College Grad Slept in Autos, Police Charge

Mother of 2-Year-Old Babe Is Sent to St. Elizabeth's.

2 WHITES HAVE PLAN TO END WAR

Intended to Reveal It to President.

WASHINGTON — The tragic end of what promised to be a brilliant school career was unfolded in the D.C. Supreme Court here this week before Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue, white, when a 30-year-old unwed mother, a 1926 graduate of Miner Teachers' College (then Miner Normal School), was ordered committed to St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

Police said they found the young woman, Miss Hilmed Brown, wandering about the city, sleeping in basements, parked automobiles, and vacant apartments, her two-year-old baby in her arms.

Her father, James R. Brown, 1107 Nineteenth St. Northwest, testified that his daughter had studied so hard at Miner Teachers' College that, when her mother died suddenly, she lost her reason.

1936 Answer Queries

Asked whether she had anything to say, Miss Brown told the court:

"The man there (pointing to one of the psychiatrists) sits there and says that I didn't answer the questions correctly. That's not so; I did answer all the questions correctly.

"I graduated from Miner Teachers' College, and I have taught in the schools here. I did not wander around and I did not sleep in basements, and I don't want to go back to St. Elizabeth."

Officials at Miner Teachers' College stated that Miss Brown was graduated from that institution in 1926, after having made a very good record.

A checkup by officials at Franklin School showed, they said, that Miss Brown had never taught in the local schools.

War Upsets Two

The Ethiopian-Italo war crisis this week chalked up two more victims of hysteria, thousands of miles from the actual war zones.

Two white men, Tamopia S. Guk, an orthodox Russian; and Gerardo M. Tassa, 62, a Catholic, believed to be an Italian, thought they had a method of stopping the war between Italy and Ethiopia.

They thought so hard about it that they finally got the notion that each could declare himself "King of the World," or Religious Leader of the World.

They intended to tell President Roosevelt about their plan, but they didn't get that far.

In a lunacy hearing before Justice O'Donoghue, the two were ordered committed to St. Elizabeth's. Questioned in court about his plan for stopping the war, Tassa had this to say:

"The colored man don't pull very much, when other man is in the middle. I know. I've been hooked up with them. But I know how to stop the war."

All AFL Heads Not Unfair, Says Lewis

Head of Mine Union Promises to Include All Workers.

APPROVES MEET IN CHICAGO

John L. Lewis Okeys Negro Congress.

WASHINGTON. — All members of the A.F.L. Council are not unfair to colored workers, John L. Lewis and John Borphy, mine union heads who resigned recently to set up a new industrial organization movement, told a group of leaders.

Lester B. Granger, organizer of the Workers' Councils of the Urban League, and John P. Davis, executive secretary of the Joint Committee on National Recovery, talked with these A.F. of L. left-wing leaders on the matter of integrating colored workers into the new plan of industrial unionization of the A.F. of L. as outlined by Lewis after his resignation.

Asks Status

Granger, who last week talked with John Brophy, white, international representative of the United Mine Workers, who resigned from the committee of five to investigate discrimination within union ranks, discussed with him ways in which the workers' councils could be made effective in supporting the program of the committee.

"Colored leaders, it seems to me," he told the AFRO, "are making a big mistake in condemning the A.F. of L. or the executive council for its attitude toward colored workers without bearing in mind the fact that within the federation and its executive body there are liberal elements whose position on the race question is completely sound.

Can't Complain

"For instance, to pin anti-Negro label upon the entire A.F. of L. is unfair to many unions within the federation and, to several members of the executive council. Certainly, no one can complain, for instance, of the attitude of Lewis and Dubinsky."

Mr. Granger stated further that his conference with Mr. Brophy left him impressed with the fact that the task for colored workers remains unchanged by the formation of the committee for industrial organization. The committee is composed of heads of unions that are still members of the federation, he explained, and any approach made will have to be made on the basis of the A.F. of L. that is, the ground work will have to be laid in union locals and central labor unions.

Hope for Success

"The greatest hope for better understanding between colored and white workers in America lies in the success of such a program as that effected by John L. Lewis," he concluded.

Color Not Heeded in WPA Structure, Declares Dryden

State Head Avows BERC Grouping Errors Are Being Righted.

HUMAN VALUES FIRST ANXIETY

Agency Cooperation Is Commended.

That color does not enter into classification of relief clients in WPA jobs was the contention of Francis H. Dryden, administrator of the State Works Progress Administration, in a lecture at the second meeting of the Leisure Time Study Group of the Institute of Public Affairs, Wednesday in the Administration Annex Building.

The accusation which came up in the course of the question period charged that colored women on relief are immediately classified as domestics who fall in the class of unemployables and that 1600 are at present so classified. Said Edward S. Lewis of the Urban League.

Must Dope Out Solution

"As I see it the problem is one of joint responsibility. It seems to me that thinking whites and colored persons should sit down together and dope out some solution to this problem. We have the direct responsibility for the integration of these people back into society."

Mr. Dryden declared that the statement emanated from the relief agency and had not been accepted by his department. Speaking of the situation wherein the wrong classification had obtained for many on relief, Mr. Dryden declared: "We're going back over all that now and picking up those loose ends and adjusting them."

"We're not dealing in dollars," he began in opening his lecture, in which he attempted to explain the work of the Works Progress Administration, "we're dealing in human values. The program being carried on represents about one-fifth in monetary values but in human values it is greater than this."

Almost $1,000,000,000 for WPA

The manner in which the $4,000,000,000 allotment of Congress has been spent was then explained by the speaker who asserted that of the $1,200,000,000 already spent on direct relief, and $600,000,000 on the CCC and additional quantities on the federal agencies of the Department of Commerce, the WPA has something less than $1,000,000,000 for its activities.

"The WPA is responsible to the President for honest, efficient, and speedy coordination of Works Progress Programs and the removal from relief rolls of the maximum number of people in the shortest time," he went on.

"We've had wonderful cooperation from Maryland's political unit, and already 21,000 have been removed from direct relief and on to the WPA," he said.

Everyone Wants Work

"We know that the average person, black or white, wants to work, though there are, of course, exceptions to the rule," he stated. The administrator then cited an example of attempts on the part of a New York daily to discredit WPA work by showing that many of the men on these projects were not put to work at all but were allowed to idle. The use of the same means to find out about WPA work was employed by a local paper he said and facts learned were exactly opposite.

The colored leadership in the programs in Baltimore was praised by Mr. Dryden who said "I feel that we can be well proud of the program we are trying to put over."

On Speaking Terms

"We are fortunate in Maryland to be one of the States where the relief administration and the WPA administration are on speaking terms," he continued. "When you can get that co-operation between administrations you're assured a program of which you may well be proud."

The administrator sounded a familiar note when he declared that the day is past when anyone can force himself into employment without qualifications. "This applies to whites as well as colored—we must get back to the fundamentals of education. I am telling you frankly people must be equipped to take their place," he said.

WPA Aids Only Relief

The fairness of limiting WPA aid to persons who are on relief rolls was questioned by the Rev. E. W. White, who cited the sacrifices made by many people to keep off relief. "We can't employ all of the unemployed even," the speaker answered and if PWA could take more we could take more."

Taking the place of William L. Fitzgerald, who was unable to be present, Alfred Edgar Smith, administrative assistant of Federal Works Projects of Washington, D.C., presented Mr. Dryden. Gerald E. Allen, director of the Institute, who presided, was assisted by the Rev. Timothy Boddie, associate director.

Francis M. Wood, director of the schools, will discuss "A Teacher's Responsibility to the Community" at the meeting on January 13.
