WELLER PLEASED BY JAPAN'S HOSPITALITY

United States Senator O. E. Weller, of Maryland, president of the 1881 class of the Annapolis Naval Academy before his departure from Nagaski, gave his impressions of Japan to The Japan Times as follows:

"My impressions of Japan are both pleasing and gratifying. In this I voice the sentiment of every one of our class party of fifty-six, and, 1 am sure, of Secretary of the Navy Denby and those with him. It could not be otherwise. The hospitalities and honors shown us have been boundless. The Japanese government has had us as its guests, and it has been a royal host. And the people of Japan have vied with their government in their kindness and thoughfulness. All, from Her Imperial Majesty the Empress, and the Prince Regent, to the humblest in the ranks, have united to make our visit enjoyable, epochal, and unforgettable. We shall return to America with a lasting impression not only of beautiful and historic Japan, but also of the kindness and friendliness of her people, and we earnestly believe that this feeling on their part is genuine and sincere.

"I was myself in Japan 20 years ago, and then travelled for six weeks extensively over your country. I find many changes and improvements. Japan is quick to adopt the modern methods of western civilization and to profit by the progress made in industry, commerce and in other directions, in America and in Europe. In this, she is wise and forward looking. Your large cities are beginning to follow the lines of development of ours in America. In Tokyo, I found large modern office buildings being erected, department stores, the extension of tram lines, the concentration of business in the centre of the city, enterprising newspapers, etc. Tokyo now ranks as one of the great capitals of the world, and it should have in the future a rapid and wonderful growth. The size of your banking institutions, the development of your shipping trade, the enlargement of your great industrial centres like Osaka, are most remarkable and forecast a bright future for your country.

"I have found on every hand a cordial sentiment toward our country and a desire to maintain friendly and peaceful relations with us. I am satisfied that Prime Minister Kato, Minister of Foreign Affairs Uchida, and the other statesmen now associated with them in the ministry and in the high councils of your government, favor the policy of establishing and maintaining good relations with America, and that they are determined to carry out, not only the letter, but the spirit of the treaties entered into at the conference on the limiation of armament in Washington, and for the ratification of all of which treaties I had the privilege and pleasure of voting in the United States Senate before my departure for Japan. I shall carry this message back to America with me."

Young Son Arrives

Mr. and Mrs. J. Virgil Moore, 2d street, are rejoicing over the birth of a young son about 10 o'clock Tuesday evening at the Easton Hospital. Both mother and son are reported as doing well and "daddy" has a smile all over his face which won't come off until—oh what's the use of talking about the wee sma' hours of the morning.

The superior race is superior only in its qualifications to serve the less developed races. That is the only reason for superiority anywhere. When dominance is used for selfish exploitation, it brings its own troubles on its head. —Ford
