BACKACHE A SIGNAL OF DISTRESS

"Every Picture Tells a Story"

Pain in the back is the kidneys' signal of distress. If this timely warning is ignored, there is grave danger of dropsy, gravel, uric poisoning, or Bright's disease.

When you have reason to suspect your kidneys, use a special kidney medicine.

Doan's Kidney Pills relieve weak, congested kidneys—cure backache—regulate the urine. Good proof in the following statement.

CONVINCING TESTIMONY

G. A. Craig, 51 Hancock St., Boston, Mass., says: "My body was constantly racked with pain. I had a dull ache in the small of my back, my feet swelled, I had dizzy spells and the urinary passages were too frequent. I was very nervous and the doctors didn't seem to understand my case. Doan's Kidney Pills brought quick relief and an ultimate cure."

Putty-Head Hard to Penetrate.

Napoleon Bonaparte once said the hardest task his artillery ever essayed was the reduction of a mud fort in Egypt. It absorbed shot and shell as the desert absorbs rain. That's why a putty-headed man discourages you. If you hit him in the side of the head with a sledge hammer you only make a dent in his skull. Then if you hit him on the other side, the second dent drives the first one out. He is capable of receiving and retaining but one dent at a time, and that on the outside. The only thing you can do to give him new impressions is to lay his head out in the sun for a hundred years, when it will harden like granite, which can be easily punctured.

ROAD and FARM IMPROVEMENT

EXPERIMENTS IN GOOD ROADS

Present Efforts May Lead to Discovery of Binding Material That Is Quite Essential.

The efforts to obtain a durable binder for road material are not without value, becauce they clearly show what to avoid, and may, by the slow process of elimination, lead to the discovery of the binding material that is so essential to road making at the present time.

There is nothing yet known in this country, nor yet in France, where a system of 18,000 miles of federal roads is under constant, scientific supervision, that will withstand the double effect of horsedrawn vehicles and pneumatic-tired motor cars. But if there is any combination that will meet these requirements, it is certain to be brought to light some day, and by just the kind of experiments made in Camden and elsewhere, says the Newark News.

In Vermont and in Massachusetts, where crushed stone is abundant, the roads that are made of good gravel appear to be giving good satisfaction. In the first place, they have the very decided merit of being much cheaper than macadam roads, and they seem to require less scientific and less costly repairing. And in addition they are not so dusty as the macadam when the latter has been subjected to heavy traffic and the wear and tear of automobiles.

Gravel roads are also said to be gaining in favor in Pennsylvania, but the difficulty is to find gravel deposits large enough to meet the requirements of extensive road building and repairing. Where good gravel can be had the contention is that the state can get better results by using it than by spending much more money for macadam. Be that as it may, those whose memories go back beyond the time of improved road building in this state remember that the roads were always fairly good in districts where gravel was abundant and was freely used.

MANURE LOADER IS USEFUL

Device Is Arranged to Take Up the Material and Hold It Until Released Into Wagon.

In describing a manure loader, invented recently by C. Elsasser of Manhattan, Kan., the Scientific American says:

The apparatus illustrated herewith in a side elevation shows the lever and connected parts in position there held when it is hauled forward to take up the load, and is for use in taking up and loading upon wagons manure or offal found in yards or corrals. A vertical frame is mounted on wheels and adapted to be hauled by a team attached to the rear vertical post of the frame, the same having a caster wheel to enable the frame to be readily turned to right and left. In front is a long beam constituting a lever which swings vertically in the frame and whose front end is provided with a fork and other devices to seize and take up manure and other material and to hold it as the lever deposits it upon a wagon. Means provide for releasing the fork and devices and for hauling out the material on the fork from the great body of material before the lever is tilted to raise the load.

Getting Into Hard Soil.

In raising a good crop it must be conceded that traction farming is far ahead of farming done with animal power. It is a well known fact and all agricultural authorities agree that deep plowing and the packing of the subsoil produce a better crop than is possible with the ordinary method of shallow plowing.

It is almost an impossibility to plow deep with horses and the common horse plow because the entire outfit is too light to get down into hard soil. On the other hand, an engine is heavy and strong enough to secure good results. At the same time it is far cheaper, to plow with an engine than it is to plow with horses.

Manuring Garden.

Any time during the winter or early spring the garden may be manured. The spring rains will dissolve richness from fertilizers and carry them down into the soil for feeding the plants next summer. If the garden is manured in winter fresh manure may be used with safety, as it will have lost much of the heat by planting time.

Germination of Seeds.

The germination of seed requires three essentials—heat, moisture and air. Therefore it is folly to put seeds in the ground until it has been warmed by the sun. Corn planting time is about the proper time for the majority of seeds.

Asparagus Fertilizer.

The best fertilizer for asparagus is rotted manure from grain-fed horses. Asparagus is a heavy feeder and will stand all the manure than can be spared.

