CONCLUDED FROM FIRST PAGE.

be named. The proprietary [illegible] few even of those professed to be governed by duty and not by interest, have the power of resisting, Mr. Bacon determined to leave the Eastern Shore. The rector of All-Saints parish in Frederick county having died in the year 1758, Mr. Bacon was invited by the vestry and people to act as nominal curate until certain difficulties in the way of his institution as rector should be removed, when he was expected to take full charge of the parish. He was nevertheless to remain the legal incumbent of St. Peter's parish, where the Rev. Thomas Thornton, who since 1754 had been his curate, was to perform all ministerial duty. This arrangement continued until 1760, when Governor Sharpe [illegible] continues to [illegible] Reader and Mr. Thornton to officiate as curate under Mr. Bacon at St. Peter's."* In this year all impediments to his induction having been removed, he was formally presented to the living of All-Saints' parish by Lord Baltimore through Governor Sharpe. This was regarded as the most valuable living in the province, being thought to be worth one thousand pounds sterling per annum. By this act the Proprietary displayed his friendship and esteem for his "domestic chaplain." His parish now embraced a vast district of country, though there were but three places of worship according to the established form. These were remote from each other, and attendance upon them involved much labor, which Mr. Bacon was ill able to endure, owing to his physical infirmity, and his otherwise ill health. Of his career in this new field of labor little is known, for the records of the parish have disappeared. Aside from his ministerial labors, in which he had assistance, he was engaged in bringing out his great book, the superintending the issue of which may have been one of the motives, beside the handsome stipend of his parish, for his removal from Talbot, more remote from the place of printing than Frederick, and not so readily reached. As in Talbot so in Frederick he proved himself to be the friend of popular education, regarding that as the best help of religion; religion can receive, the greatest boon a true philanthropy can bestow, and the strongest defence a wise patriotism can erect. We find him in 1763 uniting with a number of his fellow citizens in securing the passage of an act entitled "an Act to establish a public school in Frederick county," and he was made one of the board of visitors appointed by this act to manage the affairs of this school, which was to be organized under the law of 1723 authorizing the establishment of free schools in each of the counties. It may not be amiss to mention the names of the other gentlemen associated with him, as some of them have acquired a historic celebrity. They were: Col. Thomas Cresap, Mr. Thomas Beattys, Mr. Nathan Magruder, Capt. Jos. Chapline, Mr. John Darnell, and Col. Samuel Beall. This school was organized, and it is believed was merged in the Frederick Academy of later years.

It may be readily believed, or rather it is impossible not to believe, that a mind as active as that of Mr. Bacon, and a heart as warm in its humane impulses could not have remained unemployed in some useful and beneficent work. Yet from 1765 when his book appeared nothing whatever is known of him farther than he was performing his duties as a faithful minister of the church. If he were inactive, this inactivity was owing to ill health for he never recovered from the insalubrious influences which operated upon him during his long residence at Dover. He died in Frederick county May 24th, 1768. Inquiry has failed to discover the place of his burial, for neither pulpit gratitude for valuable services, religious veneration for an example of a laborious and pious life in the church, nor even filial affection has erected any monument, however simple, to his memory.

Of Mr. Bacon's private life and character little is known. The letters which have been published indicate something of these. He was sociable in his disposition, and in as much as he was acceptable to the most refined people of the province his manners and conversation must have been agreeable. Nevertheless he was inclined to melancholy, not an uncommon trait in men engaged in intellectual pursuits. Of his fondness for music frequent mention has been made. He performed on the violin and violincello, and according to Mr. Callister, was a very creditable composer. There is ground for belief that he used his musical accomplishments in aid of his Charity School, by performing at public concerts in different parts of the country. It is not difficult to accept without question that estimate of his character given by Dr. Allen, who says: "He was known to have been an affectionate husband, a tender parent, a kind master and most agreeable companion. * * * As a neighbor he was ready to advise, speedy to assist, compassionate and charitable."

His wife and three daughters survived him, who returned, after his death, to Talbot. Elizabeth, his eldest daughters, went to England at the request of her uncle, who had become Sir Ant'y Bacon, of Glamorganshire, in Wales, where she married George Price Watkins, Esq., of Brecon, and afterwards inherited a very considerable fortune from her uncle. Rachel the second daughter married a kinsman, Mr. Risdon Bozman Harwood, of Talbot county, and dying left two daughters. The third daughter, Mary, married Mr. Moses Passape, of Dorchester county, of whom there are descendents living in Baltimore at this time.

The following is a complete list of the publications of which Mr. Bacon was the author:†

I. A Complete System of Revenue in Ireland. 1774. Bibliographers have not been able to trace this book. The edition of 1774 must be a reprint of one published anterior to 1737. Mr. Callister calls it a "book of rates." Mr. Bacon says of his "Abridgment" that the laws of Maryland were to be digested alphabetically under proper heads in the same manner as he formerly abridged the laws of the revenue in Ireland." This book therefore was of similar construction to the Index of Bacons Laws at large—which is really his "Abridgement."

