Protest Voiced Against Jim Crow at New Rochelle Pool

New Rochelle Y Is Assailed for Jim Crow Swim Meet

Stuyvesant High School Student Is Benched at Inter-City Contest.

PROTEST IS SENT BY Y OFFICIAL OF N. Y.

Natoinal Council Also to Hear Complaint.

NEW YORK—James E. Allen, school teacher, NAACP executive, and YMCA committeeman, registered protest last week with the New Rochelle YMCA, which is charged with barring a colored student of Stuyvesant High School, here, from using its swimming pool.

According to the complaint filed with the local branch of the NAACP, the Stuyvesant swimmers and the team of the New Rochelle High School were to compete in the latter city.

The meet was scheduled for the Y pool where all swimming exhibitions are held in New Rochelle. But the officials claimed that a colored boy could not enter. He had to be benched.

Act Called Un-Christian

Mr. Allen's letter, in which he promised to also register protest with the National Council of the YMCA, reads, in part, as follows:

"As a member of the executive committee of the City of New York, and member of the board of directors of the 135th Street Branch of the YMCA and chairman of the boys' work committee, I wish to register my absolute disapproval of the discriminatory policy of your branch.

"In this day and time when the YMCA can point the way towards Christian brotherhood, I feel that this ungenuine sportsmanship serves as a distinct step retrogressive.

"Our association is opposed to such a policy in principle and practice. It is un-American and un-Christian and subversive to the high ideals of the YMCA."

White Calls on Long About Mob Control

NEW YORK.—Senator Huey P. Long was called upon last week by Walter White, secretary of the N.A.A.C.P., to make good his promise to suggest ways to end lynching in his home state of Alabama.

In a telegram on the "kingfish," White referred to the lynching of Jerome Wilson at Franklinton, La., after the State Supreme Court had granted him a new trial on a charge of having slain a deputy sheriff.

Harlem May Be Allotted Low-Cost Housing Project

NEW YORK.—(ANP)—A Harlem site is being considered for the city's second low-cost housing project to be carried on with the $15,000,000 allotment from the PWA allotment to the city, it was revealed Friday.

Toll Mounts as Slum Tenements Claim Fire Victim

NEW YORK.—Fire in one of Harlem's slum tenements claimed another victim Sunday when Mrs. Mexie Byrd, 30, mother of two children, jumped to instant death from her fourth-floor apartment in West 136th Street, in order to escape flames.

Her husband, Smith Byrd, and two small children, escaped unhurt, and it is reported that firemen were prevented from rescuing Mrs. Byrd when the fierce heat impelled her to take the fatal plunge at about 2 a.m. Thirty families occupied the building.

The entire five-story apartment house, which is a stone's throw from the Harlem Hospital, was gutted through from the first floor to the roof, and onlookers on the street can now look through gaping remains of the windows and see the blue sky above.

Investigations Begun

The fire is being investigated by both the police and the departments. Officials of the latter say it appeared suspicious and the first arrivals declare that the scent of gasoline was very strong as the blaze ate its way from floor to floor.

Several deaths due to fire in Harlem's old tenements last year impressed on all citizens how run-down are the houses in which most of Black Manhattan lives. Wooden houses, frail fire escapes and other inadequate means of fire protection have been pointed out from time to time.

Herndon and Jean Newton Speak on Chicago Platform

20-Year-Old Radical Hits N.Y. Churches Closed to Scottsboro Mothers.

BANKER'S DAUGHTER TALKS FOR HUSBAND

Newton Said to Be in Jail for Marrying White.

CHICAGO (ANP.) — Angelo Herndon, the 21-year-old Cincinnati boy who has frightened the white folk down in Georgia that they contrived to place him under the menace of a 16-to-20-year sentence on the chain gang, may not have been a Communist in Georgia, but he showed Wednesday night in a speech before a local audience that he is plenty Communist outside of Georgia.

Herndon spoke to a group of mixed colors and mixed opinions in the Monumental Baptist Church. The meeting had been called under the auspices of a general committee to raise funds in behalf of Herbert and Jane Newton, the colored man and his white wife whose case created a sensation in the local courts recently.

White Wife Defends Husband

Mrs. Newton, the daughter of a prominent white banker of Grand Rapids, Mich., also spoke on the program in the interest of her husband, whose continued imprisonment in jail as the result of an eviction case is attributed to antagonism over his marriage to the white girl.

