By M. & J. CONRAD & CO No. 138, Market-street, Baltimore,
FOR PUBLISHING BY SUBSCRIPTION, THE
Works of William Smith, D. D.

Late provost of the college and academy of Philadelphia,

Consisting of sermons on public occasions, in America; practical sermons, and academic writings, as well official as intended to promote the establishment of seminaries of learning, and to assist in the dissemination of science, religion and civilization to the remotest parts of this new world, are now in the press, and will be delivered to subscribers on the following

TERMS:

I. The work will be neatly printed, in four volumes large 8vo, on cream-colored wove paper of a good quality.

II. Each volume will contain above five hundred pages, printed on a large new type.

III. In the first volume will be given an elegant engraving of the author's head, by Edwin, from the celebrated painting of Stuart.

IV. The price to subscribers will be two dollars and fifty cents per volume, in boards, payable on delivery.

Proposals were first issued by the author, in the year 1789, for publishing a body of sermons on practical godliness, and addressed to "the right reverend and reverend the clergy, and the worthy and honorable lay members of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the states of New-York, New-Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and South-Carolina, then assembled in general convention;" with a statement of his plan, and "trusting, that, if his design should meet with that approbation and countenance, which he affectionately solicited from the members of the general convention, the work might be of use to all well-disposed Christians; and more immediately to those of the following descriptions, viz.

1. To heads of families, who may think it their duty to devote the evenings of the Lord's day to the instruction of their own households.

2. To such pious persons, remote from places of public worship, or unprovided with pastors, who may wish to collect their neighbors and friends, to devote some part of a Sabbath to public worship, and the reading sermons and books of devotion.

3. To young clergymen and preachers of the gospel, who, being ill supplied with books, or a variety of sermons on proper subjects, may be assisted in their earlier compositions by the present work."

Upon which the convention were pleased to pass the following resolution:

IN CONVENTION, August 7, 1789.
On motion of Mr. John Cox,

Resolved unanimously, That the members of this convention being fully persuaded that the interests of religion and practical godliness may be greatly promoted by the publication of a body of sermons, upon the plan above proposed; and being well satisfied of the author's soundness in the faith, and eminent abilities for such a work; they do, therefore, testify their approbation of the same, and their desire to encourage it, by annexing their names as

William Sam. Johnson
Ralph Izard
George Read.

Above a thousand names were forwarded to the author from different parts of the United States, forming, altogether, a list which, for respectability, has seldom been equalled.

Since the period above mentioned, Dr. Smith never had sufficient leisure to commit the proposed work to press; he has, however, been enabled to make many valuable improvements and additions to them, among which may be ranked his much esteemed Sermons, preached in Christ church, Philadelphia, in the winter of 1793—4, on our deliverance from the ravages of the Yellow Fever. These and many other considerations have induced the author to extend his plan; and his publishers will soon have it in their power to offer to the public a complete edition of his works.

Any other recommendation of the sermons and other literary works of Dr. William Smith, is hardly necessary to procure a passport, to the patronage of Americans. It may seem almost idle and superfluous to extol what has already successfully passed the ordeal of criticism. A considerable part of the discourses of this divine, have long since appeared in English editions, and have gained the fairest meed of honor—the unanimous praise of the impartial public. The remainder of his discourses and other works, which will constitute the greatest part of these four volumes, were never before printed or collected into any volume; and are now printing from the manuscripts, and will be judged of by the same impartial public, when they appear; for, of the merit of every literary performance this is the true test, decisive and sure.

As to the general reader, whether his curiosity be searching for religious and moral truth, or excursive, in quest of the beauties of composition, there is a peculiar incitement to the purchase of this work. It is not of a rugged and austere character. It presents something more than the severity of a theological system. Instead of the dry bones of meagre disquisition, or the gloomy visage of a fanatic, amid the wearisome monotony of his cloister, the reader will discern many a vigorous and graceful figure, invested in the bright colors of genius, and decorated with the blooming flowers of fancy.

Patent Horizontal Wind-Mill.

THE subscriber offers to the gentlemen farmers and others of Maryland, and the other states, an invention, which for utility has not been exceeded by any piece of mechanism which this or perhaps the last century can boast of. It is a peculiarly, though simply, constructed horizontal Wind-Mill, adapted to the grinding of all sorts of grain, and at the same time threshing out wheat and rice, fanning them and pounding the latter, powdering plaster of Paris, cutting tobacco, &c. &c. Its aptitude to all those various and useful purposes, will be more easily and justly estimated by a view of the machine itself, than from any description that can be given here. —A model of this wind-mill can be viewed on Federal Hill, where it is kept for the conveniency of shewing it in operation, by applying to Mr. Marche, No. 4, south Gay-street, by whom also the terms will be made known for the model only to erect a mill by, or for the patent right for a whole state; or by
