RADCLIFFE PLANS FOR CRAB INDUSTRY

Senator Radcliffe, speaking before U. S. Tariff Commission in behalf of increased duty on Japanese crabmeat.

Declaring that "the fishery resources of the Chesapeake Bay, alone if properly developed, could furnish the seafood for America," Senator George L. Radcliffe, of Maryland, pleaded before the U. S. Tariff Commission, in support of the American Crab Packers Committee's appeal for increased import duty on Japanese canned crabmeat. Senator Radcliffe is shown here addressing the commission as Hugh M. Frampton, native Eastern Shoreman and chief of counsel for the American group (arrow pointing), listens with obvious approval. The Tariff Commissioners, who now have the case under advisement, will make their report to President Roosevelt, who has authority to increase the tariff.

A ten-fold expansion of the American crabmeat industry is in prospect in event an appeal of the American Crab Packers Committee for increased import upon Japanese canned crabmeat is accorded favorable action by the U. S. Tariff Commission, Senator George L. Radcliffe, of Maryland, declared here.

Senator Radcliffe, author of a resolution directing the Tariff Commission to conduct an investigation into feasibility of levying increased duties on imported crabmeat, headed a parade of senators and representatives who appeared at a hearing to remind the commission that seafood is "a necessary and important part of our food supply in an emergency when we cannot depend upon our competitor, Japan."

Leading the delegation of interested packers was Sterling G. Harris of Beaufort, S. C., former Eastern Shore Marylander and chairman of the American Crab Packers Committee, who declared that the domestic industry "cannot survive the deadly competition caused by decreasing wholesale and retail prices of canned crab selling on the American market."

The American Crab Packers Committee is seeking a fifty-percent increase in the tariff on imported canned crabmeat, now set at fifteen percent of declared value. The increase would set the duty at twenty-two and one-half percent.

Mr. Harris pointed out that closure of his own plant at Port Royal, S. C., had been forced by "this unfair foreign competition," and asserted that the 400 persons thrown out of employment in his plant represent only a small portion of the number affected throughout the United States.

Individual Salads

One thing that is certain to be most attractive and lend a decorative air to a buffet supper is a large platter or platters of assorted individual salads. Here is a fine assortment:

SARDINE SALAD

Arrange the sardines in any pattern desired on an oblong dish on a bed of lettuce or endive. Sprinkle with a little vinegar or lemon juice. Decorate with capers, thin rounds of onion and sprigs of parsley.

GENEVA SALAD

On a bed of lettuce or endive heap three tablespoons of green peas which have been mixed with mayonnaise. Decorate this with alternate slices of tomatoes and hard boiled egg and brush all with a little mayonnaise.

SWISS SALAD

Arrange the leaves of half a lettuce around the plate and brush each with a little mayonnaise. Slice a tomatoe thinly and place each slice on a lettuce leaf. Brush over with mayonnaise, then arrange the tiny lettuce leaves in the middle and decorate with four asparagus tips in each little leaf.

SALAD EVE

Use a large round tomato. Cut off the top, about a quarter of the tomato, and scoop out the pulp. Mix this with cooked celery, cut into dice, and with raw apples, also diced. Add a little mayonnaise, and fill the tomato with this mixture. Brush a lettuce leaf with mayonnaise, arrange the tomato and decorate with a sprig of parsley.

BELGIAN SALAD

Use scallop sheels if possible. Fill these with small squares of cooked celery, cover with mayonnaise and sprinkle with red pepper. Arrange several stalks of endive around the shell, brush all with mayonnaise and place a few thin slices of pear on top.

When using cooked starch for white goods it should be cooled enough to make work easy. Much time is wasted in trying to starch cloth when it is too hot for the hands.

Hot water will soften the bristle of a brush and in time lossen the bristle backing.

ON THE SCREEN AT THE NEW LYCEUM

The Andrews Sisters in Universal's "Argentine Nights" coming on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Jan. 30, 31 and Feb. 1, to the New Lyceum.

Imagine, if you can, Frank Morgan doing a serious love scene in the voice of Clark Gable, and you'll know why "Hullabaloo," coming on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Jan. 27, 28, 29, to the New Lyceum is one of the funniest films to come out of Hollywood this season.

"Hullabaloo," from start to finish, was designed to make audiences laugh. It tells the story of an ex-vaudevillian who attempts to get a job on radio. He lands his contract and then proceeds to head straight into disaster by eliminating the commercials. The subsequent notoriety he receives brings three exwives and their respective children descending down on his head demanding back alimony. How he manages to successfully elude this scrape, and how he finally wins both fame and fortune, serves as an hour's top entertainment.

Diversified in its scope, the film present music, song and dance, and introduces several brand new personalities to motion picture audiences. These include little Leni Lynn, singer, Kay St. Germaine, popular radio star, Virginia O'Brien, dead-pan torch singer, and the great Negro tenor, Charles Holland. All of them present specialty numbers.

In the regular cast, Frank Morgan heads the festivities and does screamingly funny impersonations of many of the film great. His exwives include Billie Burke, Sara Haden and Connie Gilchrist. His children are portrayed by Virginia Grey, Miss Lynn and little Larry Nunn. The romantic interest centers about a triangle composed of Miss Grey, Dan Dailey, Jr., and Ann Morriss. Nydia Westman is responsible for many of the films laughs in a top character role. Others who contribute to the excellence of the performance include Donald Meek, Reginald Owen, Curt Bois and Barnett Parker. The film was directed by Edwin L. Marin.

Richard Arlen and Astrid Allwyn in "The Leather-Pushers" coming on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Jan. 30, 31, and Feb. 1, to the New Lyceum.

One for all—and all for one!

Holding to that code and specializing in an orginal style of comedy and nonsense which both stage and screen audiences find a sure cure for the blues, the Ritz Brothers have romped to popularity as a sort of three-ring laugh circus.

Veterans of nearly a dozen Hollywood films, the three comedians are said to have their funniest roles to date in "Argentine Nights."

The Universal musical shows on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Jan. 30th, 31st, and Feb. 1st, at the new Lyceum Theatre, co-stars the Andrews Sisters, famed song trio, and presents a brilliant cast of singers, dancers and screen favorites in top supporting roles.

For energy, originality and expressive pantomine, the Ritz Brothers have seldom been equalled. Born Harry, Al and Jimmy Joaquim at Newark, N. J., they changed their names to Ritz because their agent felt it would be easier to pronounce.

Gaining experience in separate stage careers, the boys first appeared as a trio in Earl Carroll's "Vanities." They were billed as "The Collegians" and their wide, baggy trousers and huge bow ties started a style trned among youths of the country. After success in Broadway musicals and as vaudeville headliners, they made their screen debut in 1936 in "Sing, Baby, Sing," and scored an immediate hit. All the boys sing any song and dance any step.

Calves' brains are still cheap, and many an epicure puts them on a par with expensive sweetbreads. They make a dish so delicate that only the smallest amount of vinegar is needed for flavoring.

For removing rust stains on white clothing, soak the spot with lemon juice, then cover with salt. Let stand in the sun for several hours, or, until stain disappears. Rinse thoroughly.

Cool water with a few drops of ammonia will clean matting. Hot water and strong soap will darken and yellow it.

When making a bed, if you find that the bottom sheet is short, tuck in at top and at sides, and have taut Leave no wrinkles.

When cleaning piano keys one should keep in mind that they are of bone and should be cleaned with denatured alcohol. Soap and water will turn the keys yellow.

The first step in making a bed is to straighten the mattress and mattress pad which is used for the protection of the mattress.
