Is free to roll of pleasures sought
When love a sill and friends forsake,
There is no will, no stream, no lake.

KNIGHTHOOD DEPARTMENT

Rudolph Johnson, clarinet artist, was presented by the Crisis Committee at the Harlem Art Center, Monday. The committee, headed by Miss Lucille Armstead, is presenting a forum each week in order that such artists and outstanding race leaders might be brought before the public.

Mrs. Vivian Carter Mason, who for several years now has been a prominent figure in Emergency Relief Bureaus in Harlem, stands third on the eligibility list for permanent appointment to the city welfare staff as a result of a recent competitive examination for administrators, in which nearly a hundred participated.

Again the Rose McClandon Players have taken the spotlight after their return performance of "Goodbye Again," at P.S. 136, last week.

The YWCA was a busy place last Thursday and Friday nights, for the Mardi-Gras was in town. Everybody, it seemed, from six to sixty was there.

Saw Edith Nazrey, who everyone thought had deserted New York completely, looking fine after her sojourn in Springfield, Mass.

Billy Peiper was ball-and-chaining it very conspicuously with Osma Duffus.

The House of Terror, as usual, had its thrills, but what thrill does one get unless he is operating one of the terrible devices? Harry Henson can support me thoroughly in this respect.

Bea Gibbs shyly confessed that her heartbeat was Gary Bowser; and was certain that it wouldn't get in the AFRO.

Pete Corbett, as usual, raving about his new love, Dolores Greene, who lives in that swanky penthouse on Fifth Avenue.

Ceola Hurry Forrest, an old college "sister," long-distanced from Detroit the other night and says that married life is simply delightful.

Mary Sue Fountain has announced her engagement to Jersey City's George Jones and is very happy about the whole thing.

And speaking of engagements, William Piggott and Ruby Sellers in Brooklyn say that it won't be long now.

Vincent Edwards and Cecelia Torres decided to call it quits before it was too late.

Christmas will soon be here, and so will Cecie Lester from Buffalo, to show some of the Gotham lads what the Queen City has in feminine appeal.

QUEEN-OF-THE-WEEK DEPARTMENT

Coming pretty near home in selecting this week's Queen, but think she deserves a little consideration in this space.

Ida Hemphill was born in the Bronx, but has spent most of her life in Jamaica. She finished P.S. 16, and completed a business course at Jamaica High School. Her chief ambition is to be an expert stenographer, but not the movie type.

She stands 5 feet 4 inches above the ground in her stocking feet and weighs 123 pounds. Her hair is brown, and so are her eyes, and she has an enviable light brown complexion.

Her chief scholastic activities were divided between baseball and basketball, and she showed voice talent in her appearances with the choral club.

Dancing is her favorite pastime, especially when Jimmie Lanceford is playing, and "Marjie" is her favorite piece.

Black and maroon are her favorite colors.

At present, Ida is working as a stenographer, and lives at home with her parents. Harlem has always fascinated her and she spends many hours each week making the rounds.

She likes nice perfume and expresses her good taste for clothes in her dress.

Although she would like to be a career woman, she hopes to

Yule-Bug-Bitten Natives Catch Charity Infection

with LULA JONES GARRETT

Despite the fact that this column has gained a reputation for gadding more about the bright spots than about stained-glass windows; for peeping in on more dances than revivals; and for snooping on what Mrs. Lillie Jackson of the NAACP calls "folks' insides," it actually has a softer side.

Admitting that it's only during the Christmas season, or after a bite from the Yule bug that the old eyes glisten with tenderness and the hear throbs with solicitude, I've nevertheless been out and about the more charitable of the town's natives, and find that sweet charity, just now, is giving the civic-minded a terrific run-around.

It was with tears of compassion in her eyes that Mrs. Gordon Taylor, this week, posted the last of a toughly-gathered $600 to Mrs. Mary Tish, missionary to Africa, who will return to the States for rest and recuperation from a fever which took her husband, the Rev. Mr. Tish, some months back. Mrs. Taylor, with the aid of the Baptist ministers, the ministers' wives and interested friends, has been gathering dimes here and dollars there to secure the much needed funds for the missionary. Incidentally one of the three Tish offsprings, born in Africa, is to be adopted by the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Butler. The

Then there is Mrs. Emma Finks, who for weeks has been indulging her talents for concocting cookies, candies and cakes, which she sells and turns the money into food to fill baskets for needy families at Christmas.

And Sarah Fernandis Diggs will be back from her rest in Atlantic City to carry on the pet charity of her husband, the late Josiah Diggs, who for years provided some twenty odd families with their Christmas dinners.

Frances Murphy is out gathering pennies to buy books and toys for the little boys at Henryton, because, she says, the girls there are usually provided with playthings for Christmas, but the little men are generally forgotten.

And it's also smart for the younger set to bestir themselves with some charitable impulse about mistle-toe hanging time. That newest aggregation, the BUGS, will have a Christmas party for crippled children, and of course, there is the annual party for under-privileged children at the Community House by the Association for the Handicapped.

There are gangs of social clubs, one of the oldest being the Maccolas, who distribute baskets Christmas Eve morning. And no end of Baltimore teachers set aside a part of that November check to buy candies for their Christmas parties for their kid-day of school before the holiday.

Sheldon Hoskins, Baltimore's premier dancing exponent, has been, since Monday, ensconsced in Provident Hospital. Mrs. William Fitzgerald is greaky improved, but must remain at Freedmen's for a bit longer. She had an operation there Saturday a week ago. Her daughter, Jessie, who came down from Wellsley to be here during the operation, has returned to college. Elizabeth Siphas Johnson of Washington, has been for a week at St. Elizabeth's. Mrs. Hucles, matee of Howard, is among the ailing.

Pretty Athalia Scott, here for the week-end with Mrs. Grafton Johnson, tapped at the Vilma, where Reggie Jefferson did his darndest to date her. And speaking of the Vilma, there was that po man, whose ex-girl friend phoned the wife that he was there with the recent flame, and caused fireworks. Mrs. Sarah Spencer Washington is back in Atlantic City after spending a week with her cousins, the William Gosnells, here.

Elizabeth Johnson is back after seeing the Duke-Pitt game (and the lawyer man, Tommy Thompson?) and jockeying out to a social workers' conference. Dr. J. Leslie Jones has
