THE UNBALANCED WOMAN

If she is unbalanced or unseated or out of her place, what is the cause? Who is to blame? Who brought about this change? There is but one answer. Her God decreed protector is to blame. Man is wholly responsible. The federal head of the family is guilty.

Woman's place is home. Her throne is the domestic circle. She didn't leave it of her own volition. She didn't sacrifice her place voluntarily. Man is wholly responsible for the unbalanced condition of woman. He is the federal head of the family. It is his business to provide and protect. And it s his business to exercise the righteous discipline necessary to a perfect home and a good government. He has utterly faled in these last two duties. He has failed through indulgence, because of a lack of courage, a sense of responsibility, and a willingness to face his plain duty. He has practiced indulgence until he has made the woman extremely extravagant.

The average girl hates work, despises domestic responsiblity, and is criminally conspiring to avoid those high dutes.

The man has neglected to build the home, to make it attractive and magnetic. Consequently the woman has gone out into the world. Many of them because of the necessity have been forced into the trades to live. Many of them have gone out into the world because the head of the family did not perform his duty, did not make the home happy, did not regulate it. Women who have been thrown into the nerve-wracking conditions of the outer world. The strain is too great, her nerves are unbalanced condition has produced a state of extravagance, female recklessness, which is jeopardizing the whole domestic life of America. The man is wholly to blame for these wretched conditions

If fathers do not go back to their homes, and husbands do not perform their duties as federal heads of their families, the domestic life of America will suffer irreparably. The guilt of the men has unbalanced the women and has produced socail conditions which bring the blush to every cheek.

CHEMISTS DEVISE TESTS TO DETECT REMADE MILK

The increased use of remade milk and cream—that is, milk and cream made from powdered or condensed milk and sweet-cream butter—has made necessary some method by which they may be distinguished from the natural products. Such a test has been devised by chemists of the United States Department of Agriculture, and it is now possible to detect as little as 10 per cent of remade milk in a mixture with natural pasturized milk If milk powder has been used in making the mixture, the amount that can be detected will depend on the degree of heat used in its manufacture.

The test for both milk and cream is based upon the color produced when the washed curd made from them is dissolved in sodium hydroxide. When this curd soluton has stood for several hours a characteristic yellow color developes in the samples taken from the remade milk and cream or mixtures containing them; samples of the natural products or only slight mixtures do not show it.

Remade milk and cream are wholesome foods if made properly from good, natural milk, but should be sold for what they are, and this test makes it possible for food officials to determine whether or not the consumer is being deceived.

STRIKING STORY TOLD IN "HELIOTROPE"

Alice Hale (Hasdock) is being educated at a convent. As far as she knows she is an orphan. Spending a vacaton at the home of her chum Mabel Andrews, daughter of a millionaire, Alice meets Mabel's brother Jimmie, and they become engaged.

Alice's father "Helitrope Harry" Hasdock is serving a sentence in the penitentiary. Formerly a Beau Brummell among his apls, Hasdock derived his nickname from a fondness for heliotrope perfume nd from his habit of wearing a sprig of heliotrope in his button hole. Tho Alice does not know of his existence, he worships her from afar.

Consequently it comes as a crushing blow to Heliotrope "Harry" to receive from his pal, Spike Foley, a letter warning him that Mollie Hasdock, " Heliotrope's" wayward wife, is planning to blackmail Alice and her millionaire fiance wth the revelation that Alice's father is a convict. Pleading with the warden and then with Governor Mercer, "Heliotrope" secures a pardon from prison in order to protect his daughter. But first he is forced to give his word that no harm will be done to Mollie Hasdock by his hands.

Dreessing in his old time elegant style ""Heliotrope" goes to the fashionable hotel where Alice and the Andrews family are stopping and where Mollie Hasdock has followed them. By smuggling heliotrope into his wife's room and onto her table in the hotel restaurant and keeping the scent of the perfume constantly near her, "Heliotrope" apprises Mrs. Hasdock of his presence, tho unseen, and so terrifies her with the fear of his revenge that she flees from the hotel to her former boarding place.

There "Helitrope" follows. She barricades her door against him and awaits with drawn revolver. When "Heliotrope shows his face at the door, she follows him. Leading her to Spike Foley's room, "Heliotrope" with his pal for a witness allows his wife to shoot and kill him.

So Mollie Hasdock goes to prison for life and can no longer ruin Alice's happiness. "Heliotrope" keeping his word, has not laid a hand on her. Over the wedding of Alice and Jimmie he seems to hover like a benevolent spirit.

This thrilling picture will be shown at the Palace June 2 and 3 benefit of the Denton Volunteer Fire Company.

Wants Him Worse

"My husband," complained the young wife, "is so puritanical. He doesn't believe in theatres, dancing, bridge or any of the modern forms of amusement."

