Public Sale.

To cloſe the concern of Durant and Wiſeham, will be ſold by public auction, on Tueſday, the 17th of January, at the exchange coffee-houſe, (if not previouſly diſpoſed of at private ſale,)

THAT Valuable and Improved PROPERTY, ſituate in Golport, in the county of Norfolk, known by the name of the GOSPORT DISTILLERY. The lot is about 140 feet ſquare, building 100 feet by 37 in the clear, built of brick and wood, and has lately been put in complete repair. The ſituation is healthy and pleaſant; good water may be had quite convenient. It contains one Engliſh made ſtill of 1000 gallons, quite new and lately ſet up, with cap, worm and worm tub complete; one ditto of 1300 gallons, with cap, worm and worm tub in good working order; one doubling ſtill of 450 gallons, with cap, worm and worm tub in good order; one large return tub; one ditto receiving ditto; two ſtand caſks of 524 gallons each; three ditto of 270 gallons each; eight new ciſterns of 2400 gallons each, one of which charges the two large ſtills; twenty-one ditto of 1300 gallons each, in good order; four ditto out of repair; two low wine ciſterns of 500 gallons each, in good order; one hand mill for grinding malt; two copper cranes, buckets, funnels, &c. ſufficient to conduct the buſineſs upon an extenſive ſcale; machinery, ſpouts, pumps and leaders, capable of pumping out either of the ciſterns and conveying the working liquor into either or all of the ſtills. Theſe works are capable of turning out 600 gallons ſpirit every twenty-four hours, with the labor of only three men.

There is alſo a mill houſe, 40 feet by 30, in which there is a mill and a well of never-failing water, with three pumps working by machinery, which conveys the water into any part of the diſtillery. A creek runs up to the door affording ſufficient water for lighters, making the communication with Norfolk eaſy, and the carriage of molaſſes, rum, &c. to and from the diſtillery cheap and facile. There is ſufficient ſpace on the lot to erect a dwelling houſe and a cooper's ſhop, which buſineſs might here be conducted to conſiderable advantage.

This property is well worth the attention of men of capital, that could always command a ſupply of molaſſes. The demand for rum is ſuch that there is no danger of having any quantity on hand; and if ſold at the moderate profit of three cents per gallon, the buſineſs would yield a clear gain of eighteen dollars per day.

The terms are ſix, twelve, and eighteen months credit, and payment muſt be made in good endorſed notes, payable at the office of diſcount and depoſit in Norfolk, with a deed in truſt upon the property until the whole is paid. John Gibbs, living at the diſtillery, will ſhew it to thoſe inclined to view it. For further particulars apply to us LEWIS E. DURANT, or RICHARD WISEHAM.

Diſtillation.

Notice is hereby given,

THAT I have obtained letters patent of the United States, dated Auguſt 2d, for the following particular conſtruction of STILLS:

The ſtill ſet up has the ſhape of a cylinder, ſurmounted with a cone, the baſis of which exceeds by a few inches the circumference of the cylinder.

The cylindrical part is the body, the conical part is the cap. At about the fourth part of the ſummit the cone is cut tranſverſelly, which forms the mouth, this is covered or ſhut by the reſt of the cone. On the top of this cover is fixed a ſmall cylindrical veſſel, which, during the operation, ought to be conſtantly ſupplied with water; which, iſſuing by ſmall holes at the bottom of this ſmall veſſel, ſpreads all around the ſurface of the cone, & cools it at the deſired temperature. This water is received at the baſe of the cone by a circular external gutter, from which it eſcapes by a channel.

To a large oblong aperture cut in the breaſt, and from the baſis of the cone, a flat pipe is adapted, tapering in the form of a common neck, by which the ſpirit is diſcharged into the cooler. The cooler is a long flat pipe, horizontally fixed in a trough, which muſt be continually ſupplied with freſh water. The dimenſions of this cooler are, in length about three times the diameter of the ſtill, in breadth one-eighth, and no more than one inch thick or high.

The depth of the cylindrical part is optional. The ſpirits raiſed by the heat, whatſoever way applied, evaporate freely, are inſtantly condenſed by the contact of the cone, and run by the gutter and the diſcharging pipe into the cooler.

In the diſtillation of grains, a wooden mover, in the form of a circular rake, keeps the contents in agitation, and prevents their raiſing—this mover is fixed to a metallic rod running free through rags, compreſſed in a little box, terminating the ſummit of the cone. By this operation, which does not require the ſtrength of a child, they prevent the loſs of the ſpirits which riſe while the mouth is kept open in the ordinary way of whiſkey ſtills.

Amongſt other advantages of theſe ſtills, conſtructed (beyond contradiction) upon the true principle, the operation of diſtilling may be entirely performed, every thing equal, at a temperature more than 25 degrees lower than in the common ſtills.

I will ſhortly publiſh an explanation of the principles and advantages of this plan, a compariſon with the ſtills now in uſe, and an account of experiments* in different kinds of diſtillations.

In my patent is ſpecified the right of fixing caps upon my principle to old ſtills, which will give to them all the advantages of the new method, in the exact proportion of the diameter of their mouths to the larger diameter of the body.

L. GEANTY.

* In different operations performed in preſence of many reſpectable citizens of Baltimore, a ſtill of twelve gallons has proved to run faſter than any common ſtill of eighty—its contents being only at 180 degrees of Farenheit's thermometer, which is 32 degrees below boiling water.
