UP AND DOWN THE Eastern Shore

Old Hickory's Cane

Salisbury—Of the 2,000 or more Jackson Day dinners held throughout the U. S. to swell the National Democratic Committee's campaign chest it is doubtful if any gathering had a more definite link with the 7th President than the affair held here. The chairman rapped for order with a rosewood cane with a bone handle and metal tip bearing the engraving "A. J. 1829". Property of Plummer Jones, legend has it that Andrew Jackson left the cane on a Harper's Ferry, W. Va., ferry boat of which John Jones, the owner's great grandfather was operator. The cane has been handed down to the youngest son in each generaton of the Jones family.

July 1 Tags

Cambridge — Contending that the State loses thousands of dollars in gasoline tax revenues because automobile owners let their cars remain idle rather than buy license tags at such an unseasonable time of the year, Delegate Earl Bennett said he would introduce a bill at the special session of the legislature to issue tags on July 1, thus catching motorists at a time that their cars would be indispensable. Bennett figures 110,000 hitherto unused cars would be placed in service for the January-April periods.

Furloughs for 51

Snow Hill—Described as an economy measure to reimburse the State Roads Commission for Worcester County's overdraft, fifty-one roads employees have been furloughed indefinitely leaving a skeleton crew of twelve men for maintenance work. Savings effected will be applied each month against the county's overdraft according to the ruling.

Firemen Feed Flames

Denton—Their truck stuck in the mud and with it all fire-fighting equipment, Denton firemen massed around a smokehouse which formed a hazardous connecting link between the home of Walter Cannon and nearby farm buildings and pushed the shack into the flames. The fire soon burned itself out preventing a much greater loss. A tractor yanked the fire truck out of the mud.

Clean Slate for '36

Chestertown—Mayor Philip G. Wilmer has announced that Chestertown starts the year with a clean balance sheet. Two bonds of $1,000 each were paid during the year as well as another $400 obligation several years old.

Liquor Stores Must Pay

Snow Hill—The Worcester County Liquor Control Board has lost its suit against the State to avoid paying the sales tax on liquor dispensed at county-owned stores. In the eyes of the court the Board Control is a private enterprise and not exempt, Judge Linwood L. Clark ruled in Anne Arundel Circuit Court. Wicomico Counties will withdraw similiar units.

Canal at Standstill

Easton—The proposal to cut a canal from Oak Creek to Plaindealing Creek, subject of a hearing called by War Department Engineer E. J. Dent, remains a matter for the future to determine, it became apparent when Talbot's Board of County Commissioners failed to attend the hearing and declined to assist the project with county funds.

Mind-Changing Parson

Elkton—The Rev. C. A. Starkey, who recently fell out with Edward Minor, unfrocked Baptist clergyman, and washed his hands "forever" of the "marriage business", has had a change of heart and will return from his home in Plainfield, N. J., to start business "on his own hook". Other Gretna Green grist: Agnes Sakos, 20, charged she had been brought to Elkton under compulsion by "Spike" Hemlock of Chester, Pa., and denounced him while he was applying for a marriage license. Deputy Deibert advanced her bus fare to return home.

Trace Missing $3,000

Pocomoke City — Postal inspectors have traced the $3,000-in-bills shipment from Baltimore Federal Reserve Bank to the Pocomoke City National Bank as far as Wilmington. The money disappeared during Christmas week.

Trapping Rights Tested

Elkton—Marsh lands in Maryland where the tide ebbs and flows daily are not subject to private ownership, James F. Evans and Joshua Clayton, attorneys for John Lang and Reginald Brown, contended in Police Court in defense of these Elk Neck trappers against whom lessors of White Hall farm seek prosecution for trespass. The case will probably reach Cecil County Circuit Court for decision.

Dryden Promoted

Salisbury—Francis H. Dryden, Maryland WPA Administrator and once winner of Salisbury's "Man-of-theYear" award, has been named Regional WPA Director with headquarters in Philadelphia. Dryden will supervise the Federal program in Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia retaining an office in Baltimore also.

Buried On Golden Wedding Day

Federalsburg — Eagerly looking forward to the celebration with Mrs. Poole of their Golden Wedding Anniversary, Robert S. Poole died at the age of 72 at his Williamsburg home near here. Funeral services were held on what would have been the day of his 50th anniversary.

Globe Girdler To Continue

Betterton — J. Barton Scattergood, round-the-world-sailor whose yawl "The Jean of Syracuse" became ice jammed and sank off Betterton, has announced his intention of raising the craft as soon as conditions are favorable and continue his cruise.

Wins National Award

Easton—A jar of preserved pears has won for Virginia Simmons, 11-year-old member of the Royal Oak Junior 4-H Club, a first prize in a nation-wide canning contest held in Chicago.

First Bridge "Fatality"

Cambridge—A Canadian wild goose that failed to obey its leader's honk of warning became the first "fatality" at the new million-dollar Choptank Bridge when the bird flew headlong into the steel truss span. Other geese heading up the river cleared the span.

Busy Hen's Eggs Hatch Better Than "Loafer's"

A fast working hen not only lays more eggs than the loafing hen, but her eggs usually hatch better.

Hatchability, the United States Department of Agriculture has learned, is closely linked with high egg production. It found that eggs which remain in the hen's oviduct and uterus 24 to 27 hours before they are laid are more likely to hatch than those retained longer. An egg's hatching qualities apparently are affected by the hen's body temperature when they remain in the body more than 27 hours. Eggs incubated in an incubator at a temperature of 105 degrees to 107 degrees Fahrenheit, the hen's normal body temperature, seldom hatch. When kept warm by the sitting hen, eggs never reach the same temperature as the hen's body.

Lazy hens which lay, say 2 days a week often keep the eggs in the oviduct and uterus as long as 30 hours before laying them. On the other hand, the tests show hens which lay 6 days a week seldom retain the eggs more than 27 hours.

Beans, peas, beets and leeks were the only vegetables that could be found in England's markets at the time of Queen Elizabeth.

Lieut. Turpin Weds In Hawaii

Son Of J. R. E. Turpin Honeymoons At Waikiki

The marriage of Miss Virginia Gibner to Lieut. William P. Turpin, 3d, both of Schofield Barracks, Honolulu, took place in strict military style on Saturday, January 11, in the Post Chapel, at 5 o'clock.

Miss Gibner is the daughter of Col. and Mrs. R. H. Gibner, of the Medical Corps. Lieut. Turpin is the older son of Mr. J. R. E. Turpin, of "Locust Hill", Centreville.

Lieut. Turpin, a graduate of Shenandoah Valley Academy, Virginia, in 1927 and West Point Military Academy, 1931, was commissioned and assigned a Second Lieutenant to Honolulu in December, 1934. In the fall of 1935, Mr. Turpin was promoted to a First Lieutenant.

Mr. and Mrs. Turpin left for Waikiki Beach to honeymoon. In the early spring, when Lieut Turpin receives his furlough, the young couple will sail for China.

The only way any woman can remain forever young is to grow old gracefully. —W. Beran Wolfe, M. D.
