B. C. AND A. WINS NATIONAL SAFETY EMPLOYE CONTEST

The National Safety Council has just announced that the 1927 safety contest among employees of the forty-two Class I railroads in Group G was won by the Baltimore, Chesapeake and Atlantic Railway, a subsidiary of the Pennsylvania Railroad System. Employees of this Company had the lowest total casualty rate in the entire group.

The National Safety Council trophy a large bronze plaque of appropriate design, has been received on behalf of the employees by C. S. Kirck, of Philadelphia, President of the Baltimore, Chesapeake and Atlantic Railway, who is also a Vice-President of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

During the next few months, the trophy will be exhibited at various places along the B. C. and A. and then will be returned to Broad Street Station, Philadelphia.

In the railroad employees' safety contest last year, all Class I railroad in the country were classified by the National Safety Council into seven groups, according to their respective man-hour exposure, ranging from more than 100,000,000 man-hours Class I includes all railroads having gross revenues of $1,000,000 a year or more.

In Group 9, the B. C. and A. Railway had the smallest number of casualties to employees per million man-hours worked during the year, according to the official records of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

In forwarding the trophy to Mr. Kirck, H. E. Niesz, President of the National Safety Council, congratulated the employees for their achievement which, he said, "means so much in the saving of human life and suffering and as an example to other railroads and to all industries of what can be accomplished through energetic, continuous safety activity."

CHESAPEAKE SPAN WILL NECESSITATE NEW RIVER BRIDGE

That completion of the proposed Chesapeake Bay span between the Eastern and Western Shores of Maryland will unquestionably necessitate the construction of a handsome new concrete bridge, connecting Queen Anne's Counties at Chestertown, is the opinion expressed by Austin F. Shure, district engineer for the Maryland State Roads Commission.

He had no hesitancy in giving voice to the opinion that the present wooden structure would be entirely inadequate to accommodate the heavy traffic which would result from the flow of vehicles passing across the Chesapeake span.

The original bridge connecting Queen Anne's and Kent counties was built in 1805. It was destroyed some years later and was rebuilt and sold to the two counties in 1890. By an act of the Legislature, it was taken over by the State in 1912 and has been maintained by the State Roads Commission for 15 years. Traffic has so increased, says Mr. Shure, that at present the daily average 12-hour traffic amounts to 75 vehicles and 1000 automobiles and trucks. The bridge originally was owned and operated by a private company and paid 17 per cent on the investment. town over Sunday.

Engineer Shure said that though many conferences will be held and some misunderstandings engendered among supporters and promoters of the proposed bay bridge, it is likely the span will ulttimately be constructed.

The Shore official believes, however, that the problem presented by the bay's waters driving along under a heavy winter wind will be difficult to solve by engineers, and that, when completed, the bridge will be one of the greatest engineering feats in the history of the United States.
