HOW the Champs Stand

NEW YORK. — Joe Louis, Detroit's Brown Bomber, engaged in ter fights during 1936—and won nine of them. He received his first and only defeat since he turned professional on July 4, 1934, at the hands of Max Schmeling, June 19, and evidently learned something from the experience, because he has been knocking out his subsequent opponents at the earliest possible moment. His bout with Eddie Simms, white, on December 14, was his thirty-second professional fight. Joe's 1936 record follows.

TORONTO, Canada.—Dr. Phil Edwards, interne at the Royal Victoria Hospital in Montreal, captain of Canada's 1936 Olympic track and field team, was last week unanimously selected as the initial winner of the Lou Marsh Memorial trophy by a group that included five judges.

Dr. Edwards, recently voted the most outstanding athlete in Canada during 1936—amateur or professional—by a board of judges from Halifax to Vancouver, voted the best by the A.A.U., will have his name at the top on the perpetual column now standing in the Toronto Star building.

With a record of athletic achievement covering a period of 10 years Dr. Edwards, a graduate of New York University, stands today without a peer in Canadian track and field circles. Eighteen names were listed for consideration when the judges met. Without a dissenting vote they named Dr. Edwards.

Was Twelfth Child

Edwards was born Sept. 13, 1907, at Georgetown, British Guiana, to Fiz B. Edwards and Julia M. Edwards. He was the twelfth child of thirteen children born to a prominent family.

His education began in Georgetown, British Guiana, where he attended school and college, was continued at New York University, and has been completed at McGill University, Montreal.

Today Dr. Edwards is an interne at Royal Victoria Hospital there.

Competed in 19

In 1928, Edwards first competed for Canada at Amsterdam, Holland, at the Olympic games. He made his mark there as an outstanding half-miler and a good fellow. In 1930 and 1934, he competed for British Guiana at Britain's Empire games—held first at Hamilton, Ontario, the second at London, England.

Canada's outstanding athlete of 1936, Dr. Phil Edwards of Toronto, was last week awarded the Lou E. Marsh Memorial Trophy by the five judges selected to name one person out of 18 as the top performer during the year. The trophy is a handsome marble statue, donated by Charles E. Ring, Toronto sportsman, to perpetuate the memory of the late sports editor of the Toronto Star. Herewith is shown the trophy, and Edwards in action at the right.

A Line or Two

By OLLIE STEWART

Attention, basketball correspondents: The AFRO style for basketball lineups employs three columns of figures headed as follows: G—for field goals; F—for free throws made good (not attempted), and P—for personal fouls committed. Several lineups have not been available this season, because this information was not included. Please do not use the column P for point totals—use the F column for personal fouls.

The Dominon of Canada has given the Lou Marsh Memorial award to Dr. Phil Edwards, now an interne in a Montreal hospital, because the trophy was designated as a token to the athlete in Canada who had been the most outstanding during 1936. A poll of Canadian sports writers a few weeks ago picked Edwards as the year's best. The five Lou Marsh judges concurred—and now Phil Edwards's name is the first to be engraved on the marble statue to stand permanently in the office of the Toronto Star. Canada honored itself by honoring Edwards.

The scene shifts. It is New York. The poll of the Associated Press sports writers—some 600-odd—selects Jesse Owens as the most outstanding athlete of 1936. The world hails the Ohio Flash as a clean-cut youth who had dominated the 1936 Olympics, even as he dominated collegiate track and field events.

The scene shifts again. It is Houston, Texas. The Sullivan medal is about to be awarded by the A.A.U. moguls to the athlete who has done the most during 1936 to promote true sportsmanship and has been an example worthy of emulation. The A.A.U. gentlemen—unlike the Canadian groups—do not concur with the Associated Press tabulation, and they give the medal to Glenn Morris.

America and Canada. Separated by a few lakes and woods and a sign that says: "This Is Canada," or "This Is the United States." But what a difference between the two places. Edwards is not even a Canadian, but he was captain of the Canadian Olympic track team and won a third and fifth place. Canada appreciated his efforts.

Jesse Owens Is American born. All of his people are American born. He won four gold medals in the Olympics. He was never fifth or even second. He won more gold medals than anybody else in the Olympic games; but America does not appreciate his efforts. What a difference a few lakes and woods can make.

Personally, I would like to see other schools exhibit the moral courage of Downingtown officials. I wish it were at Morgan College and Tennessee State and Tougaloo (Miss.), Howard University and everywhere. For instance, Morgan officials and students not long ago expressed a dislike for the rulings made during a football game. But has a statement been sent out from Morgan to this effect? I doubt it. Many times have I heard coaches and student groups assert that a referee or an umpire had "gypped" their team. But the Downingtown school paper is the first instance I have ever seen of an open accusation made with pride.

The coaches who believe their teams have received unfair decisions do not have to take the burden upon themselves. Why can't presidents, student councils or faculty groups or fraternities or somebody come out and say openly what everybody is whispering in corners? No officials are beasts—but they are liable to mistakes. And if they make them, there is a way to let them know it. An honest way. Downingtown has done it, as a piece from a recent Downingtown Bulletin reveals:

"The president of Storer College has written to protest an article in the November Bulletin in which the officials at the football game between Storer and Downingtown were accused of giving unfair decisions. The editors of this paper concur in the statement made. We may have said was written out of a deep-rooted conviction—and one does not take back what one honestly believes to be true.

"We here at Downingtown coaches, teachers, players and students—are of the unanimous opinion, however, that it is not the wish of the Storer conference that their officials in athletic games be partisan to Storer. They do not want to come away with the aid of referees any more than we do. There is no trip our students take which is more cherished than the one to Harpers Ferry. We are always treated with great hospitality and there is always a genuinely friendly relation between the two schools. We think they want to give us a square deal in our games in order to protect and prolong that friendship."