Much of Herndon's talk concerned the Scottsboro case and the affairs of the International Labor Defense. He condemned the New York ministers who have sought to force the I.L.D. out of the Scottsboro defense and charged that the ministers had taken care of the Scottsboro case and the affairs of the International Labor Defense. He condemned the New York ministers who have sought to force the I.L.D. out of the Scottsboro defense and charged that they were the same men who had denied their pulpits to the Scottsboro mothers.

Reasons Own Conviction

In discussing his own case, in which he was convicted of "inciting insurrection" following his arrest in Atlanta with communistic literature in his possession, Herdon told of efforts to force his conviction by keeping out of the jury the picture of colored men's standing together with white women.

After friends had raised his bond, Theodore Dreiser, white, celebrated author, called the governor of Georgia, asking for Herndon, to obtain the chief executive's assurance that Herndon would not be lynched when released from prison.

"The governor told Mr. Dreiser over the telephone," asserted the young Communist, that he was not lynch-n—n down here un-less they bother white women. He also informed the author that he could do more than a dozen colored men who worked in his office for him.

Vote Soviet Govt. Here

"When two professors of economics from Emory University were called to the stand to qualify as experts to testify whether I was or was not a Communist, the court ruled that economics had nothing to do with Communism, but the prosecutor, before the prospective witnesses were released, asked them if they would want their daughters to marry a Negro."

It was apparent that Herndon is either mentally low, or that he has had extensive drilling in the ideology and terminology of Communism. He spoke rapidly in a language that was strange to many of the persons who filled the hall and concluded with an appeal for membership in the International Labor Defense and the establishment of a Soviet republic in the United States.

Say Color Doomed Newtons

Herbert Newton and his wife, Jane, were evicted from their home by a Chicago court on a complaint said to have been brought on their color. The speakers at the meeting denounced the court for prohibiting a citizen from living where he chose and for the practice in the United States of enforcing illicit inter-racial relationships and condemning legal relationships.

The other speakers were: Miss Thyra Edwards, Dr. Curtis Reese, dean of Abraham Lincoln Center; Charles Newhoff, district organizer for the I.L.D.; Edward L. Doty, representing the Consolidated Trades Council and the Rev. Harold Kingsley, pastor of the Good Shepherd Congregational Church.

Kelly Miller Stands for Henry Ford and Farming

NEW YORK. (ANP)—In the January issue of the Opportunity magazine, Kelly Miller, writer, states that he can see no good in man's best chance for economic independence in history.

Mr. Miller also says that Henry Ford, of all industrialists of the present day, is the best friend of colored people.

Playing industrialists, the writer says:

"Millionaires who permit their colored barbers to play about their throats with razors, would not think of permitting them to handle anything so delicate as factory machinery."

QUERY

If, some still night, the moon should flood your street,
With that pale light which bathed our last adieu,
As you tread homeward on reluctant feet—
Restless, and vaguely malcontent, shall you
Remember such another moon drenched night,
When cool, white words, like bits of flashing steel,
Broke sharply through the stillness and the light,
To smash a dream that might one day be real?
If, suddenly, some half-forgotten phrase
Should stab your thoughts with poignant memories,
Could you forget the error of our ways,
Return, and fill the night with ecstasies?
Of course, the moon fled may not rise again—
Then you need never know it's precious pain!

DOLORES.

FLEMINGTON, N.J.

As the case of Bruno Richard Hauptmann moves swiftly along I become more certain that he is innocent or is a brute of the worst sort. No man could maintain such an outward calm unless he was sure that he had not done anything. The fact that he had part of the $50,000 in his possession does not, to my mind, prove that he is the kidnapper and I really believe that if the truth of the matter were to be ever known it would never be allowed to be printed.

The town of Flemington is getting more publicity than any of the citizens ever thought they would receive. There is nothing more that I can add to what my contemporary Roi Ottley wrote last week. However, I wonder if he has ever been present at the trials in history going on, William Allen, the alleged finder of the body of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., was able to sleep soundly and was only awakened by his own snores. Just how much Allen realizes that in every part of the world his words will be printed he does not know. The writer is not in position to say. One of the busiest men in Flemington is a colored photographer from one of the Chicago white dailies. This is the first big assignment and he is trying to make good. If there is one place in Flemington that he hasn't "shot" we have yet to see it.

