H.U. Junior Linked in 2-Year Reign of Toothpick Burglar

Lonnie L. Stillwell, Tennis Ace, Arrested at Euclid Street Home.

LOOT WORTH $25,000 REPORTED RECOVERED

Trapped Through His Own Complaint.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON — Lonnie Lewis Stillwell admitted Wednesday that he has broken into at least fifty homes during the past two years, the police department informed the AFRO Wednesday night.

More stolen goods were added to that seized in the loot from Stillwell's home, when two girls, who are students at Howard University, turned over articles to police that were either purchased or given them by Stillwell.

It was discovered when Stillwell was fingerprinted that he narrowly missed an appointment to the police force here in 1929. Stillwell, police said, passed all tests except the moral test, and was turned down by Inspector Frank S. W. Burke because of some domestic trouble he is said to have had.

WASHINGTON. — Lonnie L. Stillwell, 30, a junior at Howard University, was arrested here, this week, and charged with a series of robberies which have taken place over a period of two years.

Stillwell, whose home is in Temple, Texas, was arrested at a home in the 1000 block of Euclid

N.C. Man Seriously Hurt Trying to Board Train

Struck by a Philadelphia-bound train at Harford Road and Twentieth Street, Sunday, Herbert Moore, 24, of Shelby, N.C., is in the Johns Hopkins Hospital in a critical condition.

The man was found by policemen lying unconscious on the tracks. Taken to the hospital, he was found to have suffered internal injuries and a fractured leg.

Moore, who was identified by papers in his pocket and a slip from the Maryland Emergency Relief Commission, told police that he was attempting to board the train when injured. He is thought to have been struck about an hour before police found him.

Prelate, Called Home, Won't Come Back in Two Years

Bishop David H. Sims Must Clear Up Obligations in South Africa.

WIFE'S CHARGES WILL WAIT UNTIL 1936

Bishop's Address Severe Criticism of Native Policy.

BULLETIN

Bishop David H. Sims, ordered home by the Council of Bishops to face charges of desertion and non-support filed by his wife, Mrs. Annie Mae Williams Sims of Columbia, S.C., will not return home until 1936.

The council, getting reports that the bishop had divorced an American wife in Paris and married a former South Carolina teacher, summoned him home immediately.

It is understood that Bishop Sims has incurred church obligations which he must pay off before he can leave South Africa and that this cannot be done before 1936, when the general conference of the church will meet in New York.

(Special to the AFRO)

CAPETOWN, South Africa — Outspoken criticism of European treatment of native Africans was voiced by Bishop David H. Sims of the AME Church in an address at the Liberman Institute here, recently.

In a ringing challenge to the audience which packed the hall to overflowing, the AME prelate, speaking on "Educating the European," unburdened himself of opinions which only a non-native might express here, and which many are led to believe will place him as in disagreement with the British policy in South Africa. No bishop of the AME Church has spoken as plainly since the late Bishop H. M. Turner coined the phrase, "Africa is for the Africans."

Exploding as fallacious the belief that the non-European is satisfied with his present status Bishop Sims declared that many persons believe that a white skin automatically confers upon them every sort of superiority.

"The greatest need of the day," he said, "is the education of the Caucasian in the ideals, needs, progress, ambitions, and welfare of the Africans for the common good."

The prelate assented that the whites have technical education but lack in religious education and the education of brotherhood. The type of education fostered by the white man has spread hatred, he declared.

Gives Five Pointers

"Expose the ignorance of the white man and help him to see the need of more enlightment along lines for the general welrace was the deduction drawn.

"Dig up the worthy background of the natives and show the environment of his genesis," stated the bishop as he made his second point. He advised his hearers to be propagandists of the better qualities. This would tend to increase the "market value" of the rave was the deduction drawn.

An explosion of the various and sundry fallacious doctrines of the Caucasian relative to the non-white followed.

Some of these as pointed out by Bishop Sims were: that the natives are satisfied with their present status; that they exist purely for the benefit of the whites as servant and subject.

The Liberman Institute was offered as a demonstration of the fallacy that colored persons could not lead members of their group. Setting out that the psychology of fear plays a large part in these fallacies, Bishop Sims advised that the white man should be emancipated from the fear that the economic progress of the colored group is detrimental to him.

