

808

with great loss; two days after his position being turned he retreated to Fort George, and the American Army advanced to Queenston. — In this situation it remained for nearly three weeks occasionally making a demonstration of attacking the Forts but evidently waiting for the co-operation of the Fleet from Sackett's Harbour — but this time the possession by the Army of Queenston and St. David's was a force far superior to any that we could oppose to it enabled them to follow up with impunity the same disgraceful mode of Warfare to which they have hitherto so frequently resorted, the wanton destruction of private property the Villages of Queenston and St. David's were committed to their by them and totally consumed.
Lieut. General Drummond at Fort George on the 24th, and the Enemy despairing of any co-operation from their Fleet began on the following day to retire from Queenston. Major Riall being immediately pushed forward

forward
them
by their
of the
those with
Troop
action
at the
of the
the off
the en
substa
has re
Encum
adde
to thro
of illeg
most
count
be low
peace
Inhab
to Res
The
to the little have p
to bring