Westbrook Pegler says:

"In my discussion of the proposed boycott of Max Schmeling's fight with Jimmy Braddock it should be kept in mind that Schmeling is a representative of the Hitler Youth, and that the Nazi idea is the reverse of everything that is meant by the word 'Americanism.'

"In the present situation were reversed, Braddock would not be allowed to get away from Germany with his purse, but would have to return home with so many kegs of Munich beer, so many sausages of limburger, and so many fathoms of bad dogs. In dealing with any Nazi it is best to employ David Harum's version of the golden rule, which was, 'Do unto the other fellow as he would do unto you and do him fust.'"

Miner Teachers' College ran up a 72-26 count on an inexperienced Bowie Normal School quintet from Bowie, Md., Friday, in the Douglass High School gymnasium.

Tries Substitution

During the second period, Coach Harold D. Martin tried out his numerous substitutes, using three different combinations. This led the players in the scoring column with a total of 19 points.

Virginia State Upsets North Carolina, 39-27

PETERSBURG, Va.—The Virginia State College Trojans opened the current basketball season with a decisive 39 to 27 victory over the North Carolina State College Eagles, in Daniel Memorial Gymnasium here, Friday night.

Taking the lead in the first minute of play, when Lew Cundiff, Warren forward of Roanoke, Va., scored the first point of the year from the free throw line, Virginia State remained in front throughout the game. Not once did the North Carolinians threaten seriously.

Immediately following Cundiff's tie breaker, John Boriscan, Trojan center of Bridgeton, N.J., scored from the field on a fast break from a difficult angle. Cundiff followed with another free throw and "scrian added another from the field before the Eagles could get adjusted to the fast moving game which the Trojans flashed.

Henry (Red) Briscoe, the All C.I.A.A. halfback of Washington, forward on the Trojan basketball team, soon launched a scoring spree that was to earn 16 points and high scoring honors for his team.

The combined efforts of these early scorers and those of freshman substitutes, Marshall Brown of Richmond, and George Hardy of Cincinnati, Ohio, center, earned for Virginia State a lead of 19 to 0 when but four minutes of the first half remained.

A free throw by Stroud started the Eagles' scoring in the last four minutes. E. Johnson, Eagles' left forward, made a tricky field goal just before the half ended to put his team on the short end of a 19 to 3 count.

The second half for Virginia State was similar to the first, with Briscoe leading the way to the point-per-minute game, aided by Zebedee Chaney, Trojan freshman from Newport, R.I., Hardy Brown and Boriscan.

Reversal of Form

The North Carolina team showed a reversal of form in the second period, revealing consistent scoring ability for the first time, with H. Johnson and Stafford, two sharp-shooting forwards, showing the way to success the Trojans 24 to 20 for the half.

Jack Trammel Kayos Walker

NEW YORK. — The road work Jack Trammel does in training came in handy at the Rockland Palace Saturday night, enabling him to catch up with a badly-scared Al Walker in 31 seconds of the second round of their scheduled 10-round bout and stiffen him with a right to the jaw.

Commissioner Phelan was among the 4,000 fans who witnessed the quick finish to the feature event of the evening.

Walker, who is reputed to be a fairly hard puncher himself, mounted his bicycle from the very first gong, apparently frightened by the formidable stories about Trammel who is described as "the only fighter Joe Louis refuses to meet."

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—Kid Chocolate, former featherweight champion, now staging a comeback, Wednesday won his fourth victory when he knocked out Johnny Erickson of New York, in the fifth round.

Chocolate weighed 129¼, Erickson 128. The latter showed flashes of his old form in smashing his way to the clean cut kayo.

Howard Swamps North Carolina

The Howard University Bisons swamped the North Carolina Redmen, 61 to 27, in the university gym here Saturday night.

The Howard quintet, coached by Johnnie Burr, had the advantage throughout the contest and never relinquished an early lead. At the half time they had piled up a lead of 18 points.

Herbie Jones, Bison captain, and Woodey Gwathney, veteran guard, led the Hilltop scorers with 13 points each. For the visitors H. Johnson scored 11 of his team's total of 27.

Taking the ball on the tap-off, Jones sank a field goal to start the game. Teammates Gaines and Brown followed in quick succession, but this one-sided scoring was stopped by Johnson and Stafford and tied at 6 all.

Bisons Keep Lead

From this point on the Bisons led, with frequent fouls marring the score sheets. A clever zone defense prevented the Bisons from scoring for several minutes, but they finally rimmed two baskets in one minute.

Freeman then took the tap-off, Gaines scored with a well-judged single-handed l o o p brought the crowd to its feet.

Just before the half ended Taylor rode Stafford all across the free throw circle and in the charging melee against the wall, a deep cut appeared on Stafford's eye. His two shots ended the visitors' scoring for the period.

Name All-District Football Players

PHILADELPHIA. — State Athletic Commissioner Joseph H. Rainey announced Friday night that the disputed and "unfair" decision which Al Ettore, local white heavyweight, received over John Henry Lewis, world's light heavyweight champion, here Monday night in a 10-round bout in Convention Hall, would be entered on the books of the commission as a draw.

Commissioner Rainey made this announcement after calling together his colleagues on the commission, Chairman Eddie McCloskey of Johnstown, and William McClelland of Pittsburgh, both white, and insisted upon a change in the decision rendered Monday night by Joe McGuigan, referee of the fight, and Nate Lopinson, judge, both white.

Commissioner McClelland agreed with Commissioner Rainey that the decision was "gross miscarriage of justice," and now the fight has been set down officially; as a draw, instead of a victory for Ettore. McCloskey opposed the change.
