TORTURING PAIN.

Half This Man's Sufferings Would Have Killed Many a Person, But Doan's Cured Him.

Thousands of grateful people are telling every day how Doan's Kidney Pills cured them of distressing and dangerous kidney and bladder troubles.

Yet other thousands are suffering every day from these same ills. Why? They are either very negligent or very skeptical. Neglect of kidney disorders leads to dropsy, diabetes, Bright's disease and other fatal diseases.

Sincere, honest testimony like the following should convince every skeptic. A. C. Sprague, stock dealer, of Normal, Ill., writes: "For two whole years I was doing nothing but buying medicines to cure my kidneys. I do not think that any man ever suffered as I did and lived. The pain in my back was so bad that I could not sleep at night. I could not ride a horse and sometimes was unable even to ride in a car. My condition was critical when I sent for Doan's Kidney Pills. I used three boxes and they cured me. Now I can go anywhere and do as much as anybody. I sleep well and feel no discomfort at all."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Sprague will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address: Foster-McMurray Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sold by all dealers; price, fifty cents per box.

THE SEISES DANCE.

It is Reported to Have Originated With the Apostles.

At Seville, in Spain, the dances of the "seises" are gravely reputed to have originated in the apostles having followed the example set by David and danced around our Lord after the last supper. While St. Augustine continued the dance devotional, St. Chrysostom is said to have taken part in it, and, notwithstanding a prohibitory decree of 682, it was exceedingly popular in Spain at the commencement of the seventeenth century.

During certain ceremonies the seises dance daily before the high altar of Seville cathedral in the presence of enormous crowds, including the archbishop and all the "Now," writes an eyewitness, "the dancing boys are dressed in the costume of Philip and Mary's days, with short coats, an abundance of streamers, plumed hats and white silk shoes. The organ is supplemented by a string band. The old world air and song of the seises have been compared to the music of a comic opera. After stumpy movements the castanets are used. "Now," writes an eyewitness, "the dance grows faster and more varied—a chasse croise is succeeded by a circular figure, in which the dancers follow each other round and round, swaying their bodies as they sing rhymed couplets in the soft, slovenly accent of Andalusia.

A DANGEROUS LIQUID. Hydrofluoric Acid is Most Safely Kept in Gold Bottles.

A gold bottle stood on the chemist's table. "In that bottle," he said, "my hydrofluoric acid is kept. Hydrofluoric acid is used in glass etching. The etching on glass thermometers is all done with it. It is colorless. It looks like water, but a drop of it on your hand would bore clean through to the other side like a bullet. Its inhalation is sure death.

"Hydrofluoric acid can be kept safely in gold bottles alone. Sometimes bottles of India rubber, of lead or of platinum are used. None of these, though, is as safe as gold. "Even when this acid is in a gold bottle precautions must be taken with it. It is volatile, and hence a paraffin covered plate must be clamped tight over the bottle's mouth; also the temperature of the room must not rise over 60 degrees or the gold bottle will burst. "This acid, whose sole use is in glass etching, is probably the most dangerous thing in the world to work with. The steeplejack, the lion tamer and the diver do not take their lives in their hands to half the extent the glass etcher does when, with his gold vial of hydrofluoric acid, he etches the scales of our thermometers."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

ABSURD CLOTHES. Canstic Comment on the Style of Attire Affected by Man.

"I like to feel clean," wrote George Bernard Shaw, the English dramatist, in the London "Evening Standard," "and my great idea of clothes is that they should be clean and comfortable as far as such a thing is possible in London. This, of course, excludes starch. I couldn't wear a thing which, after having been made clean and sweet, is then filled with nasty white powder, ironed into a hard paste and made altogether disgusting. To put such a garment on my person, wear it, move in it, perspire in it—horrible!

"The shiny white tubes on the wrist, the shiny black cylinder on the hand, the shiny white front to the shirt, the shiny black boot, the ruin pipe trouser leg, the japanned zinc sleeve—that is your fashionably dressed man, looking like a cold blacklead stove with asbestos fuel. The great tragedy of the average man's life is that nature refuses to conform to the cylindrical ideal, and when the marks of his knees and elbows begin to appear in his cylinders he is filled with shame."

Disraeli as a Dandy. A contemporary of Disraeli in his memoirs records his impression of that famous dandy's personal appearance: Usually he wore a slate colored velvet coat, lined with satin; purple trousers, with a gold braid down the outside seam; a scarlet waistcoat, long lace ruffles falling down to the tips of his fingers; white gloves, with brilliant rings outside them, and long black ringlets rippling down over his shoulders. When he rose in the house he wore a bottle green frock coat, with a white waistcoat, collarless, and a copious supply of gold chains.

Caution Necessary. The young man moved a little closer. She moved a little farther away. "Why are you so cold and distant this evening, Miss Plinke?" he asked. "I am not at all cold, Mr. Spoonmore," she answered, "but I am compelled to be distant. My vaccination is taking."—Chicago Tribune.

