what we hope to accomplish during September

During this month we have devoted all of our time and efforts in acquainting the public with the important factors which enter into the purchase of a memorial. As memorialists we are trying to memorialize something more human and interesting than design, form and line. We try to learn something about our clients, about those whom they wish to commemorate, their antecedents, occupations, religions, hobbies, culture, ideals and other facts around which we can develop a memorial idea. The Newnam-made Memorial, created by designers who have mastered the technique of memorial art, becomes not a mere imitation of handwork, but rather a new, effective and efficient service for self expression, creative design and beautiful productions. A superb and convincing demonstration of all this is found in our studio this month. Join the many who are visiting our establishment this month . . . you can make a substantial saving in the purchase of any memorial on display.
