Once Gone--
They Can Never Return

ONCE GONE, your youngsters' childhood days—and ways—can never return. Then you will have lost your precious opportunity for taking the Kodak snapshots that parents value so much in later years.

Don't put off taking pictures of your children a day longer. Don't risk years of regret. Keep a Kodak handy and get every picture when the chance comes.

We have Kodaks as low as $5; Brownies, $2 up.

AGRICULTURAL NOTES

TEN TON TOMATO CLUBS AGAIN OFFER PRIZES

Tomato growers in the State will again have the opportunity to supplement their field profits with valuable prizes offered by the Maryland Ten Ton Tomato Club, it is announced by L. M. Goodwin, canning crops specialist for the University of Maryland Extension Service.

To the three highest producers who enter the contest and follow the practices required by the Club there will be awarded gold watches, valued at $100, $75, and $50, while to all growers who succeed in producing in excess of ten tons to the acre there will be given special certificates of merit. A great interest which was shown last season. This, in spite of the fact that the ten ton goal is considerably above the State wide average production of four tons to the acre.

Only four out of one hundred and eleven entrants finished above ten ton mark in the 1928 contest, Mr. Goodwin announces, but the production of all entrants increased 100 per cent above the average production obtained before the improved methods were applied. The object of the contest, it is pointed out, is not to increase tomato production indiscriminately, but to attract attention to those practices which are essential in obtaining high yields at a lower cost of production.

The prizes are being provided by the State Packers' Association and the winners will be the guests of the Association at the annual winter meeting, at which time the prizes will be awarded. Circulars, explaining in detail the rules of the contest, are available in the offices of the county agents.

Entrants in the club last year from Kent County were practically put out of the running due to the August storm which materially damaged the crop. Arrangements are being made by the local county to sign up all those who wish to enter the contests.

National Egg Week Observed In State

Every effort will be made during the week of May 1 to 7 to focus the attention of Maryland consumers upon the great possibilities of eggs as a nutritious, economical and extremely valuable food constituent, according to Dr. F. B. Bomberger, chief of the State department of markets. Plans for Maryland's participation in the observance of "National Egg Week" are going forward under the supervision of a special committee.

It is pointed out that in spite of the fact the annual production of eggs in the State is valued at more than $7,000,000 it is far short of meeting the demands of a consuming public.

The average person, when buying a dozen eggs, often fails to fully realize just what he is getting for his money. They are considered to be not only an excellent food product but an economical one when it is considered that in purchasing twelve eggs one is getting the equivalent to a pound and a half of meat with no more waste than that provided by the shell.

That the hen is a most economical and efficient producer and the eggs an efficient product is shown by the fact that a hen averaging in weight from four to six pounds, if well fed and well managed, will produce from five to six times her own weight in eggs during the course of one year. When it is considered that a hen will do this on a feed ration of from eighty to ninety pounds it is no wonder she has won for herself the title of, "The most efficient of all farm animals in furnishing food for human consumption."

Probably the most desirable and nicest part of the hen's product, however, is the ease with which it may be prepared for consumption and the fact that the hen furnishes it to us in sanitary, sealed containers.

Some Weather Provers

While scientific meteorology still looks askance at the possibility of making seasonal forecasts, preverb meteorology—the old sayings about the weather that have grown up through hundreds of years' observation on the part of those who live out of doors a great deal of the time—is ready to venture a guess as to what effect various types of weather will have on agricultural crops, particularly on fruit.

For example, a continuous or nearly continuous covering of snow, incident to a cold winter, not only delays the blossoming of fruit trees until after killing frosts are probably over, but also prevents that alternate thawing and freezing so ruinous to wheat and other winter grains. So the Weather Bureau of the United State Department of Agriculture points out that such proverbs as "A cold April the barn will fill," and "A late spring never deceives," contain more or less truth.

There are a number of other proverbs meaning practically the same thing—that an unseasonably early growth of vegetation is likely to be injured by later freezes. "January blossoms fill no man's cellar." "March damp and warm does farmer much harm." "Thunder in March detokeneth a fruitful year." The last requires special explanation. Since a thunderstorm seldom occurs in the early spring except when a cold wave follows and breaks up a spell of mild weather, thunder in March implies cold weather to follow, and hence the prevention of the threatened too early appearance of vegetation. Ordinarily, however, although winter is one of the most conspicuous of weather phenomena, it has but little value as an indicator of coming weather, and hence has evoked very few proverbs.

The struggles of Oliver Cromwell and the Stuart kings; of the Calverts, of Baltimore, and Claiborne, the trader and pioneer; the years of enmity, intrigue and warfare, and, finally, the development of the Maryland colony and the decline of the native Indian tribes, all will be brought vividly to mind next year when Kent Island, the first spot in Maryland to be settled by white men, celebrates the three hundredth anniversary of its occupation.

The Green Hill Country Club, Salisbury, was formally opened on Wednesday of last week for the season. The opening program included a ladies and men's handicap tournament, followed by a dance in the evening.

Two big things to KNOW about GENERAL MOTORS TRUCKS

WHEN a man buys a General Motors Truck here, some very practical safeguards work for him.

1

One is STRAIGHT RATING—which tells him, exactly and in advance, what real pay-load capacity he is getting. Let him try to find that out under the old rating method which called trucks "one ton," "two ton," etc. It will pay any truck owner to know the advantages—the actual dollars-and-cents benefits—of this clear and simple new rating basis.

2

Another buyer's safeguard is our policy of NO EXCESS ALLOWANCE ON TRADE-IN. A man gets EXTRA VALUE, BUILT-IN—instead. There is no "water" in General Motors Truck prices. No list-price "padding" that robs Peter to pay Paul. This too is worth knowing about.

The truck shown is New BUICK-Powered
Type 5003—for heavier duty. 14,500 pounds STRAIGHT RATING capacity. Price, chassis only, F. O. B. Pontiac, Michigan: $2,900
