Mayor to Talk at Payne AME Christmas Fete

Mayor Howard W. Jackson will speak at the Christmas festival of Payne Memorial AME Church, Laurens Street and Madison Avenue, to be held on Tuesday at 8:30 p.m., according to Mrs. Gladys Randolph, chairman.

The festival is under auspices of the church's Christian education committee, headed by Mrs. Randolph. Other activities sponsored by the group include a girl scout troop, social service bureau and a class in nursing and first aid.

Quarterly Conference Held

The third quarterly conference was conducted at the church on Monday, by the Rev. J. M. Boston, presiding elder, during which the Volunteers, headed by Mrs. Cora Thomas, the Busy Bees, headed by Mrs. Irene Lee, and the education body, headed by Mrs. Randolph, gave reports.

The congregation, pastored by the Rev. C. Baker Pearle, re-elected the following trustees during the conference session:

Dr. Carson C. Johnson, William Campbell, Edward Nottingham and Theodore Randolph.

Three newly established church groups made reports at the conference: the Volunteers, headed by Mrs. Cora Thomas; the Busy Bees, headed by Mrs. Irene Lee, and the Committee on Christian Education, whose chairman is Mrs. Randolph.

In addition to sponsoring the Christmas festival, the Christian Education Committee's activities include the establishment of a Girl Scout troop, a social service bureau, and a study group in practical nursing and first aid.

Trustees of the church re-elected at the conference are Dr. Carson C. Johnson, Messrs. William Campbell, Edward Nottingham, and Theodore Randolph.

Bishop Shaw Dedicates $150,000 Student Christian Center at Morgan

Symposium Feature of All-Day Program Attended by Prominent Methodists

As members of the trustee board of Morgan State College stood around the altar, Bishop Alexander P. Shaw of the Baltimore Area of the Methodist Church read the ceremony which dedicated the college's new $150,000 Student Christian Center on Tuesday afternoon in the center's chapel.

The keys were presented to Judge Morris A. Soper, chairman of the board of trustees, by Albert I. Cassell of Washington, architect who designed the building.

Due to illness, Dr. D. O. W. Holmes, president of the college, was unable to attend the services. However, the audience included Dr. J. O. Spencer, president-emeritus of the college, as well as ministers, religious leaders, civic workers and noted educators from other parts of the country.

Old Board Praised

The dedicatory address was made by Dr. M. S. Davage of Nashville, Tenn., secretary of the board of education of the Methodist Church.

After outlining the history and progress of the college, which began as a Methodist institution, Dr. Davage declared that "with the acquisition of this and the other buildings, Morgan has become a greater institution than the fathers built, but not greater than they dreamed of."

Pointing out that church-related colleges no longer dominate the field of education, Dr. Davage lauded the college corporation which sold the institution to the State, for its Christian foresight in giving the college such a center.

To Meet Needs of Youth

"This center was not constructed for form or fashion or outside show," he declared, "but as a genuine effort to meet certain vital needs of the college youth."

Dr. Hiel D. Bolling, white, of Nashville, secretary of student work with the Wesley Foundations of the Methodist Church, said in his address that Morgan is outstanding in its attempt to give its youth an intelligent concept of religion.

"More than you realize, the eyes of a nation are on this college," he said, "for you are setting a pattern of procedure in so far as education is concerned. And the manner in which the program is developed at this center will measure Morgan's contribution in this field."

Director's Job

In pledging his co-operation and the services of his wife in making the program a success, the Rev. J. J. Seabrook, director of the center, said that their work at the institution will reflect service to God and humanity.

"Intelligence and religion must go hand in hand," he said. "Students away from their homes need religious guidance and proper environment. Our job here is not to keep the youth out of hell, but to keep hell out of the thoughts, hearts and lives of the youth."

The scripture was read by the Rev. George A. Crawley, pastor of St. Paul Baptist Church, and the invocation was said by the Rev. John T. Colbert, pastor of Grace Presbyterian Church. Music was rendered by the college choir, directed by Miss Violet Banks, with Mrs. Frances B. Hill at the organ.

Symposium Held

The morning session of the dedicatory service included a symposium on "Religion in Higher Education," featuring Dr. William Stuart Nelson, dean of the school of religion at Howard University, the Rev. Herbert King of New York City, national secretary of the Student Christian Association, and Dr. Bollinger.

Dr. Nelson pointed out that the best church-related colleges are those where the total atmosphere is religious, where the school policies are not tools of the church, where the church will admit that it lacks funds or facilities to maintain an educational institution, and where the teachers are an example of the religious policies being taught.

The Rev. Mr. King explained how student Christian associations attempt to answer the religious problems which every body faces.

Pointing out that the trend has turned from church and privately controlled institutions to institutions, Dr. Bolling said that church foundations were established primarily to care for the religious needs of the students at public institutions.

Other Speakers

The welcome address to the group was made by Dean George C. Grant who substituted for Dr. Holmes. Greetings were brought by:

Edward S. Wilson, college registrar, on behalf of the alumni; Emerson Brown, president of the Student Council; Jackson Smith, president of the Methodist Church; H. S. Wilson, layman, the Rev. F. J. Kandy and the Rev. Joseph H. Jenkins, representing the Delaware and Washington Conferences on the board of Christian education.

Dr. R. A. Love, director of the department of colored work of the Board of Home Missions and Church Extension in the Methodist Church, presided. The scripture was read by the Rev. D. Maurice Jackson, president of the Morgan chapter of the ministerial association, and the invocation was said by the Rev. Caleb T. Quinn, district superintendent of the Washington Conference.

