

The people chafe under the technicalities of a delayed (and expensive) trial, when there is no doubt of the culprit's guilt.

The life of the man murdered yesterday was of more worth than that of all the black "funds" in Md.

I am quite sure that some of the most sterling citizens of Md. and your constituents, made up that assemblage of Salisbury men. Had I been in Annapolis (and a man), it is probable I would have been among them. Yet, I lay claim to be a law-abiding citizen + for those who deserve law, + and a good Episcopalian.

I sincerely hope you will not attempt to do one iota more than you (as Governor of the State) feel you ostensibly must, by making inquiries about the affair. - I and 90% of my friends over there have supported you in your campaign. Enough said! Use your accustomed sagacity!

Very cordially,
Wm. C. Anderson