Selection of Seed.

By a careful selection and cultivation a Kansas farmer produced 800 bushels of oats from an eight-acre field; an average by weight of 100 bushels to the acre. It is all sound and of the very highest quality.

PROVIDING HOMES FOR BIRDS

United States Department of Agriculture Is Urging People to Protect Native Songsters.

The United States department of agriculture is urging people in all parts of the country to do everything in their power to attract and protect our native song birds. In the winter this may be accomplished by feeding the birds when the land is locked in ice and snow. In spring people are urged to put up nesting boxes where the birds may make their homes and rear their young. In summer these little feathered neighbors need human protection to shield their young from the attacks of cats.

Are you going to join the ranks of the bird protectors of this land? If you are now is the time to show your loyalty to your feathered friends. Make some nesting houses and get them up at once. The song birds are here and they are beginning to look for places to build their homes. It isn't difficult to make nesting boxes. Once the birds have discovered them they will begin to collect material with which to line them and make them soft and "comfey" for their families.

Any small wooden box may be converted into a house like the one shown in the illustration. Use thin, smooth boards for the roof. Notice the board placed below the house. This is to keep the cats from climbing up to the birds' home. The other house is made by hollowing out a large tree limb and cutting a hole in it for a doorway. For blue birds make the entrance hole about the size of a quarter. If the box is intended for wrens make it smaller. When doors are larger than the sizes mentioned sparrows are apt to inhabit them. Blue birds are among the most desirable tenants and they have been known to utilize as houses tin cans, old shoes, large funnels, or any other receptacle that is nailed securely to a post or wall.

Necessity for Testing Seed.

Good seed corn is the key to getting good stands of corn. A good stand of corn is necessary to secure good yields. Owing to the wet fall of 1911 there is now much doubtful seed corn in the country.

One cannot afford to plant corn any year, much less this year, without testing. The single-ear method of testing seed corn is the only practical method.

Returns From Good Seed Bed.

There are very few farms on which additional labor expended in preparing the seed-bed would not yield handsome returns. It costs about 15 cents per acre to harrow land, and about 35 cents per acre to disk land. For $1 land can be double-disked and harrowed twice. One bushel of wheat or barley, two bushels of corn, or one-half bushel of flax, increase per acre will pay for this extra labor.

Practical Rotation.

Rotation of crops is one of the simple, practical methods of increasing the productivity of the farm and distributing labor. If you are not already practicing rotation in your farming, now is a good time to work out a systematic cropping scheme for your farm. A practical system of rotation can be worked out for every farm.

Good Roads & Farm Notes

Test your seed corn before planting.

Cold water is practically useless for removing bacteria.

The best fertilizer for the garden is rotted stable manure.

Coarse manure from the horse stable is the kind to put in the hotbed.

Good seed is one of the important factors in the production of good crops.

When rhubarb grows rank and spindling it needs thinning out and working over.

The silo correctly used will solve the question of profit from $100 an acre land.

The silo is the only safe and sure way and the cheapest way to handle the corn crop.

Generally speaking, the depth to plant should be four times the diameter of the seeds.

The common curly lettuce is the best for early use. Head lettuce is better for later sowings.

Wood ashes are alkaline and not acid in any degree, and are very good for strawberry and other fruit plants

ANCIENT JAP GARDEN

Famous Temple in Flowery Kingdom 500 Years Old.

Shrubbery Surrounding Edifice Planted Ages Ago—In This Country Trees Are Regarded as Sacred Objects.

Tokio, Japan.—The Golden Temple, one of the most famous Japanese shrines, is not only 500 years old itself, but is surrounded by a garden which also has been growing for centuries. So carefully and artistically has the work been performed that the artifices of the gardener are not very pronounced, with the noticeable exception of the great old pine tree, which grows in a court surrounded on three sides by monastery buildings.

It is trained in the shape of a junk; huli, mast and sail being perfectly reproduced. For centuries the patient priests have bent, pruned, pried, tied and propped up the limbs and twigs of this tree. And as in Japan a tree is considered chiefly for its age, form and tint, and not for use, this is venerated as a beautiful and sacred object.

In the center of the garden is a lake with pine clad shores and pine covered islets. Each tree in a Japanese garden has its special landscape name, according to its position and purpose in the combination. Pines are always used for a framework in working out a foliage design, says Country Life in America. It is symbolical of unflinching purpose, and its spiny leaves are supposed to be endowed with the power of driving demons away.

The pavilion is a three storied, unpainted wooden building, with projecting roofs and galleries. There are no nails visible, its beams and posts being jointed or fastened with wooden pegs.

It derives its name from the room in the third story whose walls and ceiling and floor in halcyon days were coated with gold; even the frames of the sliding screens, the railing of the balcony, and the small projecting rafters which form the roof of the balcony, were, as careful examination showed, covered with a lacquer of the precious metal. On top of the roof stands a bronze phoenix, or Ho-wo bird, about three feet high, with up lifted wings, an attitude of great significance.

