Your Child and Mine

By MARY MARTIN

NEVER BLOCK CONFIDENCE

If your child does not take you into his or her confidence the chances are that it's because of something you do or are — even allowing for the fact that your son or daughter may be by nature a rather reticent young person. Quite unconsciously you've done something to block their confidence — to choke off the spontaneous imparting of personal delights or thoughts — or even misdemeanor.

No matter how much inclined your children are to tell you things and to confide in you when they've done something they think they shouldn't, they're not going to keep on doing so if you jump on them, if you explode, if you scold and punish.

But it is necessary for your children to be able to tell you things. In order to be of most service to them, in order to be the best kind of mother, you must know as much about them as possible.

How you receive a confidence depends entirely upon what it is. But, other things you must be. You must be interested—ready to give your attention — and as a rule, rather matter-of-fact. Especially must you be careful if the story is one which shocks you. Be quiet and casual:

"Did you, dear? How come?" will pave the way for your hearing all the ins and outs of the matter, which will in turn pave the way for your talking things over with him if you think it necessary, or meeting the situation in some other adequate way.

"The Man They Couldn't Hang" Plays Dunbar

Can the dead be brought back to life?

This question is the subject of the sensational Columbia shocker, "The Man They Could Not Hang," which will be shown on the double bill at the Dunbar Theatre, Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday.

Starring Boris Karloff in a role said to be even more terrifying than the famous "Frankenstein," the story tells about substituting a mechanical heart for the human organ.

Karloff is seen as a great scientist who discovers a means of restoring life. Almost ready to announce his achievement to the world, he is arrested and convicted of murder. His own invention is used to restore him to life after his execution and he emerges from the grave alive and well.

However, a terrible change has taken place in his soul and he becomes a horrifying creature of sheer intellectual cruelty, without heart or mercy.

When he determines on revenge, and when his own daughter falls in love with a man marked for death, the story goes on to a thrilling climax.

'Allegheny Uprising' at Radio

The Radio Theatre will show Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday, "Allegheny Uprising," a motion picture telling of the settling of the rich Allegheny Valley and of the hardships faced by the pioneers.

Claire Trevor has a leading role, supported by John Wayne.

Others in the cast are George Sanders, Brian Conlevy, Wilfred Lawson, Robert Barrat, John F. Hamilton, Moroni Olsen, and Eddie Quillen.

The picture tells an authentic story of the early Americans and of the principles that gave birth to the founding of the United States.

Vivid scenes that may be recognized from history are shown in the picture, including the battles with the Indians in the early days.

Thalia

Mrs. Rosa L. Bryant was hostess to the Thalia Vacation Club, Friday evening, at 707 Gilmor Street, Miss Elsie Beverly was a new member.

After the business session, a repast was served. The next meeting will be at 1717 Franklin Street, with Mrs. Eliza Edwards, as hostess.

SWINGTIME ON WBAL

Bonus Time—Saturday night swing session over WBAL at 7:30 p.m., featuring Richard Himber's orchestra and Ray Block's Swing Fourteen gives Genesta Gilbert and Edward Stokes plenty of pyramid rhythm for their rug-cutting capers. This program is sponsored each week by the Bruton Brewing Company.

"Thou Shalt Not Kill," "Cisco Kid" at Regent

The twin bill at the Regent Theatre for Sunday through Wednesday will include "Thou Shalt Not Kill," with Charles Bickford and Owen Davis, Jr., and "The Cisco Kid and the Lady," with Cesar Romero.

A gripping story of human heartbreak is brought to the screen in "Thou Shalt Not Kill," a story that deals with the problems of a maladjusted young man, thrust aside by a society which does not understand him.

Involved in Murder

Finally the boy is involved in a murder and the minister who has befriended him saves him from death on the gallows.

The smiling desperado of the Old Southwest, the Cisco Kid, finds new adventure in Arizona and deadly danger in a beautiful senorita's eyes, as he returns to the screen in "The Cisco Kid and the Lady."

The picture has plenty of excitement, thrills, laughter, and romance, making it a rare screen treat.

Jane Withers

The double bill for Thursday through Saturday includes "High School," starring Jane Withers, and "Roll, Wagon, Roll," with Joe Brown, Jr., and Tex Ritter and his horse, White Flash.

Jane takes from one special brand of freshness to "High School," and meets some unusual experiences as a freshman in this new picture. Jane is seen as a young lady who gets into all sorts of trouble at first, but who finally saves the day and gets into favor by helping Stats, the school football hero when he gets into trouble with some auto thieves.