The press has actually taken over the town, even the pool rooms are being used as broadcasting stations. Lowell Thomas broadcast sitting on the edge of a hot-dog counter the other night. Yes, indeed, Flemington is interesting in more ways than the case, but that is the only thing that the yokels are discussing.

* * *

Do you think that they are interested in knowing that on the 15th of February the 20 FHANGS, one of the better known women's groups in Brooklyn, are having their annual cabaret party? That the Allied Clubs of New York are giving a complimentary costume dance on the 19th, at the Rennie. Or would they be interested in knowing that the Axe-Grinders of Washington plan to toss their famous ball this year on the 22nd of March at the Lincoln Colonnade, and that as usual they are sending out the invites to the ladies only?

Also I wonder how many of them would care about the fact that the Wind Good Are We's and the Gay Northeasterners' Dance will occur the same week-end in D.C.? Or how much absolute would they do if they were told that the Jr. Debs, pardon, the Debs-About-Town, Brooklyn's young social-minded lassies, are having their first formal dance on the 21st of February? Oh! there are plenty of other things but I guess they aren't interested.

The Southernaires, radio's most famous harmony group, have been selected by Willard Robison to assist him at his Plantation Echoes broadcast. Robison's popular lads who constitute the cast of the "Robinson Crusoe, Jr." sketch series is Arthur Bruce, who plays the role of Saturday. Arthur is a student in the Frederick Douglass Junior High School and has a rating of 220 in a recent meet so much faster than anyone else that he is now the junior high school champion of the city. Arthur's mother became famous on this CBS feature he played the role of Victor in the very recent school assembly. Mrs. Marsh, the Jersey barrister, falls in and out of love faster than anyone in the cast and from all reports the boys are saying if he isn't careful he will be defending his ever suit.

Spurgeon Sparks asked Norma Thompson for his fraternity pin and got it. Almost overnight Spurgeon became a Communist and seen "Imitation of Life" has played the certificate number which is number 412. The Parasites are getting together most of the members of the cast of "Life of the Party" will be seen in a special feature dance for the Cripaus Attucks Community Council. The play goes into Harvard Hall on the night of February 14 and promises to be the only thing the cast is hoping is that they could have Vivian Vance, the star of the New York with them for the showing. Roland Jackson and John Wesley, co-owners of a local inn, are having an addition put on.

Frances Harris Anderson, of New Rochelle, thinks that marriage is just too, too divine. What has happened to little Ruth Allen of the same city? One seldom sees her. Walter (Fizzy) Hawkins is worried twice as much these dages: not only is it girl trouble but just before the holidays he suffered a hand injury that has given him no end of trouble. Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Bailey and Warren Hollings has been ailing from tooth trouble this past week.

THE SEC'Y ADDS HER TWO CENTS

Say, how come there is interest in Flemington? And why the long jump back here just to get down where they are having Court Room Trouble? Didn't you get enough of the court in '33? Oh! well, it's none of my business. I don't know whether you are aware of it or not, but one of your former friends in D.C. is blaming you for breaking up her home. Well, I'm sorry to hear that if you hadn't run a certain line in our pulpit when she was here, then her husband wouldn't have chased her out of town. So, now, along with your other accomplishments you are listed as a "home wrecker" Tsh, tsh, Tsh.

They tell me that it won't be long before Eddie Avant will know all that there is to know about the hair-dressing business. Well, I think it makes a cute business card. One of the more recent Philly marriages is heading for the rocks, but everytime it nears the shore, either he or she will steer clear. Now it merely becomes a question of time before the ship of state crashes. How-n Ernie Stokien doing with his newest loves? Or has he changed all over again? Well, I understand that the reason Warren Hollings hasn't been himself since the holidays is because he can't get over Jimmie Kingslands taking his girl out to a dance and he (Warren) didn't know she was there until he walked into the place. Brother, it floored him.

Say, which one of those Peacock lads is rushing Winnie Shearer? Winnie is wearing Bud's gold football and I think she also has the medal that Eulace won at the indoor track meet of the Columbus Council of the K. of C. games on the 5th of January. I know that she was there with him.

Say, speaking about track men having crushes, who, just who is Ben Johnson torching for? I see him around in Bainbridge Street, Brooklyn, quite a lot. Is it true that Ben Johnson is seen carrying a secret torch for someone in that same street? What a powerful tribe must live in that block. Speaking of tribes, I hear Spots of Rhythm, an instrumental quartet composed of fellows from Harlem. They use two guitars, a piano, a washboard and an eight-cylinder dinner set of spoons. Fred Douglas is the washboard man — this time it's Durham, N.C. Jimmie Yergan is still getting over being stabbed in the back on Christmas Eve.

