downward tendency. It is from the halls of the People's Representatives that light must radiate through the forests and over the mountains to the remotest borders of the country. It is there that demagogueism must be exposed, and political corruption unveiled. It is only through the agency of the conservative powers of the two Houses, that this can ever be effected. It is upon the independent spirit and firm resolves of the Senate especially, that the reliance of the country mainly rests at the present moment, for thwarting the plans of those who labor to substitute a blind party rule for free and deliberate action of the several branches of Government hitherto supposed to have been guarded by the Constitution under which we live.

EASTON GAZETTE

EASTON, (MD.)

Saturday Morning, Nov. 29.

CONGRESS.—The second Session of the present Congress will commence at Washington on Monday next.

Our county Court adjourned on Saturday last.—On Friday MATTHEW SPENCER, Esq was admitted as an Attorney.

The honorable PELEG SPRAGUE, Senator from Maine, has resigned his seat in the Senate of the United States.

The great Solar Eclipse, takes place on Sunday the 30th inst. In Savannah, Charleston, and Beaufort, South Carolina, the Eclipse will be total. Several distinguished astronomers from different sections of the union, have proceeded to the South, to witness it.

Important to readers and publishers of newspapers.—A prosecution was some time since instituted by the proprietors of the New-York Daily Sentinel against a subscriber for the amount of his subscription to that paper He pleaded that he had not ordered the paper, that it was sent him without his requesting it. The plaintiff however, recovered the amount claimed; for it was decided, that persons receiving a newspaper, without ordering it to be discontinued, are liable in every instance for the price of subscription.

Subscribers wishing to stop their papers need not be at the trouble and expense of writing the publisher by mail. They have only to give notice of their wishes to the Post-Master, at whose office the paper is received, whose duty it is made by law, to give the publisher the necessary notice.

CINCINNATI ELECTION.—The Cincinnati Daily Gazette states, that Mr Mason intends to contest the election of Mr. Lytle before the House of Representatives, on the plea that nearly twenty votes intended for Mr. M. were improperly rejected, and that Mr. Lytle received nearly forty illegal votes in one district.

Mr. Lytle, of Ohio, will make a rather grotesque figure on entering, next month the House of Representatives at Washington. His resignation of his seat would seem to have been a mere stratagem;—his re-election, as the statement of the Cincinnati correspondent of the Baltimore Patriot shews, might be called both ridiculous and abortive, considering his plan and the nature of the result. The case may be better understood by the following extract from a letter which we have just received.

Nat. Gazette.

"CINCINNATI, Nov. 12.

"Lytle is elected. His vote falls sixteen hundred short of Storer's on the 11th of last month;—there was no regularly nominated Whig candidate opposed to him;—his majority is but forty-eight, and yet the Van Buren paper of this city has a paragraph of exultation of this morning."

RIOTERS.—The Baltimore Chronicle of Thursday says:—The detachment under the command of Col. Campbell, returned last evening from the scene of the late riots on the Baltimore and Washington Rail Road, with from 250 to 300 prisoners, who were lodged in the gaol We have not heard whether the persons concerned in the murders have been identified—but we hope that the most rigid examination will be had, before any of those arrested are discharged.

The New York Gazette says:—The Rhone from Havre, has brought one hundred thousand dollars, in gold, being a portion of the first instalment on the claims of our citizens against the Neapolitan government. The Utica (momently expected) and Formosa each have a similar amount on board.

From the Frederick Herald of Nov. 22.

The hon. Henry Clay passed through this city yesterday, on his way to Princeton, N J where he has a son at college. Messrs, Grundy, Ewing and Knight, the committee of the senate engaged in investigating the affairs of the post office department, also left Frederick yesterday for Washington. They were last from Chambersburg, Pa.

We copy the following article from the Rockville Journal:—

"Senator of Maryland—We regret to see some difference of opinion, if not acrimony of feeling, displayed by some of the newspapers of the Eastern Shore, in discussing the rival pretentions of the Candidates for the high station vacated by the resignation of Judge Chambers. For several of the gentlemen who have been named, and who are personally known to us, we have the greatest respect, and believe them worthy and competent; but under existing circumstances, we think the appointment of Senator ought to be delayed till the meeting of the Legislature. There is no immediate necessity of making the appointment before the meeting of the Assembly, and we think it would be strictly in accordance with the republican principles of our government, that the appointment should be left to those who have been so lately delegated by the People to act for them, in all matters which concern their political welfare.

