Inexpensive Insecticides

Calcium arsenate and arsenate of lead are inexpensive insecticides effective as stomach poisons against chewing insects only. They are safe for use on potatoes; cucumbers, melons and on tomatoes until fruit forms; and on various young plants. Because they are poisonous to man they should not be used on broccoli, cauliflower or other leafy vegetables unless these are thoroughly washed before using. They are apt to injure the foliage of beans.

Mrs. Moore was a member of the Methodist Church and since her girl hood has been a member of the choir and until her health no longer would permit, was always in her place. Life, as we know it, dealt her many hard blows but she could always say, "I cannot see it now, but I know it is for some good'. Although she was an invalid for nearly a year and suffered greatly "she never murmured nor complained beneath the chastening rod, but in the hour of grief and pain she leaned upon her God. She had a faith that shone more brignt and clear, when tempests raged without and when in danger she knew no fear and in darkness felt no doubt.

She is survived by one son, Emerson Moore and a grandson, Allan Moore. Her younger son, Corporal James Arthur Moore was killed in England on April 18th of this year.
