DEXTEROUS FRAUD.

Through the activity and industry of Mr. Delacy, a discovery has been recently made of a dexterous fraud on the patent office, by which a patent for a most valuable invention has been obtained, to the prejudice of the real inventor. Should those concerned in committing it be prosecuted, as the public interest requires, it would be a means of guarding from similar attempts and impositions in future.

STEAM BOATS.

A patent has been recently granted, under the great seal of the United States to Nicholas J. Roosevelt, Esq. a citizen of New Jersey, as the original inventor of steam boats, as now in use.

In the hands of Mr Roosevelt, we may anticipate this invention being made generally beneficial, convinced that neither selfishness nor avarice will predominate in the exercise of the rights in him thus vested. It is said that his claim to the invention is of many years standing, and that he has lately invented a circular steam engine of simple construction and of increased force—an invention that is wholly American.

NOTICE.

Those persons who are in arrears to the subscriber for the county Levy for 1813, are hereby warned that his Deputies will proceed to enforce the payment agreeably to law, immediately.

To have neglected this measure until this time, would have betrayed a represensible partiality on the part of the Collector, as it respected others, who have long since discharged their accounts; and unless prepared to advance the deficiency thence arising from private means, it would have been highly uujust towards the creditors of the County; but this seeming indulgence was caused solely by the difficulties consequent on the approach of the British forces, and such as would now avoid compulsory process, are respectfully invited to call at the office, St. Paul's lane, without delay
