UP AND DOWN THE Eastern Shore

Marlin to Smithsonian

Ocean City.—The Smithsonian institution in Washington is now in position to offer visual evidence of Ocean City's rapidly growing recognition as a deep sea fishing spot in the form of an 112-pound white marlin which Clayton Jewell caught thirty miles off shore. Jewell asked the Institution if it wanted the rare specimen and the answer was "send it right on over." The world's record for a white marlin is 152 pounds.

Battle of Straws

Salisbury.—How the Eastern Shore feels on Roosevelt vs. Landon for President will start being determined today by the medium of straw votes when the Baltimore Sun turns loose its first wave of ballots. Beginning Thursday, at the rate of 5 per cent of the registration daily, the Sun will feel the political pulse. Registered voters in each county as indicated by the ballots to be mailed: Cecil 12,875; Kent 7,589; Queen Anne's 7,818; Caroline 8,590; Talbot 9,244; Dorchester 14,005; Wicomico 15,642; Worcester 10,468; Somerset 11,932.

Last Veteran Passes

Tilghman.—Talbot County has lost its last Civil War veteran in the death here of James Lowery, 88. His wish that he could die without a long spell of sickness was gratified when he was stricken while standing in his home. Mr. Lowery saw active service in the Union Navy on the worships Minnesota, Rhode Island and Daylight. He was a boat builder and waterman until his eyesight failed.

6 Die in Crash

Conowingo.—Five persons were killed outright, another died later, and 15 were injured when a truck loaded with Negro laborers skidded in a rainstorm, crashed through a guard rail and hurtled down a 50-foot embankment along the Susquehanna River. All were Negroes, including one woman, except the driver, George Hart. The truck was enroute to Florida with the laborers who had been employed in New Jersey potato fields.

Covered Bridge to Stay

North East.—The old covered wooden bridge near Bay View, one of a rapidly vanishing type, which Salisbury wanted as a relic for its public park, will remain where it is. Cecil Countians protested its removal and the County Commissioners have agreed to assume the cost of repairs and maintenance. Salisbury tried to get it through the State Roads Commission.

More Crabs Tagged

Crisfield.—If crabs continue to follow their migratory habits as revealed last spring, local waters doubtless will be invaded by new tagged specimens next spring. The Chesapeake Biological Laboratory at Solomon's Island loosed another batch of 7,000 crabs last Saturday in Maryland, Virginia and North Carolina waters. Scientists by means of tags study migratory habits. Between Barnegat, N. J., and New River, N. C., 12,000 are to be released.

Approve Dredging Project

Crisfield.—Widening of the present channel from 75 to 100 feet, dredging of additional anchorage basin, and extension of the 9 and 6 foot anchorage basins to within 50 feet of the wooden bulkhead in the upper thoroughfare of Tangier Sound has been approved by the War Department at the request of Congressman T. Alan Goldsborough. The project will cost $26,000.