As to the appointment itself, we would further remark, that none but the highest considerations should prevail. In the absence of statutetory provisions, CUSTOM is often observed as a rule of action; but it is obligatory no further than it is necessary, proper, and expedient. The alternate selection of our Governors from the Eastern and the Western Shore; the equal division of some other appointments, and particularly of Senators to the Congress of the United States, has been so customary, that our friends on the Eastern Shore, seem to regard as a matter of right, what originated in, and has only been observed from courtesy and good feeling We would go very far to encourage reciprocal good feeling between the people of the two Shores, and we do not think that a departure should be made from a custom which has not hitherto been very objectionable, in order to effect particular purposes, much less to subserve particular interests; but in the appointment presently to be made that individual alone should be selected, (whether he is an inhabitant of this or that Shore,) who should be deemed most worthy of the honor, and best qualified to perform the duties of the station."

We find the following statement in the Philadelphia Inquirer, of the 20th.

"Political Movements.—We learn that anything but union and harmony prevailed at the Reform meeting of Monday last. In consequence of the storm that raged at the time, but few attended—only a hundred or so. The meeting was pretty equally divided as to the reformers & anti-reformers, although the latter were in the majority. The Hon. H. Lo a was called to the chair, and Messrs Dunne, Sawyer, and Fraim were appointed Vice Presidents. Resolutions in favor of some very decided amendments to the Constitution was then submitted by Thomas Earle, when a contest ensued that has few parallels in the history of public meetings. It seems that the friends of Dr Sutherland, Governor Wolf, and the State office holders marshalled themselves on one side, against reform, while the friends of Mr Van Buren, the Kitchen Cabinet, and Mr. Muhlenberg, rallied on the other, in favor of reform.—We are told that the tempest without was nothing compared to that which raged within the court room—that the most violent language was employed, and the most discreditable personal allusions made. The contest was eventually decided in favor of the reformers."

Melancholy Shipwreck.—We learn from the New York Commercial Advertiser, that the brig George P. Stevenson, Capt Curtis, of and from Baltimore, bound to Rio Janeiro, was capsized 6th inst. lat. 35 50, long. 71, in a gale from NNW under a close reefed maintopsail. The mainmast and foretopmast were cut away when she righted full of water—the hatches broken open, both boats stove to pieces, and every thing washed from the decks. Capt. Curtis and his wife, two seamen and a boy, were drowned.

The two officers—Mr. Joseph Gavet and Joseph Richardson—and the remainder of the crew, succeeded in lashing themselves in the fore rigging The next day the cook and one boy died, and the remainder survived on the wreck, without a drop of water until the 14th, at 1, P. M. when they were taken off by Captain Thomas R. Shapter, of the brig Cornelia, from Rio Janeiro, and arrived in New York on Friday. The officers and crew return their sincere thanks to Captain Shapter for his kind treatment while on board his vessel.

Extract of a letter from Washington.

"What will your neighbour of the Republican say, when he finds that the President will not deny the substance, as reported of the Gordonville conversation? He will feel mean enough, and will probably attempt to throw the responsibility upon poor Goodwin, whose letter he paraded before his readers, and made such a fuss about. He cannot, however, do this, as Goodwin does not in fact, assert that no such conversation took place

Your townsman, Mr John Barney, it is said, has called upon the President, and told him that if he would disclaim the conversation, he (Barney) would assume the responsibility of saying to the public, that he believes that his informant must have been mistaken. The old Roman mounted his high horse, and said, or swore, as the case may be, that he should not trouble himself with disclaiming such trifling things (as slandering Senators in taverns)

I hear that Blair is getting quite alarmed at the N American. You know that when the American first appeared, the Globe denounced it as an enemy in disguise, & as having been got up under the auspices of Duff Green. But the falsehood would not take. The N American go on bravely, and poor Blair has had to acknowledge it to be a good democrat and what is still worse, he has had to go down on his marrow bones and offer a fair share of the "plucking" of the Departments, if the N. American will not stand in his way for the printing of Congress. Blair finds that some of the Big Ones are patronizing the N. American, and he is as humble as a spaniel The difficulty now is, as I am informed, that they cannot trust Blair. He cheated them once by means of Croxall, who got an office for his share in the roguery, and they are determined to fight on their own hook, unless Blair makes all sure against another trick?"—[Balt. Chron.

