The Last Leaf.

The last leaf on the calendar! Ah me, how worn and thin this marker of the year's days has become? How its part. White wrapper if constipated, yellow if old it seems, and soon, alas, how useless it will be.

Poor old "December." All his companions, one by one, have passed away and left him here-alone. Merry BEFORE could get relief friends they were, too. Some were ble blood disease, I crowned with springtime flowers, some of dollars TRYING various remedies land with crystal rains, while fruits and and physicians, none of which did me berries and gay-colored foliage marked the stay of those joyous ones who have left him without regret for his lone Sometimes "November" paused to treatment, but very soon became cast behind her a sunny smile to warn disgusted, and decided to TRY the blood that was fast congealing to ice The effect was and snow, but she too, soon vanished truly wonderful. I and left him to die without a friend of his youth beside him.

> But, all hail to thee, "December!" Greater and more glorious than any of those who have passed bofore thee, art thou! From thee we hear the glad tidings of great joy, peace and good will. Thy crown is a never fading holy one, thy sceptre is tipped with the Star of Bethlehem; old and weary as thou art, children play about thy knees and thy passing away is made happy with laugh-

Post Office Robbery.

One of the boldest robberies ever perpetrated in Delaware occurred at the perpetrated Milford post office early last Sunday morning. Before entering the post office they had stolen a horse at Lincoln so as to make good their escape. The thieves entered the postoffice, which adjoins the National Hotel, by removing a transom. The money and stamps had been locked in a safe. Three holes were drilled in the door of the safe and powder was inserted. The fuse was then applied and the door blown off.

The door was blown with such force that it was carried across the room, and the wookwork which it struck was damaged. Persons in the hotel adjoining WE EXAMINE EYES FREE felt the shock, but not hearing a second noise, paid no attention to the matter, thinking that they might have been mistaken.

The burglars left a dark lantern and a complete set of burglars' tools in the Have you Headache? Do your eyes burn? Have postoffice. When an examination was read fine print? Have you pains in the back of your made by the postmaster he found that stamps, 200 five-cent stamps and $2 in money had been taken.