"Indeed," said her confidant—then soothingly, "but remember, my dear, you took him for better or worse."

"I know," was the reply, "and I can't help thinking how much better it would be if he were worse."—Boston Transcript.

EASTON HOSPITAL IN NEED OF FUNDS

Emergency Hosptal, Easton, is going in debt every week because of the large number of free patients cared for. It is true the state pays towards the maintenance of these free patients but the amount allowed per day is not enough to cover the expense. As this deficiency is being brought on by free patients from Carolne, Queen Anne and Kent counties, as well as Talbot, the directors of the hospital are going to ask the public-spirited people of the four counties to contribute a yearly sum to cover this deficiency.

The hospital has been a godsend to the people of these four counties, there being a hundred or more from the three northern counties treated every year without charge. Some idea of the work of the hospital can be gauged as follows:

During the last year 963 patients were admitted. Of these nearly one-half were free—that is, nearly 500 people from these counties were ministered to, given the best medical and surgical care, nursed and fed without without cost to themselves. The cost to the hospital was $2.96 per day for each one of them. Of this the State paid $1.76 per day. Therefor $1.20 every day has to be provided by public benefaction.

During the year 653 surgical operations were performed. Two-thirds of these, 534, were free; and for these operations, the surgeons received no pay whatever. Had they been paid at the rate which surgeons may properly charge they would have cost from $25 to $2,500 each. The really munificent contributors to the hospital are the physicians and surgeons. They are the most charitable class of men in the world.

Durng the year the total receipts from the public was $58,000. The generous people of these communities would not allow this situation to continue for a moment if they were not under the misapprehension that the state supports the hospital. It does not. It pays $1.76 a day for each patient which costs the hospital $2.96.

Moreover, the benefit of the hospital is by no means confined to the poor who are admitted free. It is no small thing for every family in these counties to know that if one from themselves is sick or injured and in need of immediate medcal or surgical skill, and needs t at once, the suierer can be taken to the hospital at ther door instead of to Baltimore or Philadelphia at many times the expense.

Beside that, the new nurses home and training school is providing for our young women a chance to learn a profession which s most honorable and which will make them useful to their fellow men.

A movement is on foot by the directors to secure a large list of patrons, with an active committee in each county who will each pledge a moderate sum annually to this most noble charity.

Do You Like Poetry? If You Don't You Will

Many people don't like poetry—or think they don't. Of course, there's a reason for what they think they think—they haven't heard or read the right kind. And yet, if you ask the man in the street to tell you the names of any six pieces of literary composition which are a possession of his memory, it will be safe to wager that four of them are poetry.

There is poetry and poetry. Some of it is mere words, full of sound and fury, signifying nothing. But there is also some poetry, which puts into catching and striking and holding verse the little happenings and mis-happenings, the daily vexations and mistakes, the faulty ideas and words and deeds, that make so great a part of this common life; which shows us our shortcomings and misdoings; which laughs at and with us over our little vanities and weaknesses. Are you going to turn a contemptuous back on the kindly criticism and the gentle satire, the homely truth, the lesson that goes straight to the point, the wit and the wisdom, the fun and the earnest—because it rhymes?

But there is a man who is a master of this kind of expression, who sees all human things in all kinds of lights and relations that escape us, and knows how to put them into verse with a snap to it.

Edmund Vance Cooke.

He sings songs for everybody, at all seasons and in all moods; always sound and wholesome, full of good, common sense, or brimming over with healthy fun; "Impertinent Poems" to prick our vanity and laugh us out of our dearest weaknesses — "Rimes to be Read" by everybody to their great pleasure and profit—tender love songs, poems for and about children, such as few poets have written or can write.

It is hard to say in which vein Mr. Cooke is at his best. You will have a chance to judge for yourself, for he will appear at the Chautauqua.

Income Tax Auditors Needed

The United States Civil Service Commission states that although a number of examinations have been held, there is still need for eligibles to fill positions of auditor and inspector under the income tax unit of the bureau of internal revenue for duty in Washngton, D. C., and in the field.

Another examination for these positions will be held June 14 throughout the United States. Entrance salaries range from $1,800 to $3,000 a year. Besides qualifying in accounting experience and practical tests, applicants must pass an oral examination to determine their personal fitness for the work. Information and blanks can be secured at all postoffices.

Ben Franklin liked books.

Within their covers he found wisdom—the wisdom which when put into practice, earned for him a reputation as a great American.

We observed his birthday on January 17—it having been two hundred and sixteen years since his birth at Boston.

Franklin's philosophy may be summed up in one word—THRIFT.

And the bank book is text book in the study of thrift. It was the book which Franklin heeded most because there, in black and white, was the result of his endeavors.

"Spend less than you make if you would succeed,"—said Franklin's famed "Poor Richard."
