GENTLEMEN,

For sale or Exchange.

THE subscriber offers to sell or exchange for other land, a small tract of land in the state of Kentucky, consisting of 300 acres, about 110 of which are cleared, and in grass or cultivation, and the rest in wood.

This land is situated in Scott county, about 3 miles from Georgetown (the county town) twelve miles from Lexington, the largest, most populous and flourishing town in the state, and about 20 miles from Frankfort, at present the seat of government. The situation is in a populous, handsome and healthy part of the country, within one and a half miles of the Main Branch of the Elk-Horn River, a distinguished stream in that country, some of whose waters run thro' and are contiguous to the above land.—About the same distance from it are two or three grist mills, one of which is a capital merchant mill, and an excellent saw mill. At the distance of two or three miles further, there are a paper mill, fulling mill, hemp mill and two or three other grist mills. The land is all of the first quality in the state, or what is generally called there the first rate land. The surface is beautifully wavy, equally remote from what might be called a level or hilly one. Every acre of this land would produce excellent timothy and red clover without the aid of manure, as several years experience have evinced. There are at present about fifteen or twenty acres of it set in these grasses. The soil is rich and deep, and excellently adapted to the produce of wheat, Indian corn, hemp and tobacco, and indeed of any species of crop, usually cultivated in this climate. Twenty-five bushels of wheat and fifty bushels of Indian corn per acre, under good tillage, have been known to be an average crop for many succeeding years.

There are on this farm a young, thriving, but bearing apple orchard containing about 300 choice fruit trees, also a bearing peach orchard of the same number of trees, good fruit.

On this land are also a great number of choice sugar trees conveniently situated to form into camps for making sugar, of which article, with a moderate share of labour, 500 weight have been made in one season.

It is well furnished with timber consisting principally of large ash, locus, and walnut. And an abundance of hickory and other wood for firing.

Information of the premises may be had of Mr. Samuel Slaughter, of Caroline, or William H. Goldsborough, of Talbot, both of whom have seen the land.

Further particulars may be known by applying to the subscriber.
