DEMOCRATS, the ticket is made up! "Hang out our banners from the outward Walls," and get ready for the November engagement.

To be sure of the right to vote in the November election, all Democrats who have moved since the last election should apply for a transfer at his old polling place (Tuesday) and then take it to where he has moved and register.

THERE is no reason why any white man should not support the Democracy of Maryland when it comes before them, as it does this year, with its pledges to the people and which the Democratic candidates will carry out.

C. L. DODD has been elected chairman of the State Central Committee for Kent county. This is a well merited honor. Let every Democrat rally to his help in electing the ticket this Fall. It should receive the biggest vote ever gotten in Kent judging from the primary vote of over 2400.

GREAT EXPECTATIONS

Now that the tariff is settled some people will expect it to pay the butcher and the baker, set the table, ring the dinner-bell and say grace.—The Atlanta Conitit ution.

NOTIFICATION MEETING.

Unity and enthusiasm marked the real beginning of the Democratic State campaign Tuesday when Blair Lee, Emerson C. Harrington and Caleb C. Magruder were formally notified at the Rennert of their nominations for United States Senator, Comptroller and Clerk of the Court of Appeals, respectively, and when definite plans were adopted for a stirring canvas that would embrace every part of the State and continue until the eve of the election.

Every element of the party was represented and there was not the least evidence of dissension to mar the general good feeling. Democrats of all shades of opinion—out-and-out organization men, middle-of-the-road men and out-and-out progressives—said the party had settled upon its candidates and policies in an open and fair primary, and that the will of the majority should be accepted in good feeling.

Senator Lee in his speech of acceptance, made a strong appeal for harmony in all the counties, and especially for united support of all the local nominees of the party. He said the primary had been fought fairly, and that it was the duty of every Democrat, regardless of what his stand has been in the primary fights, to fall in behind the ticket this fall. He emphasized that course as a fundamental of Democratic principles, and as essential to the furtherance of party success and party efficiency in serving the people. This plea was cheered, though many who heard it had taken the opposite side to that of Senator Lee's friends in the local primary fights.

Reports made to the candidates and party managers from all over the State indicated a sweeping victory for the State candidates and excellent prospects for general success for the several local legislative tickets. Work has been started in all the counties and each one will be visited by the State candidates and a party of well-known speakers. In addition, it was arranged to have the State candidates go into a number of counties that have been Republican in the past, but where it is believed there is a chance to elect the local ticket this fall, and spend several days in a fine-tooth campaign.

At the Prohibition Convention held at Still Pond Wednesday, Thomas Rasin, and C. Z. Krusen, were named as candidates on the Prohibition ticket for Legislature.

THE CHILD IS HERE

His Name is "Bill Low Tariff," Robed In Income Dress With Agricultural Trimmings.

After long years of discussion and months of debate the Democrats of this country have finally passed a low tariff bill. At a glance we give its features:

Intended to reduce the cost of living.
Principal necessities of life free listed.
Duties on all luxuries boosted.
Deficit caused by wholesale free listing made up by tax on incomes above $4,000 ($3,000 for unmarried persons.)
To offset loss to farmers because of free listing of food products, all farm machinery made duty free.
New rates in effect the moment President signs measure, except sugar and wool.
Sugar to be free listed in 1916, reduction being one cent a year, beginning next March.
Free raw wool effective December 1: lowered rates on wool manufactures effective January 1.
Senate made 676 amendments to the House draft; in conference Senate receded 151 of these; House yielded on 427; compromises effected on 97; disagreement reported on 1.

The reductions on essentials are as follows:

FOOD PRODUCTS

Oatmeal and rolled oats, from 1 cent a pound to 30 cents per 100 pounds.
Butter and substitutes, from 6 per cent. to 2½ cents a pound.
Cheese and substitutes, from 31.79 per cent. to 20 per cent.
Onions, from 40 cents to 20 cents a bushel of 57 pound.
Peas, from 25 cents to 10 cents bushel.
Extracts of meat, from 35 cents to 10 cents a pound.
Chocolate and cocoa, prepared or manufactured, from 21.50 per cent. to 2 cents a pound.

SUNDRIES

Wearing apparel for which cattle, dog or goat skins are used, from 50 to 15 per cent.
Bags, satchels, pocketbooks, etc, from 47.23 to 30 per cent.
India rubber and manufactures thereof, known as druggists' sundries, from 40 per cent. to 15 per cent.

COTTON MANUFACTURES

Spool thread cotton, from 36 cents a dozen spools to 15 per cent. ad valorem.
Handkerchiefs or mufflers, not hemmed, from 45 per cent. to 25 per cent; hemmed, from 55 per cent. to 30 per cent.

SILKS AND SILK GOODS

Silks partly manufactured and not further advanced than carded or combed, from 35 cents a pound to 20 cents a pound.