Her Strong Point. "Mrs. Whibson is a woman of strong points, isn't she?" "Well, rather. At the reception the other evening she gave me a dig with an elbow that left no doubt in my mind concerning her strength of at least one of her points."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Truth Prevails. "I hope," she remarked as she toyed with the new saltine, "he had just placed on her finger, 'this isn't a cheap imitation.'" "No," he answered frankly; "it's the most expensive imitation I could find."—Chicago News.

THE DREAMERS.

By Making Their Visions Practical They Achieved Success.

If Columbus had not dreamed of continents on the other side of the ocean to balance the lands that were known; if Cyrus W. Field had not dreamed of a cable for communicating across the ocean; if Professor Alexander G. Bell had not dreamed of the possibilities of talking across continents by the telephone; if Elias Howe had not dreamed that there was an easier way for woman to do their sewing; if Robert Fulton had not dreamed that the Clermont could sail up the Hudson, although the world doubted and ridiculed him; if all the people who have given the world a lift by emancipating it from drudgery through their dreaming and discovery of a thousand ameliorating appliances and inventions, civilization would be in its infancy today.

Oh, how much we owe to the dreamers! But all these people made their dreams practical. They reduced them to realities before they were of any use. Go on dreaming, go on building your air castles, let the imagination have free wings to soar into the unknown, but come back with something tangible. Make your dreams practical realities or they will be worthless.—Orison Swett Marden in Success Magazine.

A CURIOUS ANIMAL. The Sea Cucumber Can Part With and Replace Its Organs.

Among the curious animals which inhabit the sea are many take the holothuria, or sea cucumber, so called from its resemblance to the cucumber. When this animal is attacked by an enemy it does not stand up and fight, but by a sudden movement it ejects its teeth, stomach, digestive apparatus and nearly all its intestines and then shrivels its body up to almost nothing. When, however, the danger is past, the animal commences to replace the organs which it has voluntarily parted with, and in a short time the animal is as perfect as ever it was.

Dr. Johnson kept one in water for a long time, and one day he forgot to change the water. The creature in consequence ejected its intestines and shriveled up, but when the water was changed all its organs were reproduced in Europe, it is the favorite of the Chinese, and the fishing forms an important part of the industry of the east. Thousands of junks are annually used in fishing for trepang, as the animals are called.—London Tit-Bits.

THE SOCIAL CLIMBERS. Ever Dissatisfied Even When They Reach the Pinnacle.

In New York the dissatisfied man or woman who has achieved the full round of society and discovered its utter vanity, if he is indeed wise, may imagine if not familiar with London and Paris that in those cities exists a superior class of men and women, more intellectual and less brutal than those of whom he knows. The Chicagoan unfamiliar with New York hopes to discover in Manhattan something different from that which is to be found in the western city. The resident of Omaha perhaps thinks that if she could attain Chicago she would find her ideal society. In Hastings, Neb., doubtless there are very many who think it would be a heaven to attain social prominence in Omaha. And out on the prairie are scattered hamlets in which many socially ambitious young girls and mothers look toward Hastings as a social Mecca. It all reminds one of the translation of Omar's lines: "Till on the stilly top of heaven's stair clear and no more."—John Brisben Walker in Cosmopolitan.

Won His Bet. A hotel proprietor in Baltimore tells an amusing story, in which the main figure is an old gentleman, well known to the waiters in the hotels of the Monumental City for his aversion to the tipping system.

One evening the old gentleman, having finished his dinner, was preparing to leave the hotel when the darky who had served him bowed and said, "Thank you very much, sah."

"What the deuce are you thanking me for?" angrily demanded the old fellow. "I haven't given you anything."

"Dat's jest it, boss," responded the waiter. "I bet No. 10 50 cents dat you wouldn't tip me."—Harper's Weekly.

Rembrandt and Murillo. Through the eighteenth century Dutch painters, like those of other countries, turned to Italy for inspiration. Rembrandt's marvels of light were forgotten or condemned by ignorant critics, his portraits, that search into the souls of his subjects, despised for their "laborious, ignorant diligence." He was neglected, while Murillo continued to be abundantly admired. Now, however, Murillo is esteemed less highly, and Rembrandt has been restored to his place among the giants.—St. Nicholas.

Falling Hair. Hair nearly always begins to fall in one of two places—at the temples and where it is parted. If a new parting be given, the old one will be afforded a chance of recovering itself, provided, of course, that proper measures be employed. The chief reason for hair falling out where it is parted seems to be the strain that is brought to bear by comb and brush.

Avoid Worry. No large, generous soul was ever a worrier. Calmness, serenity, poise and power to move through life rhythmically, without jar or fret, are characteristic of greatness and true nobility.—Success Magazine.
