Girls Shown Chic Clothes at Low Cost

WASHINGTON

Dress right, and reasonably, was the theme of the fashion show presented on Thursday evening at the Lucy D. Slowe Hall for Women, for the purpose of showing government girls how to be correctly attired on a small budget.

Guests were ushered into the lounge of the Slowe Hall by hostesses who represented various defense agencies.

They were:

Misses Jane Elizabeth Abernathy, Wilhelmina Barrow, Esther G. Bullock, Opal Brown, Charlotte Carpenter, Isabel Carter, Antoinette Lundy, Betty Griffin;

Misses Ruth Williams, Priscilla McDonald, Elsie M. Thompson, Draria Wright, Pearl Taylor and Amber Davis.

The guests were served a repast before the show and while announcements were made by the commentator, Mrs. Mildred L. Vernon told of recreational activities which are being planned for government girls here in Washington. A folder, "Charm for Social Security and Job Insurance," was distributed to those attending.

Workers Are Models

The nine models, typists, clerks, and stenographers in defense agencies themselves, wore clothes provided by Morton's, 312 Seventh Street, Northwest. Models were Misses Rosemary Taylor, Claire Carroll, Dorothy McHugh, Dorothy Burgess, Cuetta Jones, Mary Reed, Velma McKay, Katherine Smith and Lucille Shivers. They showed fashions for the war worker from the time that she dresses for business in the morning, through her hour of relaxation, her early evening date, her formal engagements.

Right Start Emphasized

The fact that the first impression is a physical one was stressed throughout the show. It is, therefore, essential that one's appearance on the job be A-1. The importance of budget was also discused by the commentator.

Mrs. Woodard Chairman

The show was presented by a committee consisting of:

Mesdames Ora Woodard, Carrie S. Young, Mary Gregory, Mildred L. Vernon, Nancy Lovell;

Misses Muriel C. Lewis and Mildred Slaughter and Spurgeon Burke, manager of the Lucy Diggs Slowe Hall.

Pears on Jan. Stamp List

French pears have been added to the January list of foods available to persons participating in the blue food stamp plan, according to an announcement to the AFRO this week, and shell eggs have been removed from the list.

The complete blue stamp food list for January, 1943, includes fresh apples, grapefruit and pears, plus all fresh vegetables and a variety of flour and cereal products.

Shell eggs, available during December, have been removed from the list because of a second low in production plus increased military and consumer demands.

City Clubs Co-operate in Red Cross Project

Among the holiday projects for the men in service this season was a co-operative effort on the part of a number of local clubs to fill stockings and birthday boxes to be sent to nearby camps and hospitals through the Camp and Hospital Service of the American Red Cross.

Under the direction of the chairman, Mrs. Gideon Steiff, hundreds of stockings and boxes were distributed before Christmas.

Mrs. Lester Morton was district chairman, and Mrs. Adah K. Jenkins was chairman of the Monday Sewing Club.

Others assisting were:

Mrs. Willard Allen, for the Sardonix Club; Mrs. Lillie Owens, Terdeta Club; Mrs. Ayrie Hawkins, Mrs. Maude Jones, Sweethearts' Club, Mrs. Bessie Jones, president; Ames Methodist Church, through Mrs. E. A. Hall.

Yadsents' Club, Miss Zelma Coles, president; Wilson Park Association, Mrs. W. F. Harris, president; Junior Missionary Society of Ebenezer Baptist Church, Miss Meekins, president; Students of Cortez Peters Business School, Miss Evelyn Wilkie, instructor, and Miss Doris Wood, solicitor.

Women's Club of Grace AME Church, Catonsville, Mrs. Frances Coe, president; Mrs. Mollie Killion, Miss Lillian Trusty, Glenford Price.

Fills 12 Stockings

The donation of twelve filled stockings by the Yadsents' Club, a group of the young college women, marks their second contribution to the Red Cross this month. Their first donation was a down comfort for hospital use.

Kit bags in a special emergency Christmas order were made by Mrs. Robert Jackson and Mrs. Henry Jenkins.

Red Cross gold service pins for over 100 hours of volunteer sewing and knitting have been awarded recently to Mrs. Herbert Hines, Mrs. Geneva Mussendon, and Mrs. Martina Hall.

Congressional Medal Winner Recalls Navy Career

Dick Turpin, Now 77, Saved Many Lives; Taught at Annapolis

Former Chief Gunner's Mate Was in Thick of Spanish-American War; Diving Led to Inventions

LOS ANGELES—Still erect and almost as stalwart as when he rode the waves aboard Uncle Sam's great men-o-war, J. H. (Dick) Turpin, now 77, last week recounted highlights of a sensational navy career which won him the Congressional Medal of Honor.

Here on a visit with his wife, the former Miss Fay Hollis of this city, whom he married in 1941, Turpin talked to a group of newspapermen in his room at the Dunbar Hotel.

He sketched his sea career from its beginning, when, at the age of 8, he sailed as a stowaway on a U.S. fruit steamer from his home in Tangiers, Spanish Morrocco, near the scene of the North African second front of World War II.

Hero of Maine Disaster

It was twenty-five years later when he won the nation's highest military honor for his heroism in saving his commander, Captain C. D. Sigsbee, and numerous other shipmates in the blowing up of the Battleship Maine in Havana (Cuba) Harbor in 1898.