STRANGE BLUNDER OF ARTISTS

In the dome of the Capitol of Washington there are eight great paintings—carefully designed and executed by the artists for the adornment of the nation's greatest buildings. Yet five of them are either defective in technique, or in error as to natural or historical facts.

One of the best known pictures is that in which Washington is show resigning his commission to the Continental Congress. There are two young girls, almost life size, standing in the foreground. They are very pretty young girls; but one of them has three hands. One left hand rests on the shoulder of her companion; another left hand is around her companion's waist. Doubtless the artist, Trumbull painted both hands to see which pose he prefered, and then forgot to paint out the superfluous hand.

Diagonally across the rotunda is the painting of the baptism of Pocahontas. Sitting in the foreground is Opecancanough, the uncle of Pocahontas. He is barefooted, and the artist has given him six toes on his left foot.

In the painting of the landing of Columbus, which used to be reproduced on the five-dollar-bank-note, the artist has printed three flags. They are very well drawn, but one is blowing east, one west, and one south, which indicates a very variable condition of the wind on that famous day.

In the picture of the surrender of Cornwallis, General Washington is conspicuous seated upon a white horse. But General Washington was not present at the surrender. Cornwallis did not surrender his army in person, but sent a subordinate officer to do so. Accordingly Washington detailed an officer of corresponding rank to receive the surrender. It would have been a breach of military etiquette for to be present.

The fifth picture, "Signing of the Declaration of Independence at Philadelphia, on July Fourth, 1776," is wrong only by title. The Declaration was adopted July fourth but it was not signed by the members of the Congress until August 2, 1776.

SEED WHEAT CLEANED.

We are prepared to clean your seed wheat on same terms as last year. Let us hear from you.

DR. BULL'S COUGH SYRUP IS THE best medicine for pulmonary troubles. One bottle will prove its excellence. 25c.

A RICH FEAST

Dr. S. Parker Cadman, the Brooklyn orator and scholar, of Chautauqua fame, held a refined audience of two hundred enraptured for an hour Tuesday afternoon in the Chestertown Lyceum. He came, with his wife, at the request of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Hubbard, and lectured for the "benefit of the Federated Club." That peerless jurist, Hon. James Alfred Pearce, introduced the speaker in a most graceful and appropriate manner. Dr. Cadman spoke on "Literature," its part in the making of a scholar, its part in the happiness of an individual, and its beneficent influence in our lives. As he opened up the vistas of enjoyment by delving into a good book it carried his hearers into elysian fields and made one wish to stay forever with its author. He pictured the little preacher's son, hungry for literature, buying one of Dickens' novels and changing the back of a religious book to his new bought treasure in order te deceive his father. He told of that same boy devouring book after book until today he was the big preacher in a Presbyterian church. He told of the miner's son, reading by a candle during the few moments snatched from a busy day's work, and who finally became one of the great philosophers. He told of David Livingstone, who read while pacing to and fro in front of his loom, and who finally became a great scholar. Then, as he finished these instances, the speaker burst forth into perorations of majesty and beauty.

He spoke of English writers especially, but had he longer time he would have covered wider fields. He did not think much of the novels of the hour while literature of the ages remains unread. He decried the card table, while the time might be so happily and beneficially spent in perusing or discussing some good book. He said that in New York all one did was to "gibble, gobble, gabble and git," but that on this glorious Eastern Shore we could certainly for a little while enjoy the companionship of a good book.

To the boys and girls in the gallery he placed high and noble ideals and impressed them with the need of spending every idle moment with some good book. He pictured in hideous colors the evil influences of a bad book, and made every one feel the need of greater vigilance in protecting the young against bad literature. The study of good literature nourishes youth, entertains old age, adorns prosperity, solaces adversity, is delightful at home and unobtrusive abroad, and the great standard as to purity and exactness of style is the Bible.

Dr. Cadman, in his inimitable manner, recommended a number of authors. In the words of a noted writer, "the triumphs of the warrior are bounded by the narrow theatre of his own age; but those of a Scott or a Shakespeare will be renewed with greater and greater lustre in ages yet unborn, when the victorious chieftain shall be forgotten or shall live only in the song of the minstrel and the page of the chronicler." George Elliott, nee Mary Ann Evans, was likened to Shakespeare and her Romola extolled to the skies. In short, he presented these authors to the young and old and made every one anxious to drink deep at this literary fountain: Shakespeare, Dickens, John Milton, Sir Walter Scott, George Elliott, Macauley, Thackeray, Tennyson, Sir Thomas Hood, Robert Burns and others.

After this superb address a reception to Dr. Cadman and his wife was held at the luxurious home of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Hubbard, on Chester river, which was participated in by about a hundred. Dr. Cadman was carried to Denton at night, where he spoke to a packed audience, and was the guest of Dr. M. B. Stephens.
