UNCLE SAM'S NEW DRY DRIVE STARTS AUG. 1

Brig. General Andrews In Complete Charge, Eliminates State Lines By Creating 22 Federal Zones

HAS SUPPORT OF PRESIDENT

Written Specially for this paper by Edward Percy Howard

Enforcement of the prohibition law is now squarely before the American people and in complete charge of the Federal authorities.

The plan of enforcement, effective August 1, has been carefully thought out, the machinery has been provided and the man to whom the country looks for action is definitely in the saddle. Today there are just two questions in the public mind, the first, whether Brigadier-General L. C. Andrews will prove capable of enforcing the law—if not, then is it possible to enforce the law under any circumstances?

Unquestionably Gen. Andrews has a stupendous task ahead of him, but he is not lacking moral support any more than he lacks complete control. President Coolidge unquestionably is determined to have the law enforced if it be possible to enforce it. Secretary Mellon is no less determined to put an end to the liquor traffic, and the press generally throughout the country stands strongly in favor of law enforcement. Even those newspapers with wet tendencies stand as a unit in insisting that the law should be enforced as long as it is the law.

New Dry Drive

Brig.-Gen. L. C. Andrews, Assistant-Sec'y of the Treasury, who August 1st puts into effect a new system of prohibition enforcement. Disregarding state lines, the nation will be divided into 22 districts and divisional heads given supreme authority to stop drink "at the source."

General Andrew's plan of creating twenty-two Federal zones which wipe out state lines, is expected in some quarters to be the keynote of successful enforcement. In other quarters the plan is regarded with alarm as giving evidence of further encroachment on the rights of states and the liberties of the people.

"Thus far have we gone in the determined plan to create a new autocracy in the hitherto land of the free," says the Columbia, S. C., Record. "All that has preceded this gigantic extension of police powers of the federal government has been the merest child's play. But what is happening is just as the Record, five years ago, predicted would happen. The end is not yet."

Quite a different view is expressed by the Philadelphia Inquirer which approves the abolition of the state directors.

"It may be argued that all this means an increase in federal power at the expense of the states," says the Inquirer, "but, as the President pointed out recently, what the states will not do the federal government must do. The enforcement of federal law is clearly within its province, more particularly if this law is so unpopular in some communities that local officials are affected by local feeling."

The Washington Star says the slowness and leniency of the courts is responsible for the failure of prohibition to date.

"Enforcement is possible," says the Star. "It is upon that principle that the Treasury Department's new organization has been planned. Integrity on the part of enforcement officers of all degrees is an essential. It has never been believed to be impossible to organize an honest, loyal force. Hypocricy and infidelity are not dominant characteristics of the American people."

Whatever may be the result of the Andrews plan at least the country is promised an honest effort to compel obedience to the law of th eland, and bring an end to the mockery that exists particularly in the big cities. Political considerations, we are told, are now eliminated. No longer will the local boss be able to march to court and obtain leniency or immunity for friendly violators of his constitution. Plus the elimination of politics a rapid determined drive is to be made to stop the sources of supply, importation and diversion of legally manufactured and stored alcohol.

It has been shown that sporadic assaults on the individual bootlegger raid on small dispensers, and gunning after petty offenders, serving only to make the law enforcing powers a laughing stock.

Control of the sources of supply will necessarily eliminate the little fellows from the scene of law violation without further action. They cannot sell the booze they cannot obtain.

"Uncle Sam means business," says the Cleveland Plaindealer, whose editorial calls upon the states and local communities to carry their share of the burden of enforcement.

Mr. Oral Christopher, a resident of this town, owes his life to the heorism of Russel Slacum, a lad less than 16 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Slacum, who rescued him from drowning Saturday afternoon at the gate hole near the old mill dam.

Mr. Christopher had entered the water with some friends who, thinking he knew how to swim, were unaware of his plight when he stepped into deep water and sank. His wife happened to be watching from the shore and shouted for help when the Slacum lad dived down and brought up the drowning man, who was unconscious to the surface. It was on act of remarkable courage on the boy's part and deserves the highest praise.

GROWERS LOSE ON CUCUMBERS

Word from New York this morning reporting a glut in cucumbers caused the bottom to drop out of the local market. Local brokeds, as well as the farmers, have lost heavily on cucumbers this year. Ownig to unprecedented high prices last year, more than three times last year's acreage was planted. The drought killed off three-fourths of the crop and the prices have not been half last year's.

In First Line Trenches at Day

DIVORCES IN MARYLAND SHOW INCREASE

Divorces are increasing and marriage rapidly decreasing, reports to the Department of Commerce from 9 representative states reveal.

A matrimonial census showed that in the year 1924 divorces had generally increased a little more than six per cent., while marriages had decreased about six per cent.

Out of the 9 states Nebraska was the only one to show a decrease in divorces in 1924 than the previous year, but marriages fell off 53.1 per cent.

South Dakota was the only state reporting an increase in marriages for last year. Cupid's darts were aimed correctly 6,401 times, an increase of 2.3 per cent., but 586 divorces were issued, an increase of 4.3 per cent.

The states reporting increases in divorces and decreases in marriages were:

	Marriage Decrease Per Cent.	Divorce Increase Per Cent.
Delaware	7.7	12.1
Connecticut	3.3	2.6
Rhode Island	9.3	8.8
Maryland	1.3	3.7
Maine	6.8	1.1
New Jersey	3.9	7.9
Wisconsin	10.5	9.1

The census of all the states will not be concluded for several weeks.