The Red Tavern is getting most of the older crowd for nightly roundings, while the younger bunch is harder to find than you are. I think that Peggy will do the column for you next week if you're not set. Denny Meeks's wife was operated on, on Monday. Gee, that guy has some tough luck. Speaking of tough luck, Gee, I hear that Sidney Smith broke his ankle. Sidney is the boy who has to be caught on fire and ruined his bustest day for him. I'm going take Friday off and go to Philly to see the new window display. I think you'll like it. See ya 'round Sadie. GLADYS.

Jamaica Court Ousts 3 Named as Law Runners

NEW YORK.—A charge that the courthouse was "infested with parasites sucking the blood out of unfortunate defendants," made by C. Huchley Riley, of 156-22 South Street, Jamaica, resulted in the barring of three white men from the Jamaica Town Hall as law runners by Magistrate Lafred H. Hofmann, last week, and the warning they would be arrested should they return.

The three accused of soliciting attorneys were: George Toohil, Democratic politician, arrested several months ago on similar charges; William Leeman, 90-15 168th Street, Jamaica, and a man known as "John the Polack."

Riley told the magistrate that he was retained to represent Miles Elks, the "Lil' Napoleon" was cheered wildly, but he could not appeared he found another lawyer Saturday night.

When he was introduced to the three thousand frolickers following the grand march of the regaled Elks, the "Lil' Napoleon" was cheered wildly, but he could not get going on over he allowed to be printed.

Mr. Hofmann suggested that Riley make a complaint to the grievance committee of the bar association. He then made the charge about parasites. Magistrate Hofmann then related that he had attempted to clean up the situation and demanded the names of persons to whom Riley referred.

The latter then named Toohil. Two attendants were directed to find him. When he was located, Magistrate Hofmann gave him a severe lecture and ordered him out of the building on pain of further punishment. Leeman, sitting in the back of the room when named, was called by the court and given the same order. An officer brought in "John the Polack," who received a similar warning.

Political Figures Among Honored Guests.

NEW YORK.—Beaming over his recent court victory in Washington, J. Finley Wilson, grand exalted ruler of the Elks, was the center of attraction at the twenty-eighth annual ball of Monarch Lodge, held at the Rockland Palace here Saturday night.

When he was introduced to the three thousand frolickers following the grand march of the regaled Elks, the "Lil' Napoleon" was cheered wildly, but he could not appeared he found another lawyer also claiming to represent the man. That lawyer was identified as Elias Ulam, of Jamaica. Riley said Drury's wife retained him and that "women had gone ten to Drury" while he was in jail.

Demands Names

Magistrate Hofmann suggested that Riley make a complaint to the grievance committee of the bar association. He then made the charge about parasites. Magistrate Hofmann then related that he had attempted to clean up the situation and demanded the names of persons to whom Riley referred.

The latter then named Toohil. Two attendants were directed to find him. When he was located, Magistrate Hofmann gave him a severe lecture and ordered him out of the building on pain of further punishment. Leeman, sitting in the back of the room when named, was called by the court and given the same order. An officer brought in "John the Polack," who received a similar warning.

"Back Number" Budd Now Back Number in Aged Home

NEW YORK — Robert (Back Number) Budd, a Civil War veteran, is now in a home for the time had a collection of newspapers dating back to 1833, which he valued at $12,000, is now an inmate at the Home for the Aged on Wards Island.

Mr. Budd has two children, Robert, Jr., an itinerant auto mechanic, who has written 3,000 poems to his ideal lady love but has never met her, and Miss Ethel Terbert, a dancer in Harlem.

Mr. Budd's vast collection of newspapers has gone now to a tiny shed in Queens, where he lives in a tiny room, such as the Bowery flophouse, 1840-50, the illustrated London News, 1849-69; Harper's Weekly, 1863-78 and Jennie's Illustrated, 1856-71, which his son has saved.

A list of these is through most of Budd's collection twelve years ago.

Paper Brings $1,000

The highest price he ever got for a single newspaper was $1,000 for a copy of the Boston Gazette, the time Bell's telegraph was stolen. Other newspapers he has saved and preserved is a volume of the Journalist, a period from 1880 to 1888, which is a large picture of Budd, Sr., on the cover, and a volume of the Sun, entirely to "The Color Line in Newspapers" and illustrated with illustrated with pictures of early colored newspapermen and publishers.