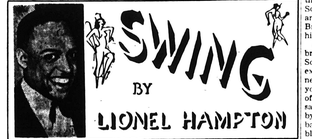
"Roll, Wagon, Roll," starring Tex Ritter and his horse, White Flash, has all the sure-fire entertainment ingredients for a Western picture.

The film is a musical epic of the frontier trek to Oregon, and tells the story of the efforts of the fur traders to keep the settlers out of the Northwest and tells how Tex is commissioned by the state to protect the wagon trains on their hazardous journey across the plains in the face of Indian attacks encouraged by the traders.

AT HARLEM

JOE LOUIS, heavyweight champion of the world, who is shown above as he alighted from his train, and went to the Harlem Theatre during his visit to Baltimore last week. The picture that he saw was "Keep Punching," starring Henry Armstrong. Joe said he liked the theatre and thought Henry did a good acting job.

SWING BY LIONEL HAMPTON



Lionel Hears "Swingin' the Dream" May Come to Life Again

On December 9, I offered a year's scholarship for music lessons to a blind boy or girl living in Southern California.

Talented nine-year-old Velma Ware Mason of Los Angeles was selected. Carl Kronz, noted pianist-teacher in Hollywood, read the offer, and, through the AFRO, matched it by offering his services.

So, to little Velma, my best wishes. At the close of your work you will also receive a round-trip to New York with your mother as a gift from me. The blind scholarship is now established as an annual one, by my wife.

NOTES: Martin Martin, D.C. girl who tried out for a job with a white band here, has been offered a contract by one of the colored film companies. They want her to go to Hollywood in February.

In my opinion, Butterfly McQueen, who was in "Swingin' the Dream" with us, almost steals honors from Hattie MacDaniel, as Prissy in "Gone With the Wind!"

Blue MacAllister has a part in it, too. The last time I saw Blue was when he was Prince Charming in "Rhapsody in Black," and had Ethel Waters singing "I Wonder where's My Prince Charming" to him.

Bringing up mention of the closed "Swingin' the Dream," I don't know how true it is, but I am told the show will re-open soon, on a smaller scale. Personally, I don't know a thing about it.

To the songwriting Blairs, in Philadelphia: Thanks for the opportunity to see your stuff. It has been put in my files.

Again I say to all amateurs, always keep the original copy of your music. Only send a copy to me. None are returnable and I can't correspond. Photos are sent only if sufficient postage is included with the request. Thanks.

"It's not Fair to Me," a tune penned by Cordell Jones, a former Morgan student, and sent to me, will be waxed at Victor in February. It's a killer-diller.

Florence Mills, born on a Washington, D.C., backstreet, would have been forty-five years old on the twenty-fifth of this month, were she alive. I'll never forget little Florence. She was the best that ever was. And ever will be.

'Twixt Night 'n' Dawn With The Breeze

Baltimore's CLUB ASTORIA has closed again.

The SPOT COCKTAIL LOUNGE AND BARBEQUE is still running strong, however. Pleanty of fine entertainment in the cocktail lounge, good drinks, and just scads of appetizing foods in the upstairs barbeque.

The "I've Got Ten Club" for musicians, entertainers, and others employed in night clubs was formed, last week, and the following officers elected:

Boyd (Happy) Donovan, president; George D. Tyler, vice-president; Estella Young, financial secretary; M. Andy, recording secretary; Dorthia Young, business manager, and Nathaniel Cannon, treasurer.

Members Andy, R. Smith, and Tyler were named to the relations committee. Dr. Jay G. McRae was appointed physician for the group, and Peter L. Woodbury, legal advisor.

The purposes of the club is to perpetuate the memory of famous nitelife artists, to serve as encouragement to the present day crop of artists, and to provide social and benevolent outlets.

* * *

The CLUB WONDERLAND is not only the avenue's most sophisticated after-dark rendezvous, but it is also one of the most popular nite spots on the stroll. Music and entertainment are provided nightly by Ducky and his Ducklings, Genevra Howard, Lillian Lorraine, and Luther Toye.

Get a new slant on life by frequenting the CLUB WONDERLAND. Their matinee dances on Sunday and Monday are quite the thing, too.

Get into the habit of dropping in on the crew down at SONNY'S CAFE on the lower end of Madison Avenue. SONNY'S features the Three Gees — Good food. Good mixed drinks, and Good times.

A most reliable contact states that Theodore (Moon) Parker, one of the popular young men about town, has presented Edna Mae Williams with an egagementing.

