A Loyal, Devoted Worker

In another column is noted the death of Mrs. Augusta M. Bowers. After weeks of patient, Christian suffering, ministered unto by loving hands and hearts, this devout woman of God went to be with Him. "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of His saints" was true we believe in her case. Nearly her whole life was given up in church and Sunday school work. Her nature radiated sunshine, her heart beat in waves of sympathetic feeling, her mind thought in clarified terms of spiritual purpose, and her hand ready to mete out service in whole-souled and generous way.

We shall miss her loyal, devoted help and inspiration, but our loss is nothing comparable to the claims of the home—to the unquestioned proprietorship of the immortal love of children. There in the eternal bonds of the love that links us most nearly to the divine, life was lived at its best and dearest.

Oft as winter gentles downward to the lilac gates of spring,
Love will take up the harp of memory
and upon each silver string Wake an echo that'll recall her touch
chords that hymn her worth,
Bring again the gentle shadow of her
visage to the earth,
With its unforgotten smiling and its light
that breaks the gloom
Till the hearts that felt its sunshine out of darkness burst in bloom.

A Good Man Passes Away

As the sun arose in all its splendor on the morning of Saturday last there passed into the Great Beyond the spirit of James W. Lambert. If we write a column about him we could not do justice to the character of this man. It can all be summed up in one sentence—he was a good man. There were none so blind in spirit or so dull of heart who could come into his kindly presence without feeling the elevating influence of a nature whose first principle was love and benevolence toward all living things—a nature which was based upon an inborn Golden Rule of life, not reluctantly or as a duty, but freely and gladly, as if generosity and kindness were the highest privilege and pleasure—an essential part of his very existence itself, without which nothing would have been worth while to him.

James W. Lambert enjoyed his religion. He lived on the beautiful heights from which that divine message, the sermon on the mount, came and his natural atmosphere was that in which those words of peace and love were breathed. A soul made veritably in God's image looked out through loving eyes upon the world, seeking always and everywhere to add to the comfort and happiness of all with whom he came in contact. Many achieve fame in the world of letters, finance and statemanship and pass to the Great Beyond with hardly a regret, because they had failed to catch the true meaning of the Brotherhood of Man. But not so with James W. Lambert; be lived a modest life and yet had won a place in the hearts of his fellows, dying as he had lived, in peace and tranquility.

Servant of God, well done!
Thy glories warfare's past;
The battle's fought, the race is won,
And thou art crowned at last.

WE WANT A LIVE TOWN

Let's all get together and help to make our community a live one. We all realize the consequences of poor business, stagnation in commercial affairs, depreciation of real estate values, etc.

In other words, let's patronize our own county business men, instead of sending our dollars to the Chicago, New York, and Philadelphia mail order houses. Let's be loyal to our own best interests instead of helping to bolster up the big monopolistic establishments that are draining our resources of all the ready money in sight.

It is the aim of the big city man order houses to drive the small town merchants out of business, so that we will all be compelled to send to the cities for our merchandise. The big mail order houses are spending thousands of dollars every month to accomplish this object.

They will do it, too, unless we are sensible enough to stop it.

It is up to us to prevent the big mail order houses from driving our storekeepers out of business, for several reasons, the greater of which are that our community will be rubbed off the map if we have no business concerns and that our ownership of property here will not amount to anything, in this event.

The local stores, to a very large extent, make this town. The taxes paid by our business men are the principal support of our schools and churches. It is the taxes paid by our storekeepers that pay for the local improvements, for the street lighting for fire protection and for all other communistic privileges and protection.