"No race is properly and ade-

JUDGE O'DUNNE CALLS ADES TRIAL BURLESQUE

Enough Goods Here to Stock a Store

When Lonnie Stillwell, Howard University junior, was arrested this week for the alleged theft of property valued at $25,000 in 200 different burglaries, police found a variety of goods sufficient to open up a general merchandise store.

Photograph shows a portion of the loot that was seized by detectives in the home of Stillwell last Monday night. Everything from tennis rackets to microscopes and expensive furs was found in his possession. Detectives Curtis Trammell, Thomas Sullivan, Michael Mahaney, and Thomas Sweeney are shown in the picture.

60 at One Howard Alumni Dance, 1600 at Another

WASHINGTON — Some 1,600 Howard alumni and their friends attended a dance under the auspices of the General Alumni Association at Masonic Temple, Thanksgiving night, according to Casey Jones, general secretary.

At the same time, says the statement, attendance at a local alumni function held in the campus gymnasium totalled few more than sixty, including a committee of twenty-three.

President Mordecai W. Johnson and Mrs. Johnson, of the University, were in the receiving line, at the latter, the statement adds.

Efforts of the local body to restrain the general association from giving a dance failed, it was said, when attorneys advised them that an unincorporated local group would have no standing in law by which they could secure an injunction against the incorporated general body.

According to Mr. Jones, the association cleared funds sufficient to send former Dean Kelly Miller and himself on a tour of alumni associations, including Chicago, on December 15.

Following that, the two men will visit associations in Detroit, St. Louis and Kansas City.

Another reason for the slim attendance at the local alumni's dance, it was said, was that the Student Council also staged a dance Thanksgiving night, in the dining hall. It was packed.

More Social Workers to Be Put to Work

The promise that employment will be given to colored social workers in the counties of Maryland was made at the meeting of Morgan College Pre-Social Work Class, last week, by Mrs. Christine F. Adams, white, director of training for the Maryland Emergency Relief Administration.

Mrs. Adams cited the fact that colored workers and supervisors are in the Florida counties, and she insisted that the Maryland counties need some such additions.

Other speakers at the class have been Miss Mazie F. Rappaport, white, director of social work at the Sinai Hospital, and Miss Katherine Kirwan, of the Maryland Children's Aid.

Shooting Called Accidental; Man Freed After 4 Months

William Brown, 603 N. Dallas Street, who has been held since July 28 on charges of shooting his alleged sweetheart, Miss Ella Lawson, was dismissed in the Northeastern police court, Tuesday.

At the hearing, George W. Evans, attorney, pointed out that the shooting was accidental. Miss Lawson, whom police say at first accused Brown of deliberately shooting her, testified Tuesday that she believed the revolver had been discharged accidentally.

Three Enter New City Junior Bar Association

Membership in the Junior Bar Association of Baltimore, a recently formed legal society, was granted to W. A. C. Hughes, Jr., Thurogood Marshall, and Dallas F. Nicholas, attorneys, this week.

The junior association has been founded with an eye to the improvement of legal activity in Baltimore, and is reported to be making inroads on the prospective membership of the Baltimore Bar Association, which bars colored persons.

Examination Notice

The United States Civil Service Bureau announced, this week, examinations for a position in the brass foundry at the Navy Yard in Washington.

All applications to take the examination must be in not later than December 19, and the applicants must not be under twenty or over forty.

The salary scale is $5.76 to $6.16 a day.

INTERRACIAL KIDNAPERS

Photograph shows left to right: Aubie Bragazzi, 16; Mochie Mendola, 16, and Thomas Hozaro, 19, confessed, according to police, at the Redwood City jail, to having kidnaped a white San Francisco bank teller, Wesley Strong, while playing golf. They were arrested at the San Mateo Bay toll bridge entrance when Strong leaped from the automobile shouting he was being kidnaped and was rescued by highway patrolmen. The victim is a nephew of Mrs. Salisbury Field of New York, step-daughter of Robert Louis Stevenson.