The year 1905 brought another citation in which Turpin was credited with being again entitled to the honor which he had already received: this time in connection with a boiler explosion on the gunboat Bennington at San Diego, Calif.

Saved 24 Lives

Ashore at the time, he swam out to rescue two officers and seven enlisted men from the water, then boarded the sinking ship where fifteen others, trapped below deck, climbed to safety with Turpin's suspended body replacing a broken ladder.

In the intervening years he had served under Admiral Sampson when his command destroyed Admiral Cevera's Spanish fleet at Santiago; aboard the U.S.S. Yosemite which sank off the island of Guam; in the expedition to suppress tribal war in the Samoan Islands, and in China during the Boxer Rebellion.

Instructed at Annapolis

Turpin's reputation as an expert gunner brought him to the Naval Academy at Annapolis in 1909 to help set up a gunnery target shed. He remained there through 1910 and 1911 and served as an instructor in gun firing and mounting, as well as in high-speed engine operation, with which he was equally familiar.

As a deep-sea diver, Turpin's exploits included assistance in raising the F-4, sunk off the coast of Honolulu in 1914, duty as supervisor of inspections of hulls and bottoms of convoy ships during World War I and a number of years' of service at the Brenerton (Wash.) Navy Yards.

Inventions Now Used

While in the latter service he was once imprisoned under water for nineteen hours due to a fouled air line. Retaining his composure to the extent that he signaled the crew above to keep pumping air while he took a nap, he awoke with a vision which led to his subsequent invention of certain under-water torch devices now in general use.

Turpin held the rating of chief gunner's mate when he first retired in 1918. He was recalled to active duty during the first World War. Now in final retirement, he makes his home in Bremerton.

Berkley New Director of NY Anti-Bias Unit

NEW YORK—Charles G. Berkley, field representative of the N.Y. War Council's committee on discrimination in employment, has been promoted to executive director, replacing Andrew C. Doyle, by Miss Frieda S. Miller, industrial commissioner, it was revealed last week.

Mr. Doyle, who had served as director during a year's leave of absence from the State mediation board, at the request of Arthur S. Meyer, chairman of the board, has returned to his job as supervising labor mediator in Albany.

The state owes a great debt to Mr. Doyle whose mediation experiences and sound judgment enabled him to pioneer in the development—for the first time in the United States—of methods of securing compliance with our anti-discrimination statues by appeals and persuasion, with force as a last resort," Commissioner Miller said.

Former League Secretary

Mr. Berkley who has served as one of the committee's five field representatives under Mr. Doyle has worked on special cases involving integration of minority groups in many of the largest war plants in N.Y.C. where labor surpluses created difficult problems of discrimination, the commissioner said.

Previous to his present position, Mr. Berkley was industrial secretary of the Brooklyn Urban League in which capacity he organized a co-ordinated program looking toward the training and placement of colored persons in war industries working with employers, labor unions and public groups.

Mr. Berkley brings an unusual measure of organizing ability to a new and difficult field where such ability is a prime requisite. I am proud of being able thus to recognize a member of the colored race on the basis of outstanding qualification, the same basis on which we urge such recognition in industry," Miss Miller declared.

Both Want War Won

These men have learned that both races can work together harmoniously. Intent on doing their share in producing the weapons needed to win the war, they are applying advanced manufacturing methods to insure the production of bombers during 1943.

Urge Roosevelt to Smash Dixie Conspirators

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—A petition with a thousand signatures of colored and white Southerners from all walks of life was forwarded to President Roosevelt last week, calling upon the Commander-in-Chief to take firm measures to smash the mounting revolt of Southern political reaction against the essential wartime-war measures of the administration.

The statement, issued by the Southern Negro Youth Congress, accused "a noisy band of poll tax demagogues" of attempting to incite the white people of the South against colored in order to destroy national unity.

It accused these men of leading attacks on labor, provoking violence against colored people, organizing phoney "grass roots" opposition to the rationing and price fixing system—all in a mad effort to discredit the President's leadership.

U.S. Security at Stake

The petition also pointed out that "these selfish men are motivated by a fear of social legislation, political reforms (such as the abolition of the poll tax)" which are being born in the course of this people's war and which operate to undermine their reactionary grip on the national life.

The statement warned that these men have grown in their boldness and that the security of our country and the success of our war effort demand that they be removed from political life.

Further stating that their actions in organizing leagues for white supremacy have already linked them with Hitler, the petitioners urged the administration to root out and destroy the arrogant band of Dixie fifth columnists.

Among the "inciters of disunity" specifically named are Horace Wilkinson, Gessner T. McCorvey, Governor Frank M. Dixon, Congressman Joseph Starnes, Martin Dies, and Governor Eugene Talmadge. Louis E. Burnham, secretary of the congress, forwarded the petition to the President.

Lee Men Trained in Gas Defenses

CAMP LEE, Va.—Cadre-men of the Second Quartermaster Training Brigade had their first class in defense against chemical attack last Saturday in connection with a school in military science.

The brigade cadre-men attended a lecture and demonstration on field identification of chemical agents, and heard descriptions of the odor and effect of different war gases. They entered a chamber filled with a training gas and after crossing the room, donned their gas masks.
