Kappas to Push C.S. Photo War

DETROIT — (ANP) — Continuing the fight against the use of photographs in Civil Service examinations and improving the housing conditions of colored students in "white" universities are among the matters to be discussed at the twenty-eighth annual meeting of the Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity, here, December 27-30, according to the program just released.

The organizations will also announce achievement awards and consider a recipient for next year's laurel wreath, its highest leadership honor. On Tuesday December 27, at 8:30 a.m., the grand polemarch, Theophilus H. Mann, of Chicago, will be heard in a radio address, after which the business sessions will begin at the Brewster Community Center. Marian Anderson, international contralto, will sing, December 28, under the auspices of her sorority, the A.K.A.

Fred H. Williams is chairman of the conclave committee; Louis C. Blount, polemarch of the Detroit Alumni chapter, the hosts; W. St. C. Billups is polemarch of the Alpha Beta Chapter, undergraduates.

"France No Utopia, Declares Dr. Cook

ATLANTA, Ga.—Speaking in Sisters Chapel, at the first All-University Assembly of the year for Atlanta University, Morehouse College, and Spelman College, Dr. Will Mercer Cook, professor of French at Atlanta University, declared the prevailing idea that the colored man can solve his problems by taking up residence in France is a fallacy, and that any solution to the problem of the American colored man must be worked out at home.

Speaking on "The Race Question in France," Dr. Cook discussed the subject from three angles, citing conditions in France proper, where there are very few colored people; in the French West Indies, where the French population is between 95 and 97 per cent colored; and in the French African possessions, where despite the fact that France has a more liberal regime than the other empires, there is still much to be desired.

Open Colleges to Colored too, 1,000 Ask P.E.'s

CHICAGO— (ANP) —Opening of all colleges and seminaries operated by the Episcopal Church to colored aspirants for the priesthood was one of the important resolutions passed by the 1000 delegates attending the National Interracial Council of Churchmen, at the International House of the University of Chicago, Tuesday and Wednesday.

The conference, held under the auspices of the P.E. Joint Commission on Negro Work, was under the direction of L. A. Oxley, Washington, D.C.

Advocate Other Reforms

In addition to the opening of the above-named institutions, other resolutions urged that:

Every organization in the church be made available to colored as well as to all other groups in church, including full participation; facilities of diocesan, provincial, national training institutes, and conferences be made available for colored leaders; the National Council ask deaconess schools and religious orders to consider the question of the admission of colored candidates.

Leaders on Program

Among leaders on the program were:

Dr. M. O. Bousfield, Rosenwald Fund; Mrs. Faith J. Jones, Chicago Relief Administration; the Rev. A. J. Russell, St. Paul's School; Dr. Channing H. Tobias, Paul D. P. Chippey, St. Augustine College; Dr. Frank Horne, U.S. Housing Authority.

From Cabin to Pulpit

Autobiography of Dr. A. C. Powell Termed Best of '38

By JOHN JASPER

NEW YORK—From a one-room cabin to the pulpit of New York's largest congregation, which he pastored for twenty-nine years is the exploit of Dr. A. Clayton Powell, Sr., whose autobiography, titled "Against the Tide," came from the publisher this week. (H. Smith and Co., N.Y.)

Recently at seventy-three, he retired and was named pastor emeritus of Abyssinian Baptist Church, now housed in a quarter of a million dollar plant, built and operated under his administration. It includes a community house and aged home.

THE REV. DR. A. CLAYTON POWELL, Sr.

Made Cows Move

The story of Dr. Powell's life between 1865 and 1938 as told in this 227 page volume is the tale of a boy so poor he made his cows move in winter so as to warm his feet on the spot where they lay, who worked his way up to the place where he is now, one of the country's leading pastors and lecturers.

Grandma Powell liked rats to eat. Grandpa Powell was a German. Boy Powell, with the wanderlust, turned up in West Virginia coal mines, where he became a drunkard and gambler among miners whose chief ambition was to own a pistol, a pair of brass knuckles and a jug of hard liquor.

Drank Too Much

He took a dislike to preachers because they drank too much and yet became converted by an evangelist who merely took a text and then fainted.

He wanted to become a lawyer, but was turned down at Howard University for lack of education and decided to study for the ministry at Wayland Academy.

He took charge of his first church, Ebenezer, Philadelphia, and found it had a mortgage which was to be foreclosed in thirty days. His salary was $8 a week.

He saved the church and after a year accepted a call to Immanuel Church, New Haven, where he remained for fifteen years.

While there he made two trips to Europe and lectured the country over.

When he left New Haven to become epastor of Abyssinian Baptist thirty years ago, the lecturer became a crusader.

He found it located on Fortieth Street, between Seventh and Eighth Avenues, the most notorious red light district in New York.

Late But Once

He found the church $146,354 in debt, its bank account $300 overdrawn. He reorganized the congregation, selected thirty-six men to run its business, had its accounts regularly audited and as an example of efficiency was late for a service or meeting but once in twenty-nine years.

His crusade drove prostitution from the neighborhood of his church. Then he took up the fight against expensive funerals, against immorality in the ministry, which brought him a death threat from an Arkansas reader of the AFRO-AMERICAN, and set up a relief agency in the church for feeding and educating the poor of its own congregation.

Year's Best

Here is the year's best autobiography, rich in entertainment and rare good humor.

The pictures of himself as a young man getting religion, taking charge of water closets at college, accepting a pastorate at $8 a week and being bombarded with filth from the houselops by New York prostitutes are unforgettable.

I judge Dr. Powell's book far more valuable to us than James Weldon Johnson's "Along This Way," because it was written by one of us for us. In this respect it is totally different from Mr. Johnson's book, which appears to have been addressed to a white audience.

My Rules for Success

FOR — AGAINST THE TIDE
An Autobiography by A. Clayton Powell, Sr.

If there are any other reasons for my attainments other than the ones just mentioned I would say they are these:

First, for fifty years my average reading time was four hours a day.

Second, I never permitted the weeds of hatred, prejudice, intolerance, and ingratitude to grow in my heart. I have had two favorite sayings through life—

(a) The one who loves is always superior to the one who hates.
(b) I would rather have one tuberose pinned on the lapel of my coat while I was alive than to have carloads of flowers piled on my coffin when I am dead.

I have had more than my share of roses, and I believe it is because I have never missed an opportunity of pinning one on a fellow traveler, even when I felt he did not deserve it.

Third, I have tried to maintain a keen sense of humor.

Fourth, I have never permitted anything to swerve me from the ministry. Three opportunities for making large sums of money were offered me, one being that of succeeding the late Richard B. Harrison in the role of De Lawd in "The Green Pastures."

It is impossible to exaggerate the assistance of the press during my long ministry. While many of the publishers were trying to destroy me, the papers were singing my praise.

Invite Bishop to Speak, Jan. 8

Bishop Monroe H. Davis has been invited to deliver the main address at the sixty-seventh anniversary of the signing of the Emancipation Proclamation which celebration is to be observed in Bethel A. M. E. Church, Sunday, January 8.

Bishop Davis

In planning the celebration, sponsored by the Masons, Willard W. Allen, grand master, has united all fraternal and civic groups to participate at 3 p.m.

Accompanied by Joshua Robinson and Warfield Ashby, Grand Master Allen went to Chestertown, recently, where he attended the first public meeting of the newly organized Thomas H. Kiah Lodge.

The services were held in the ME Church with its pastor, the Rev. Roy Hughes, presiding. Arrangements are being made for the forming of an Eastern Star Chapter of approximately forty women.
