ARMSTRONG HIGH DEFEATS DUNBAR QUINTET, 33-29

WASHINGTON

Armstrong High School's aspiring quintet, which at the outset of the season was conceded only a slim chance of winning the coveted city championship, was established a definite favorite to cop the title Monday by snatching a 33-29 victory from Dunbar in the latter's gym.

Not only did the win put the Generals in the van for the local diadem, but in addition placed them atop the heap of the South Atlantic conference scramble.

Led by Felton

Led by lanky Clif Felton, who had his early scholastic court experience at Dunbar then transferred to the technical institution, the Generals came from behind to win the fray in the final three minutes of play.

It was Felton who sent the Orange and Blue to the front to stay with an overhand stringer from near the foul line — erasing the narrow one-point margin the Poets had enjoyed for the majority of the final quarter.

In final analysis, however, it was Armstrong's teamwork which spelled the difference between the aggregations as the Poets depended too much upon the individual efforts of Johnny Luck and Ted Bundy, and when Luck and Bundy failed to register the Poets just didn't click.

They might have been more successful if they had capitalized on a few of their foul shots. They scored but one throughout the contest and missed a half-dozen in the last period.
