EEL VICTOR IN RACE

The Eel, champion of the International Star Yacht Racing Association for 1929, won the first race in the series for the Gulf Lipton trophy on Friday on Lake Pontchartrian, New Orleans. The sloop led the Sparkler II, runner-up in the international championships, across the finish line by 5 minutes and 5 seconds.

Eleven boats started, but the Stella, of the New Orleans-Gulf fleet, sailed by William C. Kuhn, withdrew on the outer stake.

Vixen II, which raced in the recent international star class races, representing the New Orleans-Gulf was purchased Thursday evening by William Stewart, of New Orleans.

It was sailed in the Lipton race by William A. Porteous, Jr., the boat representing the weN Orleans-Gulf fleet.

Tomboy, also starter in the international races, representing the Hampton Roads fleet, was reported sold to N. P. Weed, of New York, but did not start in the Lipton race.

They Should Know Better

Another reason for the alarming increase of unhappy marriages is that too many girls marry before they are fully able to support a husband.

Results of Thinking

Benefits from never wasting anything are clearly emphasized if we, as a scientist would, think about the matter, consider our condition and possibilities of "arriving" if we are prudent.

Just notice how people who save regularly do succeed.

MD. WATER AND SEWERAGE ASSO.

Sanitary engineering problems of interest to health officials and to all concerned with community well-being are discussed in the report of the proceedings of the third annual meeting of the Maryland Water and Sewerage Association, which has just come off the press and of which copies may be obtained through the secretary, Mr. F. W. Caspari, Division Engineer of the Maryland State Department of Health.

The objects of the Association, the advancement of the knowledge of design, construction, operation and management of water and sewerage systems and of the treatment of industrial wastes—are indicated by the subjects discussed. These include: "Methods and Costs of Water and Sewer Construction in the Washington Suburban Sanitary District," by H. R. Devilbiss, Department Engineer of that District; "Pumping Sewage in the Baltimore County Metropolitan District," by J. F. Diggs, Jr., Principal Assisant Engineer for Sewer Extensions for that District; "The Design of Salisbury's Water and Sewer Systems," by G. B. Leonard, Assistant City Engineer of Salisbury; "The Water Supplies," by W. N. Spring, of the Bureau of Sanitary Engineering of the Maryland State Department of Health: "The Selection of Pumping Equipment for Well Supplies," by E. G. Kastenhuber, Jr. Consulting Engineer of Easton; "The Control of Filter Washing" by Edw. E. Hopkins, Principal Sanitary Chemist of the Water Department, Baltimore.

Another engineering problem is discussed in a paper on "Tomato Cannery Waste Treatment" by Roland Webster, Manager of the Rock Hall Cooperative Cannery. A paper by G. W. Stephens, Jr., Chief Engineer of the Roland Park Company, Baltimore, on "Landscape Treatment of Surroundings of Water and Sewerage Plants," emphasizes the importance of esthetic consideration as well as of the utilitarian features in the arrangement of water and sewer plants.

The volume is concluded by a "Question Box" in which various practical questions are asked and answered.

TURKEY QUESTION GOES OUT

Following a letter of information and instruction sent out by the extension Service, return postal cards have gone out from the Maryland Turkey Growers' Association of Kent County. These cards ask for information concerning the number of turkeys each grower will have for shipment at Thanksgiving and at Christmas, with the estimated average weight of each bird. The card explains that all expenses, including grading, handling and package, will be pro-rated among members on pound basis, keeping the overhead as low as possible.

Any turkey grower in the county or on the Peninsula is eligible to take advantage of the marketing methods upon joining the Growers' Association. The annual dues of 50 cents have been made so that even the small grower will find the dues no burden whatever. County Agents on the Shore have been notified of the plan and urged to form a similar organization or come in with the Kent growers in order to obtain a more uniform price for turkeys. It was found last season that further down the Shore buyers were able to purchase birds at such low prices that it hurt the price standard of his northern section considerably. Northern buyers are showing an interest in Kent's plan and several letters have already been received inviting business through commission houses. The bidding plan is hoped for and in order to attract satisfactory bids the number of pounds of birds to be offered is essential, therefore growers are urged to use the cards and return as soon as possible to the secretary so the statistics may be forwarded to possible bidders.

The firm of George F. Hinrichs, Inc., with whom the Farm Bureau did business for the turkey growers several years ago, has written expressing their approval of the plan of government grading and the use of "Delmarva" insignia. Hinrichs, is one of the largest and best concerns in New York City, well-known to the turkey raisers of this section for their square dealing and the fact that they show positive interest in our local turkey crop goes to show that the plan is at least having its effect as an advertisement and is putting Kent on the map in the turkey world.

The big trouble with prohibition is that most people think the law is optional.
