Taste is a matter of tobacco quality

We state it as our honest belief that the tobaccos used in Chesterfield are of finer quality (and hence of better taste) than in any other cigarette at the price.

Making Sales By Telephone

SOME months ago the manager of a South Bend corporation which handles Goodrich tires decided to try the telephone as an out-of-town salesman. The results were a revelation.

He talked personally to twenty-nine car owners; to eight of them he sold tires, and others promised to call at his place of business.

More than twenty-five per cent. of the prospects called were actually sold. A sales letter which would produce such results would be considered a miracle.

Why not make your telephone a productive salesman? It pays.

It doesn't cost much to telephone out-of-town and there are special reduced rates on Station-to-Station calls after 8.30 P. M.

Consult your directory or ask the operator for rates to the different points.

VALENTINES AT THE AMERICAN UNION

FED. PROHIBITION COM. HAYNES SPEAKS ON LAW ENFORCEMENT

At the Union Square Methodist Episcopal Church, Baltimore, recently, Mr. R. A. Haynes, Federal Prohibition Commissioner, delivered an address on law enforcement and among other things said:

"During the seven months since I took the oath of office of Federal Prohibition Commissioner, this administration has reorganized the Federal Enforcement agency of the United States. New plans of organization have been decided upon and put into operation; new directors have been installed in every state in the Union, having assumed full responsibility for the successful enforcement of the Volstead Act in their respective State areas; new rules and regulations have been promulgated, and with the inspiration of full confidence in the inherent patriotism of the American people this new organization is now taking good strides and is already showing excellent results.

"While it is true that we also have our own smuggling problems, we have our brewery problems, our warehouse problems, our distillery problems, our wholesalers' problems, our moonshine problems, our 'home brew' problems, yet in my judgment the most serious task we have right now is to arouse this apathetic citizen and to disillusion a lot of perfectly good people, who have been innoculated with a great mass of popular misconception and misinformation. In other words, they have been accepting, in toto, the clever, wet, unpatriotic, false propaganda that has as its object the delusion of the American people into the belief that the Prohibition law is not being enforced, and that it cannot be enforced. And today, there are in actual existence, my friends, 30 paid organizations striving night and day not only to accomplish the impossible feat of causing the repeal of the 18th amendment, but striving to accomplish these things that I have been telling you about—striving to accomplish the amendment's nullification, trying to stabilize a condition of unllification and to cause the American people to lower their standard of regard for the sanctitiy and majesty of the law.

"Observance of the law more easily becomes a custom than the breaking of the law. If it is a fact that more arrests are being made for drunkenness than some months ago, it is not because there is more drunkenness but because there is better enforcement. Lawlessness in any community will last just as long as any community will stand for it.

"The saloon brought on its own doom; so will bootlegging and other flagrant violations. No decent American community long tolerates a nuisance; a definite nuisance soon spells its own doom.

"Violators of the Prohibition Law in America today may largely be divided into two classes; the faddist drinkers, which is a temporary class; and those who have an appetite established through years of indulgence. Most of the latter class may be expected to use liquor as long as they live, either through supplies legally acquired before the Prohibition Law became effective, or by illegal means. When you hear a man talking loosely and flippantly about 'my bootlegger' he either has not thought seriously of the menace to law and order the bootlegger represents, or he has not placed a proper valuation upon the sanctity and majesty of law.

"The beginning of the operation of the Eighteenth Amendment came at a time when the United States, in common with the rest of the world, was in the maelstrom of the aftermath of war. Because of the benificence of this law no nation in the world was or is so well fortified to stand the test and the strain to which moral fibre, financial and industrial structure and governmental systems have been subjected. Inherently Americans are law-abiding. Communities with large numbers of foreigners naturally show less progress in enforcement work than those communities with fewer numbers of the foreign type. America is being weaned. The weaning period is always troublesome but necessary for the welfare of the individual."

INCOME TAX FACTS

In making out his income tax return for 1921, the average taxpayer will find a considerable saving in comparison with the amount of tax paid on the same income for 1920.

The exemptions provided by the revenue act of 1921 are 1,000 for single persons (the term including widows, widowers, divorcees, and persons separated from husband and wife by mutual agreement), $2,500 for married persons whose net income was $5,000 or less, and $2,000 for married persons whose net income was $5,000 or more. Under the revenue act of 1918 the personal exemption allowed a married person was $2,000, regardless of the amount of net income. The personal exemption allowed a married person applies also to the head of a family, man or woman who supports in one household one or more relatives by blood, marriage, or adoption.

The exemptions for dependents—a person who receives his chief support from the taxpayer and who is under 18 years of age or incapable of self-support because mentally or physically defective—is increased from $200 to $400.

The act requires that a return be filed by every single person whose net income for 1921 was $1,000 or more, every married person whose net income was $2,000 or more, and by every person —single or married—whose gross income was $5,000 or more.

The act requires that a return be filed by every single person whose net income fr 1921 was $1,000 or more , every married person whose net income was$2,000 or more, and by every person—single or married—whose gross nicome was$5,000 ormore.

The requirement to file a return of gross income of $5,000 or more regardless of net income is a new provision. Net income is gross income less certain specified deductions for business expenses, losses, bad debts, etc., which are fully explained on the forms.

Returns must be filed by married couples whose combined net income for 1921, including that of dependent minor children, equaled or exceeded $2,000, or, if the combined gross income equaled or exceeded $5,000.

The period for filing returns is from January 1 to March 15, 1922. Heavy penalties are provided for failure or "willful refusal" to file a return on time.

Forms 1040A for incimes of $5,000 and less and 1040 for incomes in excess of $5,000 may be obtained from the offices of collectors of internal revenue and branch offices. The tax may be paid in full at the time of filing the return, or in four equal installments, due on or before March 15, June 15, September 15 and December 15.

Ben Franklin liked books.

Within their covers he found wisdom—the wisdom which when put into practice, earned for him a reputation as a great American.

We observed his birthday on January 17—it having been two hundred and sixteen years since his birth at Boston.

Franklin's philosophy may be summed up in one word—THRIFT.

And the bank book is text book in the study of thrift. It was the book which Franklin heeded most because there, in black and white, was the result of his endeavors.

"Spend less than you make if you would succeed,"—said Franklin's famed "Poor Richard."

WIRELESS CONCERTS GIVEN BY BOY'S CLUB MEMBERS

A wireless concert was given not long ago by members of the Ocean County Wireless Club, for the entertainment of the Farm Bureau, at Toms River, N. J. This club which was organized by the county club agent had suceeded in getting a central receiving station installed in the courthouse. The program, which was heard by the entire audience by means of an amplifier, came from Newark, N. J. It consisted of operatic solos, orchestral selections, a speech, and the market report for the day.At 10 p. m. the audience set their watches by standard radio time given out offically from Arlington, Va., near Washington, D. C.

This central receiving station is one of the achievements the boys in the wireless club have been working toward for some months. The club was organized shortly after the United States Department of Agriculture began sending out market reports by wireless. Under the general supervision of the county club agent it has developed to a membership of 52 boys in all stages of wireless knowledge and equipment. Their original intention was merely to broadcast market reports, but it soon became evident that a central station was needed that would take high wave messages which could be relayed to those having small sets.

As the club acquired better apparatus it was able to expand its activities, and since the initial concert the boys have taken a complete wireless equipment about the county to different community meetings and given as many people as possible the thrill of hearing music that is being played miles away, and the satisfaction of receiving authoritative market information of value in the farming business.