From the Ohio State Journal.

POST OFFICE FACILITIES.

It will be recollected that under all former Administrations, but more especially while Jno. McLean was at the head of the Post Office, no demands against the general government were discharged with more promptness than those against that Department As a sample of what is daily occurring now, we give the following narration of facts.

Adam Hance is a contractor for carrying the mail on two routes—one, if we remember rightly, from Tiffin in Seneca county, to Fitchville in Huron county; and the other, from perhaps the same point to Middlebury, in the county of Portage. Some nine or ten months since his quarterly compensation having become due, he sent on to the Department for it. No notice was taken of his application for a long time; but after repeated solicitations, he at length received a draft upon William Elliott, late Postmaster at New Haven, Ky. This was some hundred miles distant from Mr. Hance's residence; but he thankfully accepted the draft, and forwarded it according to the direction, supposing that it would be paid on sight. Shortly afterwards, however, it came back protested—Mr. Elliott averring that he had paid over the full amount of his indebtedness some time before on a draft in favor of another person.

Again, Mr. Hance addressed the Department, stating the fact, and returning the unpaid draft. In process of time, he received a second draft on William Elliott, late Postmaster at New Haven, Ohio, but this, like its predecessor, soon came back protested—there never having been any such Postmaster at the place last mentioned. It was accordingly returned to the Department with all due formality; and when we saw Mr. Hance, a few weeks since, he was impatiently waiting for another remittance. In the mean time, two additional quarters had expired, for which no payment had been made; and as the contractor could not afford to lie out of his money much longer, the prospect was that the route would soon be relinquished. Such a course as this, if pursued by a private individual towards a creditor, would be pronounced highly dishonorable, if not infamous; but proceeding as it does from one of the Departments of the government, it will, we presume be considered perfectly just and equitable, the contractor must be content to take his pay in "glory," instead of cash.

Post Office and the currency.—Samuel Usher of Kingsfield, Me., has lately been arrested for opening a letter received at his office, and purloining therefrom a five hundred dollar bill. Usher was appointed to this office since Gen Jackson took the responsibility—the old Post Master, a worthy and respectable man, being removed for the purpose. More scoundrels have been detected in the Post Office Department than in all other branches of the government, and that is a bold work. In this very case the emoluments of the office are stated to have been too small so satisfy what Usher deemed due to him for his party services—being a great bellower of Jacksonism and he accordingly eked out his desets by pilfering a modicum of the 'rag money.' He is not the only self-recompensed knave in that department. There is more than one vapid coxcomb with no other means of getting his daily provender than by foraging on the public.

Great Literary Enterprise

Prospectus of two new Volumes

OF

WALDIE'S LIBRARY FOR 1835

The "Select Circulating Library" has been for some time fairly classed amongst the established periodical publications of the country having obtained a credit and circulation unprecedented, when the price is considered, this certainty, by allowing greater freedom to our efforts, is calculated to render them at once strenuous and more effectual. The objects that Waldie's Library had in view, was the dissemination of good new books every where at the cheapest possible rates, and experience has proved that a year's subscription will pay for ONE HUNDRED AND SIXTY SIX DOLLARS worth of books at the London prices.

New and enlarged type. Volume 5, to be commenced early in January 1835, will be printed with new and enlarged type, rendering the work free from any objection that may have been made by persons of weak eyes.

The Journal of Belles Lettres, printed on the cover, will be continued without any charge. It contains every week, reviews and extracts from the newest and best books as they come from the press; literary intelligence from all parts of the world, and a register of the new publications of England and America, being the earliest vehicle to disseminate such information, and by the perusal of which, a person, however remote from the marts of books, may keep pace with the times.