Budd often saw Abraham Lincoln when he was in Washington, during the war and right after it. Budd and a little red-headed boy were partners in the business of watching horses at the hitching post outside Ford's Theatre.

Dixie Boys Can Tell Uncle Remus Story, but Can Not Do Hard Work

NEW YORK — That the white Southerner has suffered physically and economically through his efforts to maintain Nordic supremacy, is the opinion of Heywood Broun, distinguished white columnist, in a syndicated article last week.

Writing from "Somewhere in Georgia," Mr. Broun declared:

"Whenever the Democratic Party is in power Washington is filled with young men who can tell you awfully funny stories about Uncle Rastus and the old blind man. They are the lions at every cocktail party, for no one would want to offend a young man who can sing a funny ditty.

"They can talk and sing a little, and I'm told that they dance divinely. Of course, they can't do hard work. They are lazy. And all day long the lighter brothers and their girls pass the Ethiopians, saying, 'You belong to a race which is inferior.'"

Solon Denies Proposed Job Probe Is Aimed at Colored

WASHINGTON. — Reports that a bill introduced into Congress last Thursday by Representative John R. Mitchell, Democrat, of Cookeville, Tennessee, was designed to get rid of colored employees on the government payroll, were denied Friday by Congressman Mitchell when he reached over the telephone by an AFRO reporter.

The bill in question is H. J. Resolution 76 in which it is stated that a committee be appointed to investigate the "Negro" question, to consist of five members, to be appointed by the president of the Senate from among the members of this body, and five to be appointed by the Speaker of the House from among the membership of this body.

The purpose of the bill, as explained in the resolution, is "that the government of carrying so many "useless" employees on its payroll.

The resolution points out that messengers, janitors, doorkeepers, cloakroom attendants, carpenters, painters, artists, and so forth, who are employed in the government are being used by members of Congress and other government officials to perform "free personal service," and that many of them are doing nothing like 8 hours' "personal" service.

No Color Question

Asked whether he was hitting at the colored employees of the Capitol and the House and Senate office buildings, Congressman Mitchell declared that the question of color never entered his mind.

"The purpose of the bill was to try to save the taxpayers money and to cut down unnecessary jobs which I know exist around Capitol Hill. The taxpayers are due some consideration," the Congressman said, "and I am sure that I had any other motive is incorrect. The question of color is altogether foreign."

Mrs. Sumner Gets $70 Alimony; School Appropriations Cut

Alimony of $70 Monthly Granted to Mrs. Sumner

H.U. Psychology Professor's Wife Had Asked for $125.

CHARGES CRUELTY, "IN-LAW" TROUBLE

He Says She Is Psychopathic.

WASHINGTON—Justice Jesse C. Adkins in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, last Tuesday, awarded Mrs. Francees H. Sumner, 1120 Fairmont Street, northwest, temporary alimony of $70 a month from her husband, Francis C. Sumner, professor of psychology at Howard University.

The alimony was fixed by Justice Adkins after counsel failed to agree in the proceeding. Charles F. Canfield, attorney, representing Mrs. Sumner, asked for temporary alimony of $125 a month. George E. C. Hayes, attorney, representing Professor Sumner, proposed an allowance of $50 a month.

Wants Limited Divorce

Mrs. Sumner is suing for a limited divorce. She charges cruelty and failure to provide for her property. On two occasions he struck her and at one time he threatened to shoot her, she alleges. She also says he permitted her in-laws to interfere in their domestic affairs.

Professor Sumner maintains that his wife is "definitely psychopathic."

The couple were married in Asbury Park, N.J., August 31, 1925, according to Mrs. Sumner, they separated after she received a letter from him on June 19, last, telling her their married life was a regrettable mistake and asking her to agree to a separation.

Mr. Sumner's salary as a professor of psychology at Howard University is $4,000 a year, less a five per cent economy cut. Mrs. Sumner is unemployed.

Whites Desert 16th Street Homes as Colored Move in WASHINGTON.—Families moving into homes on Sixteenth Street, northwest, were prominent while residents on the jump.

The northern end of Sixteenth Street, for the past several years, has been known as an exclusive white residential district, in which are situated several legations and embassies of foreign governments. Recently, in the 1900 block of S Street, a Negro family moved in. A house was taken over by colored real estate agents and apartments were rented to members of the race.