II. Our Homage upon the great and indispensable duty of all christian masters and mistresses to bring up negro slaves slaves in the knowledge and fear of God. Preached in the parish church of St. Peter, in Talbot county in the province of Maryland, by the Rev. Thomas Bacon, Rector of the said parish—(motto of seven lines) London: Printen by John Oliver in Bartholomew Close, West Smithfield, 1750. 16° pp. 142.

III. Two Sermons—London: 1749.

IV. Six Sermons—London: 1761.

The two last are probably the same in title as the preceding (II.) and differ only in the number of sermons included, the number of pages and the dates of publication. There was a mutilated reprint of these sermons, or of some of them, with additions, issued under the direction of Rev. William Meade, as noticed in the text, and printed by John Heistill, at Winchester, Virginia. The title to this need not be given here.

V. A sermon preached at the parish church of St. Peter's in Talbot county, Maryland, on Sunday the 14th of October 1756, for the benefit of a Charity Working School, to be set up in the said parish, for the maintenance and education of orphans and other poor children and negroes by the Rev. Thos. Bacon of said parish. Published at the request of the trustees. To which is added rules and orders, partly relating to the said school. London: Printed by T. Oliver, and will be sold for the benefit of the said Charity School, 1751. 4° pp 28.

VI. Two Sermons, preached to a congregation of Black slaves at the parish church of St. P. in the province of Maryland, by an American pastor. (Motto) London: T. Oliver, 1751, 12 mo. pp. 79.

VII. Laws of Maryland at large, with proper indexes, now first collected into one compleat body and published from the original acts and records remaining in the Secretary's office of the said province. Together with notes and other matters relative to the constitution thereof, extracted from provincial records. To which is prefixed the Charter, with an English translation. By Thomas Bacon, rector of All Saints' parish in Frederick County, and Domestic Chaplain to the Right. Honourable Frederick Lord Baltimore (Seal of Province) Annapolis: Printed by Jonas Green, printer to the province. 1765—Folio—No pagination, but containing about 800 pages.

Of these publications, Nos. II. and V., are in the collection of the Diocese of Maryland; Nos. III. and IV. are in the Library of Harvard College. No. VI. is said to be in the Library of the late Rt. Rev. Bishop Hawks, of New York. No. VII. is well known in the Law Libraries of Maryland, public and private. No. 1. cannot be traced by any books of bibliography within reach. The book of Sir Anthony Bacon, is in the Library of Congress, Washington.

The authorities that have been consulted in the preparation of this paper are—1st, and chiefly Dr. Allen's memoir of Mr. Bacon in the American Quarterly Church Review and his manuscript history of St. Peter's Parish, of Talbot county; 2ndly, the Parish records; 3rdly, the County Records of Talbot; 4thly, Callister's manuscript letters; 5thly, Bacon's Sermons and Laws; 6th, Will Stevens Perry's Historical Collections—for Maryland; 7th. Mr. John B. Kerr's manuscript history of the Chamberlaine family; 8th, the files of the Maryland Gazette, in the State Library at Annapolis.

* This statement is made upon the authority of Dr. Allen; but Mr. Thornton's name appears in the registry of St. Peter's parish as Rector, on Easter Monday, Apr. 16, 1759, while the last appearance of Mr. Bacon's name is in the record of Easter Monday, March, 27, 1758.

† In the compilation of this list, the writer has been very materially assisted by I. W. Lee, Esq. Librarian to the Md. Hist. Soc.,—the very best authority in Maryland Bibliography.

Lippincott's Magazine.

Lippincott's Magazine for September opens with an agreeable and well-illustrated paper on the lage region of Florida—Ekoolah Scrul—which, lying out of the line of ordinary travel is but little known, though its natural features and scattered settlements are curious and interesting. The concluding paper of A. H. Siegfried's Canoeing on the High Mississippi describes the return voyage. A Villeggiatura in Asia, by the author of Signor Monaldini's Niece, is a charmingly written account of a summer passed in a quaint Italian town, the resort of pilgrims from every quarter and the scene of some of the most striking ceremonies and religious practices which have descended from mediæval times. Newport a Hundred Years Ago, by Frances Pierrepont Norris, is an article which calls up vividly the period when this chief among American watering-places was occupied by a French army and fleet sent to aid the cause of American independence, and was even more gay and brilliant than it is at the present day. Horse Racing in France, the first of two papers by L. Lejune, is full of details that show a familiarity with the subject in all its relations.—Fifth chapter of Studies in the Slums, by Helen Campbell, treats of Diet and its Doings. Short Studies in the Picturesque, by William Sloane Kennedy, exhibits a close observation of the choice but characteristic features of American scenery. The continuation of Adam and Eve, several short stories and poems, the Monthly Gossip, which is unusually full, and the Literature of the Day complete the number.

