ON THE SCREEN AT THE NEW LYCEUM

Lovely Carole Landis and handsome John Hubbard provide the heart-throbs, the amusing situations and the laugh-filled action in "Turnabout," the new comedy streamlined by Hal Roach

Joan Crawford and Fredric March, a new co-starring duo for the screen, score one of the sensational surprises of the year in "Susan and God," picturibzation of the Rachel Crothers' Broadway hit, comes on Monday and Tuesday, June 24 and 25 to the New Lyceum Theatre. As the social gadabout, Susan, who adopts a new social movement as a fad and attempts to convert all her friends while ignoring the tangle of her own family life, Miss Crawford wins new spurs as a dramatic actress. March, returning to the screen following his stage hit in "The American Way," turns in one of his most convincing performances as Barrie, the inebriate husband who gradually wins control of the situation.

Hal Roach's "Turnabout," comes to the New Lyceum on Wednesday and Thursday, June 26 and 27, proves to be one of the gayest and most hilarious screen comedies released in recent months. Directed by Roach himself, the new picture is beautifully staged, brilliantly directed and evpertly acted by a cast of important players.

"Turnabout," which was filmed from the best-selling novel by Thorne Smith, co-stars Carole Landis and John Hubbard in the remonatic roles, an dfeatures in the supporting cast such notables as Adolphe Menjou, Mary Astor, Willia mGargan, Donald Meek, Verree Teasdale and Margaret Roach.

The story of "Turnaobut" concerns two wealthy moderns, Tim and Sally Willows. Tim is an advertising executive, Sally a society matron. While they are complaining bitterly about their respective lots in life, they are overheard by the god Ram, who decides impulsively to give them a chance to exchange places and sexes. What ensues when this materializes provides the screen with hilarious situations, swift-moving action and crackling dialogue. A smash climax, filled with unexpected turns, brings the picture to a laugh-filled, crackling finish.

Tracing the fall of the Austrain Empire as the mighty background for the love story of a boy, a girl, and a horse, "Florian, ' spectacular filmization of the novel by Felix Salten, is the attraction coming to the New Lyceum on Friday and Saturday, June 28 and 29.

The story starts with Austria at its most opulent period and proceeds to the World War, revolution and fall of the Hapsburg dynasty and their effects on a pair of lovers and a magnificent Lippizan stallion property of Emperor Franz Josef. There are spectacular Imperial social affairs, festivals, the review of the Imperial horses in the Spanish Riding School of Vienna, contrasted with the stark drama of world cataclysm.

Robert Young, who triumphed in "Northwest Passage," adds another notable role to his list, and Helen Gilbert is persuasively dramatic as the Duchess. Irma Baronova, chief dancer of the Ballet Russe, is exotic and compellnig as the fiery sweet heart of an archduke, enacted by dashing Lee Bowman. Charles Coburn, Reginald Owen and Lucile Watson handle important roles skillfully.