As it is usual to wish in behalf of a son, that he may prove a better man than his father so we, without meaning any particular reflection on our former volumes, received with such distinguished favor, hope and trust that our future may surpass them; for experience ought always to produce improvement, more especially when as in our case, it lessens the number of difficulties we had to encounter in the outset.

The objects the Library had in view, were fully detailed in the prospectus; the following extracts from that introductory paper will prove the spirit of that liberality in which the work was undertaken, and also that we have had no occasion to deviate from the original plan.

Extracts from the original Prospectus.

In presenting to the public a periodical entirely new in its character, it will be expected that the publisher should describe his plan and the objects he hopes to accomplish

There is growing up in the United States a numerous population, with literary tastes, who are scattered over a large space, and who distant from the localities whence books and literary information emanate, feel themselves at a great loss for that mental food which education has fitted them to enjoy. Books are cheap in our principal cities, but in the interior they cannot be procured as soon as published, nor without considerable expense. To supply this desideratum is the design of the present undertaking, the chief object of which emphatically is to make good reading cheaper, and to put it in a form that will bring it to every man's door

Books cannot be sent by mail, while the Select Circulating Library" may be received at the most distant post office in the Union in from fifteen to twenty five days after it is published, at a little more expense than newspaper postage; or in other words, before a book could be bound in Philadelphia, our subscribers in the most distant states may be perusing it in their parlours.

To elucidate the advantages of the "Select Circulating Library" such as we propose, it is only necessary to compare it with some other publications. Take the Waverly novels for example; the Chronicles of the Canongate occupy two volumes; which are sold at $1.25 to $1.50. The whole would be readily contained in five numbers of this periodical, at an expense of fifty cents, postage included! So that more than three times the quantity of literary matter can be supplied for the same money by adopting the newspaper source of circulation. But we consider transmission by mail and the early receipt of a new book, as a most distinguished feature of the publication. Distant subscribers will be placed on a footing with those nearer at hand, and will be supplied at their own homes with equal to about Fifty Volumes of the common London novel size for Five Dollars.

Arrangements have been made to receive from London an early copy of every new book printed either in the mart of talent, or in Edinburgh, together with the periodical literature of Great Britain. From the former we shall select the Novels, Memoirs, Tales, Travels Sketches, Biography, &c. & publish them with as much rapidity and accuracy as an extensive printing office will admit. From the latter, such literary intelligence will regularly be culled, as will prove interesting & entertaining to the lover of knowledge, and science, and literature, & novelty. Good standard novels, and other works, now out of print, may also occasionally be re-produced in our columns.

The publisher confidently assures the heads of families, that they need have no dread of introducing the "Select Circulating Library" into their domestic circle, as the gentleman who has undertaken the Editorial duties, to literary tastes and habits adds a due sense of the responsibility he assumes in catering for an extended and moral community, and of the consequences, detrimental or otherwise, that will follow the dissemination of noxious or wholesome mental aliment. His situation and engagements afford him peculiar advantages and facilities for the selection of books—These, with the additional channels created by agencies at London Liverpool, and Edinburgh, warrant the proprietor in guaranteeing a faithful execution of the literary department.

It would be supererogatory to dilate on the general advantages and convenience which such a publication presents to people of literary pursuits wherever located but more particularly to those who reside in retired situations—they are so obvious that the first glance cannot fail to flash conviction of its eligibility.

TERMS.

"The Select Circulating Library" is printed weekly on a double medium sheet of fine paper of sixteen pages with three columns on each, and mailed with great care so as to carry with perfect safety to the most distant post office.

It is printed and finished with the same care and accuracy as book work. The whole fifty two numbers form two volumes well worth preservation, of 416 pages each, equal in quantity to 1200 pages, or three volumes, of Rees's Cyclopædia. Each volume is accompanied with a Title-page and Index.

The price is FIVE DOLLARS for fifty two numbers of sixteen pages each,—a price at which it cannot be afforded unless extensively patronized. ☞ Payment at all times in advance.

Agents who procure five subscribers, shall have a receipt in full by remitting the publisher $20, and a proportionate compensation for a larger number. This arrangement is made to increase the circulation to an extent which will make it an object to pay agents liberally. Clubs of five individuals may thus procure the work for $4.00, by uniting in their remittances.

