recreation department.

Judge Backs Request

These included a community center director, a senior recreation leader, and a part-time recreation leader, requiring $5,000 all together.

Judge Charles E. Moylan, director of the Baltimore Youth Commission, told the board that the requested money would prove a sound, cheap and economical investment, inasmuch as the city was not being asked to buy new property, but to use facilities already available.

He pointed out that the city had spent only $300 for the promotion of its Youth Commission program.

Supervision Needed

Since its establishment three years ago, the commission has worked so effectively that Baltimore is the only city with a population of over 300,000 persons which has made a dent in its juvenile delinquency, he declared.

The third cause pleaded by the delegation was for the district supervisor. The two now employed, Mrs. Mae K. Folkes and C. C. Jackson, were reported heavily overtaxed.

The Rev. Caspar Glenn, chaplain at Cherry Hill, pointed out that the 600 homes have 2,691 tenants, including 1,582 under 21 years of age.

5,000 Would Benefit

The only recreation facility in a community center with little equipment and no leadership. In the immediate area, he said, are 5,000 persons who would be benefited.

Others who pointed out the false economy of cutting on recreation funds which might necessitate the expenditure of more money for institutional care for delinquents, included

Otho Pinkett, Cherry Hill project manager; the Rev. C. Baker Pearle, representing the Frontiers' Club; Myer Reidin, white, the Jewish Big Brother League;

Wallace Reidt, white, the Baltimore Youth Commission; Clarence Burrier, white, the Baltimore Housing Authority; and Addison V. Pinkney, the NAACP.

Actors Join D.C. Theater Boycott

plan were reported Thursday from Los Angeles where, in a contract between Dorothy Gish and Playwright John Patrick, it was stipulated that "The Gentle Ghost" should not be presented in Washington so long as present theater policy prevails.

The dramatists took note of protests against the National Theater and Lisner Auditorium, (the only two legitimate houses) for not admitting colored patrons, and issued a press release containing a statement by Robert E. Sherwood, and listed the names of those who agreed to the boycott.

Among those agreeing to the boycott were:

Maxwell Anderson, George Abbott, Irving Berlin, Ira Gershwin, Anita Loos, Robert E. Sherwood, Charles MacArthur, Oscar Hammerstein, Ben Hecht and Moss Hart.

The statement said:

"We American dramatists wish to join in effective protest against the practice of racial discrimination in legitimate theaters and auditoriums in Washington.

"We believe this practice is not in accord with either the sentiments or the principles of a large majority of theatergoers and leaders of the press here."

All who signed the statement are members of the Dramatists Guild and most are associated with the Playwrights Company which produced Ingrid Bergman's current vehicle, "Joan of Lorraine" showing at the Lisner.

Other Support Contemplated

Mr. Sherwood said the Guild members who signed were only a few who could be reached on short notice.

"There are undoubtedly a great many others who feel the same way, as well as many managers and many stars who will support the project," he added.

Miss Bergman has already spoken out vigorously against this practice," Sherwood remarked.

Manager's Statements

Upon hearing of the playwrights, action, Edmond Plohn, manager of the National Theater, declared that his organization would cross that bridge when they came to it, and added that the theater is booked until January

Manager of Lisner Auditorium Vincent De Angelis, said the building is not strictly a legitimate playhouse and can get along on concerts, lectures and local enterprises such as Children's Museum and the Columbia Light Opera Company.

Other names included in the statement were those of:

Maxwell Anderson denied that he knew of the Lisner's discrimination policy well in advance of bringing his play here.

Plohn declares that current contracts carry no such clause as that advocated by the Dramatists' Guild. He said the National would not be coerced into action, that it had to follow the custom of community.

He stated that he abhorred racial discrimination as much as anyone, but that he did not believe it would be modified by dramatic gestures.

Plohn's Attitude

"I do not think that one private institution in the nation's capital should be asked to provide a solution to a problem that has harassed the people since the species was created," he remarked.

landish offers, the intruder would persuade the innocent young women into posing in the nude while he snapped their pictures.

Picked Attractive Girls

No other personal advances were made, it was said, and the suspect would then move to the home of another victim.

In most cases, an investigation disclosed, the young women were generally attractive. This was borne out by the negative picture prints found on the suspect.

The man subsequently disappeared but was arrested a few days later. Having three previous narcotic law violations, Brown will serve his term in the Federal narcotic institution in Kentucky.

Boyd M. Martin, chief of the U.S. Narcotic Bureau here, said the dope was sold to patrons by means of a rope lowered from an upstairs window. Officers found quantities of the drug and related equipment in the house.

the NAACP by members of the Monumental Golf Club, who have only the nine-hole Carroll Park course to play on.

They contend that this is an inequality, in that white golfers use three public courses. One of these, Mt. Pleasant, cost more than a quarter of a million dollars.

Representing the golf club at the meeting were William Dixon, president; D. Arnett Murphy, William Adams and Henry G. Parks Jr.
