UP AND DOWN THE Eastern Shore

Halliburton to Lecture

Salisbury — Richard Halliburton world-wide traveller whose book "The Royal Road to Romance" written while still an undergraduate at Princeton a decade ago topped best seller lists and gained him international fame, is to lecture at State Teachers' College on April 22.

Turkeys from Texas

Easton—The Jefferson Island Club, game and fishing preserve owned by high ranking government officials and members of Congress and to which President Roosevelt was a visitor last summer, may someday teem with the wildest of wild turkeys. Eight hens and four gobblers from Texas, so wild it was impossible to photograph them, have been liberated on the Eastern Bay Island.

Training for 'Graw'

Berlin—Samuel D. Riddle, Philadelphia sportsman who has a training stable near here, will have 21 two-year olds and more than 10 older horses ready for racing when Havre de Grace track opens April 13. Two daughters and four sons of mighty Man 'O War sport the Riddle silks.

"Teaching a Lesson"

Salisbury—Dynamiting of the home of Mrs. Myrtis Luffman near Wango, first laid onto warring bootleggers by Wicomico County police has now been explained as a means of "teaching a lesson" to Mrs. Luffman by the confession of Buford Luffman, 21, and Charles Garris, 24, to the crime. "Ill treatment of her stepchildren and misconduct" were the causes, the young men said. They got three years in the House of Correction.

Indifferent Shoremen

Cambridge—State Game Warden E. Lee Le'Compte, who lives here criticized Eastern Shoremen for their lack of interest in game and declared their attitude a menace to hunting in the State, in his annual report. Farmers and sportsmen in Western Maryland have taken more interest in trying to protect wild life and have aided in the establishment of feeding stations and nesting sites, Le'Compte said.

Greased Dog

Princess Anne—Unable to free Eddie Jones' large police dog when the canine chased a rat too far between a restaurant and a radio shop, police and volunteers smeared grease over as much of the dog as they could reach and he wriggled loose. It saved tearing down the building.

The Years Pile Up

North East—Living on farms just across the road from each other and further linked by a brother-sister combination, two families joined in celebrating their 59th wedding anniversaries. The celebrants are Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Armour, 82 and 80 respectively, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brickley, 84 and 77. Mr. Armour and Mrs. Brickley are brother and sister. Combined ages of both couples and their children and grandchildren total 857 years with no death in either family thus far.

Northward Trek

Salisbury—The northward trek from Florida over the Ocean Highway, praised recently by Nina Wilcox Putnam in a Saturday Evening Post article, is making Salisbury a popular overnight stand. A check-up two nights last week revealed 86 and 91 tourists representing points as far-flung as Nebraska and New York stopping here, many with expensive automobiles and liveried chauffeurs.

Strife in St. Michaels

St. Michaels—A hot municipal election was held as more than a mere possibility here when Messrs. Charles and Marion Marshall, refused a place on the ballott in the race for Town Commissioners, went to Circuit Court with a petition for a writ of mandamus and gained their point. Judges Keating and Knotts sustained their plea, ordered Supervisor of Elections George B. Taylor to enter their names. However, in the ballotting Monday the Marshalls went down to defeat.

No Cutter for Crisfield

Cirsfield—Crisfield's request for the stationing of a coast guard cutter here to combat ice-bound conditons which was filed through Senator Tydings has been denied. Rear Admiral H. T. Hamlet, Coast Guard commandant, said facilities do not permit.

Protest on Preacher

Chesapeake City—The asignment of the Rev. Ashworth Bursley of Dover to churches at Chesapeake City, Kennedyville, and Georgetown by the New Castle Presbytery will be protested by the congregations. Retention of the Rev. Benjamin F. Ferguson is sought.

Dr. Mead Named

Chestertown — Dr. Gilbert Wilcox Mead, President of Washington College, has been named by Governor Nice as Maryland's official representative at the annual conference of the American Library Association in Richmond, Va., May 11-16.

Destroyer "Trippe"

Easton—One of the 15 destroyers now being built by the U. S. Navy will be named in honor of Lieut. John Trippe, member of a well known Eastern Shore family, who distinguished himself in the attack on Tripoli in 1804.

Picks Soft Spot

Cambridge—When flames and smoke hemmed Thomas Dail in an upstairs bedroom he grabbed the feather tick off his bed, forced it through the window and jumped to the nice soft spot without injury. The fire destroyed his bungalow.

Bright Young Chemist

Greensboro—Charles J. Kibler, 20-year old son of George J. Kibler who has majored in chemistry at St. John's College meanwhile playing football and lacrosse, has been awarded a fellowship in the graduate school of chemistry at the University of Virginia.

Carves Swan in Flight

Elkton—A handsome wood carving of a life-size swan in fight by Joseph Coudon is being displayed in the Enoch Pratt Library in Baltimore. Coudon carved the bird out of a 5-ft. piece of wood, painted the base into an attractive water scene.

"Show Them No Mercy" At Stevensville

The very personable Rochelle Hudson with Cesar Romero, Bruce Cabot and Edward Norris top the cast in "Show Them No Mercy", Darrell F. Zanuck's anti-crime picture at the Stevensville Opera House on Friday and Saturday. Miss Rochelle and Edward Norris enact the young couple trapped in the cabin of a gang of murderous abductors while a nation-wide search is on for their captors.