Subscribers living near agents, may pay their subscriptions to them; those otherwise situated may remit the amount to the subscriber at his expense, if payment is made in money at par in Philadelphia. Our arrangements are all made for the fulfilment of our part of the contract.

Subscribers' names should be immediately forwarded in order that the publisher may know how many to print of the forthcoming volumes.

Companion to Waldie's Library.

The cheapest reprint from English Periodicals ever offered to the public.

Before the Select Circulating Library had been long in existence, it was discovered that there was still something wanting—that many occurrences in the literary world must pass unknown, as regarded our agency, without an extension of the plan. To establish a fuller medium of communication and supply the desideratum, the Journal of Belles Lettres was added; which we have reason to believe has afforded general satisfaction. The very liberal patronage extended to the Library induced the proprietor to give that gratuitously as an evidence of his acknowledgements.

More extended experience has shown other desiderata which the "Companion" is intended to supply. While reading for the "Library" a large mass of material accumulates on the hands of the Editor, of an interesting, entertaining, and instructive description, such as would properly come under the designation of Magazinisma, interpersed with the Reviews from the English Quarterlies To publish every thing of this nature which we deem desirable would encroach too much on the columns of the "Library" designed for books, and yet to pass them by is constantly a subject of regret. To concentrate, therefore, the publication of Books entire, Reviews, lists of new works, the choicest contributions to Magazines, &c. &c. &c. the "Companion to Waldie's Library" will be offered to the patronage of the present subscribers and the public at large. It is believed that with the "Library," the "Journal," and the "Companion," such an acquaintance with the literature of the age may be cultivated as to leave little further to be desired. Being all published from the same office, more facility offers for subscribing, and having fewer people to deal with, mistakes are less liable to occur, and more readily corrected when they do. The short interval of two weeks between the publication of each number, it is thought too, will be an advantage over monthlies and quarterlies.

The following plan is respectfully submitted.

1. The "COMPANION" will contain the earliest possible reprints of the best matter in the British periodicals.

2. It will be issued every fortnight, and the form will be the same as that of the Library—each number containing sixteen pages—thus, every six months, giving thirteen numbers, which can be bound with the Library at little or no more expense, and making a better sized volume; and to those who do not take the Library itself, a volume every year, of 416 quarto pages of the size of the present

3. The price will be three dollars for a subscriber—five dollars for two—and clubs of five and upwards will be supplied at two dollars each.

4. As the work will not be commenced, unless a sufficient patronage be obtained, no payment is required at present, only the name, sent free of postage. Those wishing to support the publication will be pleased therefore to announce their intention as early as possible, as it is intended to commence the work on the first of January next. On the issuing of the second number payment will be expected, as its appearance will evince a sufficiency of patronage.

The proprietor of the "Select Circulating Library," fully aware from experience of the advantages to the public of the rapid diffusion of cheap and select literature, has been induced to add the important feature to the work, and of course leaves it optional with the present subscribers and others to take it or not.

It is confidently believed, that, with the attention on the part of the Editor, who has already at hand the material for such a work, all the really valuable matter of the English literary and amusing publications may be comprised in this form at a rate of subscription and postage, so trifling as scarcely to be felt. It will form the cheapest reprint of reviews and magazines ever attempted in any country; a comparison with others it were useless here to enter upon, the 'Library' itself being the best test by which to judge of the difference between an octavo and a quarto page. It will be the study of the Editor to embody a record of the day, adapted to the wants of this country, which can have no competitor for value or cheapness; how far he is likely to do this he must leave at present to the decision of his readers.

Clubs of five individuals, who subscribe to the "Library" and "Companion" both, will obtain the two for six dollars, the postage (a very important consideration) to the most distant post office, on the two, will be one dollar and ninety five cents, divided into seventy eight payments, and half that sum for 100 miles or a less distance from Philadelphia; while the same matter, in the usual American reprints of reviews and magazines in octavo form would be eighteen dollars, and the postage as three to one. We make this assertion advisedly.

☞ Subscription to the "Companion," will be taken either with or without the "Library."

The proprietor trusts that his punctuality and exactness in executing his part of the contract in the publication of the "Library," will be considered a sufficient guarantee of the completion of his proposed undertaking.