The September Atlantic

brings the concluding chapters of The Stillwater Tragedy, one of the most vigorous, witty and delightful novels Mr. Aldrich has yet written. Richard Grant White describes a visit to Oxford and Cambridge, which will have great interest for many readers. J. T. Trowbridge writes a charming poem on Twoscore and Ten; ana other poems, which attract all lovers of poetry, are The Perpetuity of Song, by James T. Fields, Unaware, by Maurice Thompson, Each Side the Bridge, by A. B. Street, and West Wind by Celia Thaxter. The Washington Reminiscences this time relate to the short-lived Harrison Administration. There are two political articles,—one on the Progress of the Presidential Canvass, the other on the important subject of the Political Responsibility of the Individual, by R. R. Bowker. Mark Twain contributes a characteristic story of Mrs McWilliams and the Lightning. T. S. Perry writes instructively of Sir Walter Scott. Ellen W. Olney, who has written some admirable short stories, has this month one entitled An Serieux. Mrs. Kate Garnett Wells discusses Women in Organizations. Other essays, criticisms of new books, and a bright Contributors' Club complete a thoroughly enjoyable number of this magazine.

Appleton's Journal

for September gives the first half of a paper by the Hon. P. H. Morgan (our Minister to Mexico), describing the organization of "The International Tribunals of Egypt," and showing the peculiar working of judicial institutions in that country. Judge Morgan was one of the judges of this court, and he speaks, of course, authoritatively. The paper is an exceedingly interesting one, revealing some of the customs in Egypt, and showing how that land has been plundered and wronged by the civilized world. Under the title of "Two American Divines" there is a review of the recently published biographies of Dr. Bushnell and Dr. Muhlenberg; and Dr. Coan has a review of Buchanan's collected Poems. There is the completion of the novelette, "Edge-Tools"; a paper on "The Influence of Art in Daily Life," by J. Beavington Atkinson; Leslie Stephen's essay on Sterne; an essay by Matthew Browne, entitled "From Faust to Mr. Pickwick"; a proposal for the "Aerial Exploration of the Arctic Regions"; and several other papers. In the Editor's Table is an article on the site for the coming World's Fair, to be held in New York in 1883, in which the selection of a situation on the Bay is urged, and some novel suggestions advanced. The paper ought to be read by the Commissioners and others concerned on the subject. The editor discusses other themes, mainly those suggested by the literature of the day—such as the change in the taste for poetry, and the decline of Pope's popularity, a propos of Leslie Stephen's Life of Pope; the change that has occurred in fiction, a propos of Edmond About's new romance; and the powers of the U. S. Supreme Court, suggested by Mr. Abbott's "Judge and Jury." The number is valuable and eminently readable.

TESTIMONIALS.

TUNIS' MILLS, July 16, 1880.

Messrs. W. Whitelock & Co.

Gentlemen:—We got 75½ bushels of wheat off of 28 acres on a stubble fallow, on which we used 250 pounds of your "Vegetator" to the acre, being 27 bushels per acre. Very truly, (signed) W. W. TUNIS & BRO.

KNIGHTLY FARM, July 16, 1880.

Messrs. W. Whitelock & Co.

Gentlemen:—It gives me pleasure to state that my "fallow field" of wheat upon which I had applied 245 pounds of your "Vegetator" to the acre, yielded a trifle over 30 bushels to the acre. The wheat weighed 63 pounds to the bushel.

Very truly, &c.,
(signed) ROBERT HOUGH.

DENTON, July 1, 1880.

Messrs. W. Whitelock & Co.

Gentlemen:—I can congratulate you again upon the action of your "Vegetator" on my wheat crop. From an application of 270 pounds per acre I obtained over 32½ bushels, making 2250 bushels off of 72 acres. Yours, &c.,

I have been using John Lucas & Co.'s Celebrated Enameled Ready-Mixed Paint, very extensively for the last two years and have tested it very thoroughly, and after using from eight hundred to one thousand gallons in 1879 alone, I have no hesitation in pronouncing it the best paint in the market. The following qualities make it superior to any I have ever used:

1st. It has no water in it, and can therefore be used in the coldest as well as the warmest weather.

2d. Two coats of this paint will give as much satisfaction as most other paints with three coats.

3d. One of its most desirable qualities is its uniform thickness; it is not so thin in warm weather as to be fit only for priming, nor so thick in cold weather as to not spread easily and evenly.

I have the exclusive sale of it in this county.

I have obtained the signatures of the following persons upon whose houses I have used this paint during the years 1877–78–79. (all of these houses were new and most of them finished with only two coats) and they recommend it as entirely satisfactory in solidity, brightness and durability.

Philip F. Thomas, Thomas K. Robson, Peter Stevens, Chas. T. Wrightson, W. D. Roberts & Sons, M. P. Flowers, } C. F. Eastman, J. R. Jarrell, Julius A. Johnson, Jr. Mrs J. A. W. Powell. } Builders.
