Mayor Opens Harlem Center for Service Men

NEW YORK. — Mayor F. H. LaGuardia, present in his capacity of Federal Director of Civilian Defense, opened the Harlem Center for Active Service Men at 2348 Seventh Avenue, between 137th and 138th Streets, on Saturday afternoon before an audience of several thousand persons assembled in front of the building.

Stating that everything possible should be done for the comfort of service men because they are engaged in hard work that may soon become dangerous work, Mayor LaGuardia warmly commended the New York City Defense Recreation Committee for the Harlem Center project.

Can Accommodate 500

The building has accommodations for 500 men at a time, with lounge rooms, a roof garden, game rooms, library, snack bar, locker rooms, showers, sleeping quarters and committee rooms.

Following remarks by Mrs. Anna M. Rosenberg, white, regional co-ordinator of health, welfare and related defense activities, during which she said the gathering represented "the real Harlem—not the Harlem the newspapers have been writing about," Hubert T. Delaney, a member of the City Tax Department, said of the Center:

"This is one of the answers to those who criticize us."

Other speakers included Channing Tobias of the Citizens' Joint Army and Navy Committee for Welfare and Recreation; Samuel A. Allen, chairman of the Harlem Committee of the Defense Recreation Committe, and William H. Hastie, civilian aide to the Secretary of War.

Major Gen. Irving G. Phillipson, commander of the Second Corps Area, expressed the official appreciation of the army for the Harlem Center for Active Service Men.

OPM Field Workers Now in All Sections of Nation

WASHINGTON (By ANP)

Field workers of the labor supply and training division of OPM are now located in all sections of the country, according to the division director, Dr. Robert C. Weaver.

New York and New England are under Edward Lawson while policies of plants in eastern Pennsylvania and New Jersey come under the supervision of Clarence M. Mitchell. Reginald Johnson is on the job in Pittsburgh.

Posten in Md.

Theodore L. Poston is on special assignments including the Glenn L. Martin plant outside of Baltimore; Fairfield Shipbuilding Corp.; the Bethlehem Steel Company at Sparrows Point, Md., the Edgewood Arsenal; Aberdeen Proving Grounds; the Carnegie Steel Corp., the DuPont plants in West Virginia, the Newport News Shipbuilding Company and the Norfolk and Washington Navy Yards.

The southwestern area is taken care of by J. C. Evans and Louis Clyma handles the Arkansas, Oklahoma, Missouri and Kansas area. Clarence Johnson is on the West Coast and the South is handled from the Washington office.

Midwest Workers

Austin Scott of Chicago handles that section and J. Lawrence Duncan in Detroit is busy trying to get colored men transferred from non-defense to defense jobs.

George Streator, according to Dr. Weaver, is the "trouble shooter" for the organization being shunted back and forth where there is labor trouble to be adjusted.

Each of the plants in the various sections is visited by representatives of the division of training and employment and reports turned into the office on progress being made in the matter of employment of colored workers.

Lack Training in Del.

Asked about the situation in Delaware where the DuPonts are supposed to be opposed to the hiring of colored workers, Dr. Weaver said the lack of training of men in this section was largely responsible for the failure to secure employment in such plants as the DuPonts operate in the State.

However, he says, they do not operate as many plants as is supposed.

When the question of the Glenn Martin plant arose, Dr. Weaver said the plant officials had developed a long range program including colored workers in every phase when they are trained in the work.

Chaplain Finds Carolina Ministers United in Support of Defense Effort

By H. A. ROBINSON
Chaplain 77th Coast Artillery

CAMDEN, S.C.—In spite of our record for lack of unity among leaders, our clergymen in the South are united behind the government's foreign policy and are impressing upon their audiences the extreme necessity for 100 per cent support of the national defense training program. During the past six weeks I have attended churches of various denominations in Lieut. Robinson Orangeburg, Charleston, Columbia, Spartanburg, and Camden, S.C., and in Raleigh, Fayetteville, Durham and Greensboro, N.C.

Never before have I met a more enthusiastic group of leaders more consistently willing to sacrifice their personal views in the interest of a nation.

Whatever may be their beliefs concerning war, the ministers in North and South Carolina are all behind our efforts to make the United States so strong that no nation on earth will dare attack us.

I am convinced that the clergymen are far more farsighted than many people give them credit for being.

In Charleston I was introduced to a large audience by Bishop Flipper at the AME Church, and I had the pleasure to dine with Bishop Allen of the same denomination.

Interest in Soldiers Evident

These are church officials who are not confined with the church of which I am a member, but if I may judge by the reception given me, I cannot help but feel that they are sincere, that their hospitality was in the interest of the soldiers whom I represent.

An equally cordial reception was extended to me by the Rev. Dr. Wilson of Georgetown, S.C., who has invited me to address his congregation twice within the past two months. Were these men not interested in our program of national defense, such invitations would not be extended to any army officer.

The ministers not only express themselves on various phases of national defense, but they even encourage the families who are members of the churches to open the doors of their homes to soldiers.

I also found the same type of leadership shown by school supervisors and principals of colored schools. At some future time I shall discuss the schools and the important part they are playing in building up the nation's morale.

Chaplain at Ft. Bragg

CHAPLAIN H. J. C. BOWDEN, of the 16th Battalion in the Field Artillery Replacement Center at Fort Bragg, N.C. His duties consist of preparing recreational activities, conducting chapel services, and morale-building among the soldiers. He was formerly rector of the St. Paul Episcopal

High Morale of 184th FA Attributed to Hard Work

FORT CUSTER, Mich.—Credit for the high morale of members of the 184th Field Artillery Regiment stationed here was attributed to months of application and hard work far beyond normal requirements by Col. Andersor F. Pitts, commanding officer of the unit, this week.

The priceless heritage left the unit by the old 8th Illinois National Guard and the regimental approach to the problem of full opportunity for colored in all phases of training being followed efficiency, have been the motivating forces, he said.

Use Own Pun

There being no facilities for the entertainment in nearby Battle Creek, members of the unit built their own Service Club where they now maintain their own USO director, reported that many persons have made contributions of home furnishings to make the recreation rooms at the camps more homelike during the winter months.

War Dept. Washes Hands of Gurdon, Ark., Incident

NEW YORK—The War Department has washed its hands of the Gurdon (Camp Robinson), Ark., incident, involving a clash between colored soldiers on maneuvers and Arkansas State troopers, the NAACP learned this week.

In a letter to the NAACP, Robert P. Patterson, Under-Secretary of War, said that "The Judge Advocate General, after an examination of the record of the Gurdon investigation, is of the opinion that the State troopers and civilians involved in the Gurdon incident are not within the classes of persons amenable to trial by court-martial for violation of the articles of war."

No details of the report were given.

NAACP Urged Prosecution

The NAACP had written to President Roosevelt asking that he charge either the War Department or the Department of Justice with the responsibility for prosecuting the persons guilty of interfering with troops and their officers in pursuit of their duty.

"The War Department is without any jurisdiction to prosecute against these persons," Patterson wrote.

Departments Pass Buck

The Department of Justice contends that the State troopers were deputized by an officer in command of the colored soldiers to stop them on the highway, and for the reason, responsibility is