Fireworks Fly as Ades Trial Nears End

O'DUNNE QUESTIONS BAR ASSOC. MOTIVES

Judge Ulman Raps Injection of Racial Issue.

BULLETIN

The case of Bernard Ades, who faces disbarment charges for his activities made during the Euel Lee case, was taken under advisement by the Supreme Bench, Thursday, at 4 p.m. Eight judges heard the case. They are: Chief Judge Dennis, O'Dunne, Stanton, Adams, Owens, Supplee, Ulman, and Bond.

Fireworks flew fast and furious in the final hours of the disbarment proceedings against Bernard Ades brought by the Baltimore Bar Association, late Thursday, when Judge Eugene O'Dunne branded the hearing a burlesque on the legal profession, Judge Joseph Ulman flayed the introduction of race prejudice against the Jews and Joseph Brodsky, defense attorney, condemned the trial as "persecution" instead of prosecution.

These development followed each other in rapid sequence as the second day of the trial neared termination.

The first blast came when Judge Ulman, his face flushed with un-

Second Scottsboro Boy Appeals to Supreme Court

By LOUIS R. LAUTIER

WASHINGTON—A petition for a writ of certiorari to review the conviction and death sentence of Haywood Patterson in the so-called Scottsboro case was presented to the Supreme Court of the United States, Saturday.

The petition in his behalf, like the one filed in the case of Clarence Norris, who is also under sentence of death for the same crime, asks the Supreme Court to set aside the findings of Alabama courts convicting him of a criminal attack on Victoria Price, white, on the ground that his constitutional rights were violated.

The Alabama courts, it is asserted, denied Patterson's constitutional rights in refusing to quash on account of the exclusion of colored persons the indictment by the grand jury in Jackson County and the panel of the trial jury in Morgan County.

The charge is made that the state of Alabama, through its judicial and executive officers, misled counsel for Patterson seeking to assert his constitutional rights.

It is pointed out that Judge Callahan, who presided at the last trial, and Attorney General Thomas E. Knight acquiesced in the declaration that Patterson had "thirty days in which to make a motion for a new trial," that is, until December 29 last, and subsequently continuances were twice granted.

The attorney general, according to the petition, waited until February to make his move to strike the motion for a new trial, while had he made his motion in time and had been granted, there would have been plenty of time to serve the bill of exceptions.

Misled Again

"Even after February 24, when the motion for a new trial was stricken," the petition recites, "the bill of exceptions would have been prepared and filed within the ninety-day period had not the defense once more been misled — this time by the motion of the attorney-

Father Insists that Mrs. Smith's Death Was An Accident

WASHINGTON—In a prepared statement issued Wednesday, the Rev. L. Z. Johnson, Howard University professor, told the AFRO that the "news of intentional death" of his daughter, Mrs. Fern Peebles Johnson Smith, in New Britain, Conn., recently, came as a "complete surprise" to members of the family.

Pointing out that a "careful inquiry" on the part of members of his family into Mrs. Smith's death showed that she died in a "way unknown and unknowable," the Rev. Mr. Johnson said that all indications pointed to an accidental death. The verdict of the New Britain coroner was suicide.

The Rev. Mr. Johnson said in his statement:

Sunday Visit Recounted

"On Sunday, the day of the event, Mrs. Smith and her husband went to visit his parents. When he and his father left to attend to their Sunday duties at the office in which they work, Mrs. Smith remained for a while talking with the mother and the mother's niece, just arrived from New Jersey to keep house for the family during the serious illness of the mother.

"Discussing with them the duties of the household, Mrs. Smith spoke of her dread of cooking at first, but said that since she found Edward liked everything she prepared, she was growing to like it. After a few minutes of further chatting, she left for home.

"The Monday's laundry was soak in the kitchen and the vegetables for the Sunday dinner were partly prepared—everything indicating the normal routine of home life for the day and for the following week.

"In a letter to her mother, received on Saturday, she spoke of the unlikelihood of her coming to Washington for Thanksgiving and asked for a recipe for preparation of the dinner at home.

Denies Report of Quarrel

"The purported two-day quarrel between her and her husband resolves itself into the fact that there was positively no such prolonged altercation, not even a
