor. This saves money and lives. Have your doctor see your baby at regular intervals through the early years.

FEEDING: Mother's milk is the right of every baby. It greatly reduced the likelihood of illness. Begin giving one to four teaspoonfuls of orange juice every day when the baby is 2or 3 months old. Begin giving one-half to one teaspoonful of cod liver oil every day at the same age.

BABY'S BATH: A healthy baby should be bathed every day. The best time is in the morning before the second feeding. The bath water should have a temperature of about 95 degrees at first, decreasing gradually to 80 degrees for a year old baby.

CLOTHING: The baby's clothing should be soft and comfortable and adapted to the weather.

REST, EXERCISE, AND FRESH AIR: The Baby should have a bed by itself, in a quiet, well ventilated room. The baby will exercise itself by kicking and stretching if allowed to do so. Twice a day let it play freely when undressed. Fresh air is needed by a baby even more than by adults. When practicable, the baby should take his nap on a porch.

WEIGHT: A healthy baby should double his birth weight in six months and triple it within a year. It should gain from 4 to 8 ounces a week.

DANGER FROM COLDS: A baby should be carefully protected from any person with a cold. The younger the baby the greater the danger from bronchitis and pneumonia following a simple cold. The danger can be greatly lessened if the baby is properly clothed, fed, given abundant sunshine and fresh air and kept from ill persons.

SMALLPOX AND DIPHTHERIA: Your baby should be vaccinated against smallpox before it is a year old, better at six months. It should be given the toxin anti-toxin treatment against diphtheria when about a year old.

CHILD HEALTH CONFERENCES: Health conferences for the examination of young children are held each month in most of the counties of Maryland. They are free and are intended for those children who are not seeing a doctor regularly. Consult the County Health Officer or the Public Health Nurse for the place and date of the next conference.