SOME SAD MOMENTS COME TO EACH OF US

William Randolph, father of Mrs. Daisy Randolph Myers, prominent local performer, was buried here, last week. Mrs. Myers is now working in Chester, Pa.

* * *

Lots of folk drive over to Washington to see the shows and visit friends. On the way back, many of them stop by Bertie Brooke's Road House on Annapolis Avenue in Mt. Winans. Not a bad habit, either, Bertie's place really swings out.

* * *

When Gene Krupa came here, last week with his band, one of the most deeply interested spectators was Cuba Lawson, familiar figure in the musical world. Cuba taught Gene, years ago.

* * *

The meals served at Wendell's VILMA TAVERN are becoming more and more popular weekly. The food served there really is good, though, and that's straight from the shoulder. Of course, the drinks speak for themselves. Nearly everyone knows about the good drinks of Wendall's.

* * *

LIVING IN TRUNK MAKES HIM TIRED

Ran into Chuck Richards the other day and when asked whether or not he ever intended to take music seriously again, he replied—no. Chuck, the chap, who has done quite some extensive traveling as a vocalist with featured bands and who has traveled much on his own, stated that he was tired of living in a trunk.

* * *

* * *

Comes the story of a chap who imbibed a bit too freely and started a rumpus in one of the avenue's late spots. Not only was he ousted by several of the hangerons of the place, but they went as far as to kick him after he had been floored. In fact, they kicked him unconscious.

That was rather rotten. But all sorts of unfair things happen along the Rialto during the wee wee hours.

Peace Circle

Mrs. Lula Mason of 1409 Myrtle Avenue, was hostess to the Peace Circle, on Saturday.

After the business period, a repast was served, Mrs. Ollie Meade was the club guest. The next meeting will be held at the same address, with Mrs. Rosa Trust as hostess.

The officers are:

Mrs. Alice Brooks, president; Mrs. Ella Brown, secretary; Mrs. Mary Allen, marshal, and Mrs. Lula Mason, reporter.

AT THE ROYAL

Enraptured by her beauty, the King's High Justice commands the pitiable hunchback to bring him the gypsy dancer who had entertained at the Feast of Fools. The pursuit of the gypsy through the streets of fifteenth century Paris, from which the above scene is taken, is one of the many exciting sequences in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," RKO Radio's thrill-filled spectacle starring Charles Laughton and featuring Sir Cedric Hardwicke and Maureen O'Hara. The picture will be shown at the Royal Theatre for ten days, beginning Thursday, January 25.

Rating the Records

JAMMIN' THAT JELLS

RELEASED by the Varsity Seven is some jamin' that jells. Titles are "Scratch My Back" and "Save It Pretty Mama." The first, woven around an inconsequential theme, is a succession of solos and the second, by far the better side, has a vocalist Jeanne Burns who sounds awfully like Hazel Scott.

I particularly like Joe Sullivan's meaty piano and Coleman Hawkins's powerful tenor. George Wettling's drumming is a delight, and as a matter of fact, all the boys are good. Spot the alto on the first side. It's listed as Billy Carson, but it's more like Benny Carter than Benny himself —so draw your own conclusion.

IN BRIEFER MENTION

"Pinch Me" and "Prelude to the Bughouse," the first "commercial swing" and the second a third-rate killer-diller, by Van Alexander; "The Little Red Fox" and "Pinch Me," two pop-pular tunes in the current Bob Crosby style; "Between 18th and 19th on Chestnut Street" and "Somebody Told Me," unimportant except for the leader's alto and tenor saxes, by Charlie Barnet, "Peg O' My Heart and "As Long As I Live," revivals in would-be swing style with an interesting tenor and clarinet plus the leader's piano, by Lennia Hayton; "The Starlit Hour" and "The Beautiful Buxom Barmaid," wallloping vocalistics by the effective Smoothies;

"The Star Hour" and "Deep Night," the latter displaying the pleasing choral technique introduced on "Marie," by Tommy Dorsey; "U.S.A." and "Drusilla," more of the odd and rhythmic Calypsos by Gerald Clark; "We Cats Will Swing for You," and "Till the Day I Die," excellent rhythm making, both vocal and instrumental, by the swingy Cats and the Fiddle; "Holy Smoke" and "Somebody Told Me," competently but not impressively performed by Bob Zurke; "Death Letter Blues" and "Death Cell Blues," a seven race record by James Carter; "Sweet Mellow Woman Blues" and "Don't Forget It," A-1 blues by Tampa Red.