WORLD'S OLDEST WOOD DOOR

Said to Have Been Built for Church at Rome 1,500 Years Ago—Made by Peter the Illyrian.

Rome.—The Dominican Order possesses in Rome two churches of great interest, Santa Maria Sopra Minerva in the heart of the city, and Santa Sabina on the Aventine.

The latter during the closing years of St. Dominick's life was his home and headquarters. But the church was already very ancient when he took up his abode there. According to the Rosary it was built A. D. 425, during the pontificate of St. Celestine.

Its founder is commemorated still in the original mosaic inscription dating from 431, on the western wall of the church inside the entrance. The mosaic even now is a splendid relic of a very far distant age.

Remains of the second church are to be seen in the western corridor, or cloister, where are a number of early inscriptions; on one side the original twisted columns of pavonazzetto still support the roof, on the other they have been replaced by granite. It was from a window in this cloister that women were allowed to look out upon St. Dominick's orange tree.

The entrance door of the church is so ancient that it is said to be the oldest wooden door in the world; as it dates partly from the fifth century it may be supposed to have been the original door of the church built by Peter the Illyrian.

IMMEDIATE EFFECT OF GREAT KIDNEY REMEDY IS SOON REALIZED.

According to my experience I do not consider there is anything to equal Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root for kidney affection. Twice it relieved me when I was completely helpless.

The last time I was traveling in Texas, when my kidneys became affected, and for ten days I suffered excruciating pain, accompanied with severe chills. Several years previous, having been relieved of a similar attack, I naturally sought relief as before, from Swamp-Root.

After using four of the large size bottles, I was completely restored and went on my way rejoicing and praising Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. This was three years ago, and I have had no indication of the return of the affliction. Yours very truly,

His Preference.

A distinguished eye surgeon tells a good story of his hospital days. Three other young, newly fledged oculists and himself were chatting in their quarters in the hospital when the conversation turned, as was natural in young men, upon the beauty of different colors of eyes. One championed the superior brilliancy and sparkle of the blue eye; another the depth and fire of the brown, while the third was all for the clear, cool light of the hazel. After they had exhausted their eloquence, with the usual effect of confirming themselves in their original opinions, the fourth young sawbones suddenly broke in:

"I don't care a hang about your blue eyes, or your brown eyes, or you gray eyes! Just give me sore eyes and plenty of 'em—and I'll be happy!"

All in the Same Boat.

My aunt has a beautiful parrot, which, like many others of its species, is addicted to profanity. To break the bird of this habit, my aunt would "duck" him in water every time he would swear. On an April day he had been profuse in profanity, and had received the accustomed ducking. Now, it happened that a brood of newly hatched chickens had been drenched in a shower of rain and auntie brought them into the house and placed them in the kitchen to dry, beneath the parrot, who was drying his feathers. He seemed much interested and gazed intently at the little chicks for some time, and then exclaimed:

"D——n'd little fools; been swearing, too."

PRESS OF COUNTRY PRAISED

Officers of Anti-Tuberculosis Association Acknowledge Debt in Fight Against Dread Disease.

Publicity in newspapers and magazine to the amount of 1,500,000 inches a year on tuberculosis and its prevention is being given by the press of the United States, according to an estimate issued recently by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. If all the publicity on tuberculosis given by the press of this country gathered in one paper, the National Association estimates it would make a paper of over 6,250 pages. In the last four years, during which time an active publicity campaign has been carried on, the National Association estimates that over 5,000,000 inches, or over 90 miles, of press notices on tuberculosis have been published.

"Publicity is the very heart of the educational campaign against tuberculosis," says Dr. Livingston Farrand, the executive secretary of the national association. "Largely because of the intelligent co-operation of the press has the anti-tuberculosis movement in this country been able to become, as it is, the greatest organized movement of its kind in the world. When tuberculosis shall have become a rare disease the American press may justly claim a large share in this gigantic achievement."

FACE WAS ALL BROKEN OUT

"My trouble started with a pimple on my nose, which I picked, and it rapidly spread all over my face, the eruption coming in blotches, and causing great pain and disfigurement. My face was all broken out, and Oh! so disfiguring; being a business woman, it was dreadfully embarrassing. I was doctoring for six months without any relief. Then I saw the Cuticura Soap and Ointment advertised, so I thought I would try them, which I did. After using the Cuticura Soap and one box of the wonderful Cuticura Ointment, every one of my friends noticed the improvement. I am delighted to say the blotches have all disappeared, and I am completely cured through the use of the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I take great pleasure in recommending them to all my friends." (Signed) Miss Nellie Lonergan, 813 Ninth Ave., New York City, Jan. 20, 1911.