Special Entrance Reported

At that time reports were rampant that the owner of the apartment house would not allow the Negroes to enter the apartments from the front entrance, requiring the use of a designated rear entrance.

To cope with this situation, the erection of a special entrance for the house, equally as palatial, was begun. A few days ago, the accommodation of colored tenants. This approach is reported to be under construction.

Edward Jones, a government employee, of Philadelphia, last week purchased a home in the 1900 block of Sixteenth Street, northwest, next door to the apartment house.

Move Came Quietly

The home, purchased through Thomas Parks, real estate broker, was formerly occupied by a white family which moved out three weeks ago. There was no public influx of colored residents in the neighborhood. The move came and a bath, and is said to have cost him $6,000.

Most of the white people who formerly lived in that section of Sixteenth Street have moved into Massachusetts Avenue, where several of the legations and embassies have also been moved.

Say, speaking about track men having crushes, who, just who is Ben Johnson torching for? I see him around in Bainbridge Street, Brooklyn, quite a lot. Is it true that Ben Johnson is seen carrying a secret torch for someone in that same street? What a powerful tribe must live in that block. Speaking of tribes, I hear Spots of Rhythm, an instrumental quartet composed of fellows from Harlem. They use two guitars, a piano, a washboard and an eight-cylinder dinner set of spoons. Fred Douglas is the washboard man — this time it's Durham, N.C. Jimmie Yergan is still getting over being stabbed in the back on Christmas Eve.

The Red Tavern is getting most of the older crowd for nightly roundings, while the younger bunch is harder to find than you are. I think that Peggy will do the column for you next week if you're not set. Denny Meeks's wife was operated on, on Monday. Gee, that guy has some tough luck. Speaking of tough luck, Gee, I hear that Sidney Smith broke his ankle. Sidney is the boy who has to be caught on fire and ruined his busiest day for him. I'm going take Friday off and go to Philly to see the new window display. I think you'll like it. See ya 'round Sadie. GLADYS.

Social Security Law Views of F. D. Are Due This Week

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt will submit his proposals for social security legislation to Congress Thursday.

The program will deal with federal supervision of state-controlled unemployment insurance, old-age pensions and medical aid systems. It will be accompanied by a 30,000 word report.

Proposals for a state-controlled security system will be in keeping with the plan sponsored by the National Congress on Unemployment and Social Insurance, which met here the first week in January. It was stated at the last session that the Congress represented at least eleven million workers, which was given as a conservative estimate, Herbert Benjamin, the secretary, said.

Recommendations will also favor employer-employee contribution, and direct relief to the states under certain conditions. The payment by employees from the payroll, is reported the opinion of the congress, which was composed of radical, liberal and conservative groups. The majority opinion was that the employee would be of more benefit to the workers if they had the money to spend from their regular wages; and that the security programs should be financed by taxing the employers and the high salaried groups.

Mate Paid Rent, but Nothing Else, Says Suing Wife

James Pinkney, Government Worker, Defendant in Divorce Plea.

SEPARATED THREE TIMES, SHE CLAIMS

Says He Dragged Her Across Floor.

WASHINGTON—A limited divorce from James D. Pinkney, a government employee, is asked by Mrs. Georgiana E. Pinkney, 914 Ninth Street, southeast. In a suit filed in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, last Saturday.

In her bill of complaint, Mrs. Pinkney charges her husband with cruelty and failure to provide for her. Her marital life, she claims, has been a series of separations.

Separated Three Times

After the third separation, which lasted a period of two and a half years, she says, she yielded to his entreaties and promises and returned to him. But her lot was no better than before, she states. He constantly abused her, cursed, threatened and otherwise ill-treated her, making her last experience with him a veritable torment.

She asserts she was obliged to look after her own needs. She says the only thing he paid was the rent.

On December 15, last, she charges, he grabbed her by the neck, dragged her across the floor and kicked her down and kicked her and reached for the poker, threatening her life all the while. She freed herself, she says, and ran from the house going to the police station for protection.

She states he was accustomed to boasting of his lady friends and charges that much of his leisure time was spent away from home.

Mr. Pinkney is employed, Mrs. Pinkney is employed at the Treasury Department and earns about $1,800 a year. She asks temporary and permanent alimony, Thurgood Marshall, an attorney, represents Mrs. Pinkney.