Music Festival Given by Pupils of St. Frances

Pupils of St. Frances Academy gave their annual musical festival Thursday and Friday under auspices of the helpers of the Oblate Sisters of Providence, featuring the band, orchestra, chorus and dancers.

The Rev. John T. Gillard, director of the academy, which draws elementary and high school girls from fifteen States, pointed out that the girls are being trained by the Oblate Sisters who are in charge of the school's entire curriculum.

Declaring that many of the performers had never played instruments before coming to the school, he said that the excellence of their renditions was due in the main to the exacting standards set up by their teachers.

Orchestra Features Classics

The school orchestra, composed of approximately fifteen girls, played selections from such classical composers as Baumann, Bizet and Rossini. The band, which included more than thirty pupils, presented the works of Bach, Gounod and Sousa.

Members of the chorus did equal justice to the works of the masters as to the compositions of modern song composers.

Four Given Prizes

More than 200 persons were present at the Friday evening program held in the school auditorium. The affair took on an aspect of gaiety when during twenty-minute intermissions prizes were given away and cake and ice cream were served.

A sterling silver rosary was awarded to William Dorsey, 1031 Harlem Avenue, a $50 cash prize went to Mrs. Agnes Shepherd of Mitchellville, Md., a $10 prize to Mrs. Bessie Scott of 6004 Prescott Street, and Mrs. Ella Hawkins, 922 Argyle Avenue, $5.

Domestic Association to Fete Service Men

The Colored Domestics' Association of America will be host to from fifteen to twenty-five soldiers from nearby camps at a Christmas-Day dinner, to be given at the NYA Center, 2003 Druid Hill Avenue, according to Mrs. Beatrice Turner, a member of the group.

Members of the group who will prepare and serve the dinner are still seeking musical talent who will volunteer their services at the feast. Those interested in volunteering for such service should contact the organization at its headquarters, 566 Mosher Street.

Lescot Backs U. S. in War on Japs and Nazis

approbation."

President Lescot, who until a few months before his election served as Haitian Minister to the United States, warned the Haitian people:

No Submission to Isms

"I want you to realize that the declaration of war which we have made do not mean merely a symbolical gesture. I want you to perceive that our decision means the undertaking of the burdens of the war and we shall suffer our democracy die aflame like a torch rather than submit to Nazism or Fascism."

The Haitian president also declared that sacrifices and the observance of restrictions will be necessary to the preservation of democracy and urged the citizens to consent to sacrifices of whatever nature might be necessary.

Ready to Aid U.S.

In the absence of Ferdinand Dennis, Haitian minister to the United States, Elie Garcia, secretary to the Haitian legation, told the AFRO that the Haitian Republic had reiterated through its president its offers to place its territories and its resources at the disposal of the United States for the common good.

A strong warning against possible fifth column activities or espionage was voiced to the Haitian populace by President Lescot.

He declared that he suspects that enemy agents are living in their midst, but they must not be permitted to imperil our lives or to trouble our country through acts of hostility, or through information or aid which they might be able to furnish to the enemies of Haiti.

M. Lescot then ordered the citizens to refrain from all political conversations, all contributions to enemy propaganda, all attempts to approach military zones and to take pictures of these places, carrying of fire, other arms, or instruments of war.

Painters Wire F. D. Support During War

The local painters' association pledged its support to President Franklin D. Roosevelt during the present war crisis Thursday in a telegram signed by Lewis R. Michle, Sr., president of the group, and Furman L. Templeton, Urban League industrial secretary and their advisor, which read:

"The Painters', Decorators' and Paperhangers' Association of Maryland, composed of colored master mechanics and journeymen, takes this means of assuring you of our traditional loyalty to America.

"We, as colored people, are vibrant aware of the dangers which threaten human freedom and are resolved to do whatever is required of us in the struggle to preserve America and democracy."

Minister Tells Conferees It's Our War, Too
"We must be as interested in winning this war as any white American," the Rev. Kelly Jackson, editor, told Methodist ministers at their weekly meeting Wednesday in Sharp Street Community House.
"It behooves every Christian to co-operate in seeking to achieve the American ideal. While at times colored people don't seem to be getting all the benefits they deserve, still the democratic ideal is one which helps us most," he declared.
Calls Christ a Fighter
In answer to a contention of some of the ministers present that Christ did not preach a warlike doctrine, the speaker quoted Christ as saying "I came not to bring peace but a sword," which he interpreted as meaning that when our status quo is threatened we should seek to defend it.
Mrs. Lillie M. Jackson, local NAACP president, asked the body to appoint a representative to appear with a group of citizens before Governor Herbert O'Conor and Police Commissioner Robert F. Stanton to protest the arrest of W. A. C. Hughes, Jr., and Robert P. McCain, lawyers, early Sunday morning by Northwestern District police.
The request was turned over to the civic committee, headed by the Rev. E. L. Lofton, superintendent of the North Baltimore District.

BYF Pledged to Aid War Effort
The Baltimore Youth Federation meeting, Tuesday evening at the NYA Center, 2003 Druid Hill Avenue, adopted a resolution pledging its support to the government in the present war crisis.
The resolution, copies of which have been forward to President Franklin D. Roosevelt, Governor Herbert R. O'Conor and Mayor Howard W. Jackson, read:
Text of Resolution
"The Baltimore Youth Federation resolves to give unstintingly all aid and co-operation for the defense of the United States of America in order to effect a hasty annihilation of the Axis Powers and their supporters at home and abroad, and to co-operate fully in all branches of civilian defense".
The organization, headed by Miss Maude Smith, will meet again at the center Tuesday to plan for entertaining soldiers in nearby camps during the holidays.
